POPE'S PICTURE TRAMPLED BY MOB OF FASCISTI

2 Catholic Buildings Stoned in Rome.

ROME, May 27.—(AP)—Continuing attacks, which observers believed might lead to a serious rift between the Vatican and the Italian government, Fascist students tonight stoned the offices of the Catholic publishing house, Civilta Cattolica.

After breaking many windows with stones, the students rushed into the office, and then threw copies of the book, "Il Papa" (the pope) from the windows.

Then, taking an oil portrait of Pope Pius XI. from the wall, the students carried it to the street, brandished it, and cried, "Here is a traitor to his country!" Throwing the picture to the cobble stones of the street, they trampled upon it.

Burn Books in Bonfire.

Afterward piles of the books, which were heaved from the windows, were taken to the Piazza Colonna, flanking the foreign office, where they were burned, together with a large number of copies of the Vatican newspaper, Osservatore Romano.

The march upon the Catholic publishing house was made without police hindrance. Police dispersed the group in the Piazza Colonna, however, after which the students assembled in smaller groups and continued to parade the streets, singing the Fascist hymn and shouting remarks directed against the church.

One of these groups was led by a long haired student, who was one of the ringleaders of an anti-Catholic demonstration this morning. As he followed his comrades near the Piazza San Silvestro he was interrupted by another student, who said:

Student Headquarters Stoned.

In this morning's demonstration scores of windows in the Catholic students' headquarters were broken by a barrage of stones thrown by the young Fascists. The Fascist students were dispersed only after being charged by a guard of mounted police.

Osservatore Romano today denied charges published in Roman newspapers that the church was interfering in political activity and was hostile to the Fascists. Branding these charges as false, the Vatican organ made a counter charge of Fascist interference in Catholic activities.

Government Condones Attacks.

In government circles it was said unofficially the controversy between the student groups was not entirely unwelcomed, because it was held to be evidence that the Fascisti were ready to combat what they consider a political trend by Catholic organizations.

In Vatican circles the contention was maintained that by their alleged interference in Catholic activity the Fascists were violating the spirit of the Lateran treaty and the concordat.

Some diplomatic tension, it was learned, has existed for three months between the Vatican and the government, since early in March the pope has refused to receive Count the Vecchi, Italian ambassador to the holy see, who was one of the four leaders of the Fascist march on Rome.

Mussolini Snubs Nuncio.

In retaliation, Premier Mussolini has refused to see the papal nuncio to Italy, Archbishop Borgongin-Duca, one of the negotiators of the Lateran treaty.

Hundreds of carabinieri policed the square in front of the Catholic headquarters this morning, having been warned of a possible demonstration, but the surging mass of Fascist students managed to reach the building before the mounted guard charged.

The Fascist militiamen were afterward withdrawn from their posts as sentry at the headquarters on the allegation that they were found to be favoring the students.

Bandits 'Borrow' Taxi for Holdup; Return It with Tip

Reno, Nev., May 27.—[Special.]—Three honest stickup men are at work in Reno. Last night they held up Hack Dixon, taxi driver, bound him and took his car, saying they would return in half an hour. They held up the Henry club, gambling house, and took $300. They returned to Dixon, unbound him, gave him $4 fare, and a 50 cent tip, and left.

VICTIM BEATEN AND STRANGLED; HUNT BURGLARS

Slugged and strangled with a small cord, Samuel Bloom, 64 years old, a retired tailor and wealthy owner of two apartment buildings on the northwest side, was found dead last evening in his first floor apartment at 4501 North Troy street. The police said there was evidence that he had been slain by burglars, one of them a woman, who posed as prospective tenants.

Bloom was found lying face downward on the floor. His face was bruised, and the back of his head bore a deep welt as if from a club-like instrument. Around his neck was wound a piece of cord. One pocket was turned inside out, and several coins were scattered on the carpet.

Apartment in Disorder.

The entire apartment was in disorder. Chairs were overturned. A floor lamp was broken in several pieces, and it is believed the narrow stand was utilized as a club to hammer Bloom down. The bedroom was ransacked.

The police belief that a woman had taken part in the crime was based on a telephone call made by Alexander Abraham Bloom, 39 years old, a son of the victim, to his father about 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The son telephoned Mr. Bloom to advise him as to the condition of his safety box holdings in a closed bank.

When Alexander called, a woman answered the phone. The younger Bloom did not recognize the voice, he told the police later, and repeated the number he had called to be certain he had received the correct connection. The woman repeated the number, which was that of Mr. Bloom. Alexander then asked for his father, and a moment later the latter answered.

Asks Father About Woman.

"Who is that woman?" inquired Alexander.

"She just came to look at the apartment upstairs," replied Mr. Bloom. Alexander forgot the incident, and told his father about the safety deposit matter. He then hung up.

It was at this moment, Albany Park police believe, that Mr. Bloom was slugged. A reconstruction of the murder indicated that Mr. Bloom sat at the telephone desk, his foot on a rung of the desk. As he hung up some one, perhaps the woman, detectives say, struck him down.

Evidently Bloom put up a fight. The overturned furniture bore this out, police said. He probably was struck several times before succumbing, and then the slayers wound the death cord several times around his neck.

Hunt Burglar Band of Three.

Chief of Detectives Norton and Capt. Joseph Goldberg of the Albany Park station directed the investigation. They learned that the residential district has been preyed on recently by a burglar band of two men and a woman. This trio is now being sought.

The custom of the three has been to inquire of a landlord about an apartment. The woman has then feigned illness and urged her companions to view the apartment while she rested. During their absence with the landlord she would ransack the latter's apartment.

Chief Norton and Capt. Goldberg believe the same ruse was tried yesterday, but was interrupted by the telephone call of Alexander Bloom. The woman, they believe, had already ransacked the apartment when the phone rang.

Daughter Discovers Crime.

The crime was discovered about 8 o'clock by Mrs. Rose Levett, 20 years old, a daughter of Mr. Bloom who, with her husband, Edward, an attorney, and her brother, Alexander, live in the apartment. Mrs. Levett is a stenographer. It was on her return from work that she found Mr. Bloom's body.

She notified Albany Park police and reported she believed her father had committed suicide. Her belief was based on the fact he had been ill. The police, however, after their investigation declared Bloom had been murdered.

Apparently the only loot obtained by the burglars was $16 which Alexander Bloom said his father had had in his pocket.

Hawks Tours Europe on Bet in Ten Hours

PARIS, May 27.—(AP)—Capt. Frank Hawks, riding his fast airplane like a magic carpet, toured Europe in ten hours today. He had breakfast in London, luncheon in Berlin, and dinner this evening in Paris. By his feat Capt. Hawks won the dinner in Paris from friends with whom he had made a bet on the success of the venture.

The three point flight began shortly after 8 o'clock this morning, when he left Le Bourget for Croydon field, England. He made that trip in a little more than an hour. He had breakfast and went on to Berlin, covering that stretch in 3 hours and 15 minutes.

Attends Theater in Paris.

The flight down to Le Bourget ended a little after 6 o'clock this evening. The American speedster climbed into an automobile to meet Mrs. Hawks, who had tickets for the theater this evening. The last leg required 3 hours and 1 minute.

The crowd which had gathered to greet the American called him "The Meteor Man."

Between Croyden and Berlin he was slowed up by head winds and delayed by a squall over Holland. The flight required 25 minutes more than his previous record, but his speed averaged 190 miles an hour. At Berlin he said he was not a bit tired.

Covers 1,400 Miles.

Capt. Hawks completed his tour in 7 hours 40 minutes' actual flying time, averaging 186 miles an hour. Including the time required for breakfast in London and luncheon in Berlin, 9 hours 51 minutes elapsed between his takeoff from Le Bourget this morning and his return tonight.

The route covered is 1,400 miles long, according to the measurements of the ordinary commercial air routes. From Le Bourget to London is 217 miles; from London to Berlin, 615 miles; from Berlin to Le Bourget, 568 miles.

Tomorrow the captain will receive the 1930 trophy of the International League of Aviators.

BOMB DAMAGES FLAT OF SCHOOL ENGINEER CHIEF

A bomb was exploded at 1:30 o'clock this morning in the rear of a six apartment building at 6718-20 Merrill avenue and directly below the kitchen window of John Howatt, for seventeen years chief engineer of the board of education.

The blast shattered every window in the rear of the building and in homes near by. Damage was estimated at $2,000. The force of the explosion jolted Gordon Howatt, 17 years old, son of the school official, from bed. Neither he nor any one else was injured.

Mr. Howatt said he knew of no reason for the attack and was certain it was not meant for him. Miss Eleanor Twitchell, owner of the apartment building, told Woodlawn police she had no janitor or other troubles and could not account for the blast. Other tenants were equally mystified, and detectives suggested the attack might have been due to error.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, May 27.—An amusing story is going the rounds concerning Prof. Albert Einstein's visit to Oxford university. Invited to dinner by one of the university officials, Prof. Einstein was taking coffee on the lawn during a recent warm evening. Women who were present asked him whether he was convinced that his theory of relativity were true.

"Yes," he answered, "I believe it to be true. But it will only be proved for certain in the year 1961, when I am dead."

"And what," they asked, "will happen then?"

"Well," he said, "if I am right the Germans will say I was a German and the French will say I was a Jew; if I am wrong the Germans will say I was a Jew and the French will say I was a German."

Wives Battle at Traffic Stop; One Is Wounded

Jackson, Miss., May 27.—(AP)—Drawing a pistol as their automobiles came abreast at a traffic light in the business section today, Mrs. L. P. Love, wife of an oil operator, shot Mrs. Ernie Barrett Elmore, 21, several times, critically wounding her. Police said Mrs. Love told them she had warned Mrs. Elmore against "running around" with her husband.

Dawes in U. S.; Says Trade Is on Upgrade

New York, May 27.—[Special.]—Charles G. Dawes, ambassador to the Court of St. James, returned to the United States today from England and said, on landing, that he believes a "mass change in attitude to optimism, which will mark the beginning of the upturn in general business, will come just as suddenly as did the change to mass pessimism in 1929." And he added, "It is about due, in my judgment."

CHARLES G. DAWES

Stock exchange prices are no real index to things, he said, because the great mass of the public is not rushing through stock exchange channels now as it was two years ago "and it has therefore ceased to be a reflection of any mass attitude except that of inertia."

Has Statement Ready.

He had the customary setting all arranged, that is, he was smoking an undesirable pipe. In addition, the ambassador, on his way up the narrows, had done the newspaper men a favor by writing out his own statement.

Mr. Dawes said he would spend a few days in New York, visit the President in Washington, and then go on to Chicago for a two weeks' stay in connection with the Century of Progress exposition, of whose finance committee he is chairman.

In reference to business conditions, he said:

"For the first evidence of the existence of that general better feeling of the masses from which springs increased mass activity in business, we must look to statistics which really measure a mass movement say, in electrical power consumption—not to the prices at which a few discouraged holders are selling stocks to a few wise buyers on the stock exchange.

Change "Is About Due."

"Prosperity, which is another name for activity in general exchanges, will return only slowly, for our business system is an enormous machine, but that mass change in attitude to optimism which will mark the beginning of the upturn in general business will come just as suddenly as did the change to mass pessimism in 1929. It is about due, in my judgment."

Tornado Hits Crack Train; 1 Dead, 20 Hurt

Fargo, N. D., May 27.—(AP)—A tornado flipped the crack Empire Builder of the Great Northern road from the rails near here late today, hurling 11 coaches on their sides. One passenger was killed and more than a score injured.

The train, eastbound from the Pacific coast, was scheduled to arrive in Chicago at 8:35 tomorrow morning.

A. Anderson of Montesano, Wash., was the person killed. He was hurled through a train window and crushed to death by a succeeding coach. Mrs. Emily Hannan, Seattle, was the most seriously injured. She may not recover.

One Chicagoan was injured. He was J. W. Green, colored. He was not seriously hurt.

Locomotive Escapes.

The train was moving at high speed when the storm struck. The wind crashed into the cars after the engine had passed and the engine and tender alone remained on the track.

The first baggage coach, immediately behind, was carried nearly 150 feet from the track, which sits ten feet above the Red river valley lowlands. Of the 12 coaches blown from the rails, one remained upright—the diner, which was being arranged for the evening meal.

The first impact crashed in the windows and then the heavy steel cars were thrown onto their sides. The steel construction of the cars prevented their being crushed, but flying glass caused a number of injuries, while other passengers suffered bruised arms, heads and other injuries, when tossed about.

Rescue Train Rushed.

The injured and other passengers were brought to Fargo on a special relief train dispatched to the scene immediately after word of the disaster came. A wrecker was sent from St. Cloud, Minn., to clear the tracks.

The tornado, after playing havoc with the train, swept on, killing Andrew Hatlebal, farmer, living eight miles north of Moorhead, Minn., when a building on his farm collapsed. The tornado, traveling northeasterly, also wrecked many barns and other buildings.

A tornado also swooped down on the farm of E. C. Miller, a mile east of Dillworth, Minn., flattening the barn and outbuildings. Members of the family escaped injury.

As word of the disaster spread, automobiles crowded the highways leading to the scene of the train wreck, causing a traffic jam for miles around.

A De Luxe Train.

The Empire Builder is one of the northwest's fastest and most luxurious trains. Named for James J. Hill, the "Empire Builder," who constructed the Great Northern from St. Paul to Seattle, it has been in service three years on the run between Chicago and the Pacific northwest, via Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, and Idaho.

Special cars, which brought the total cost close to $500,000, were constructed for the train, and each car was named for some pioneer of the northwest country.

Wilmington, Del., May 27.—(AP)—Leonard Wood III., eight years old, died late yesterday of lockjaw here. He was a grandson of the late Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood.

It was said the boy injured his hand with a toy pistol a week ago. The family would not discuss this. The lad lived with his mother, Mrs. Katherine Thompson Wood, at Greenville.

TWO SCIENTISTS' FATE IN DOUBT; CRASH IN ITALY

News Received After Drift Over Alps.

BULLETIN.

INNSBRUCK, Austria, May 28. (Thursday)—(AP)—Police received information today that Dr. Auguste Piccard's balloon had been wrecked between Bozen and Verona, Italy. The information came to the Gendarmerie of the Austrian department of Soelden from a photographer by telephone.

(There was no indication as to whether Piccard and his assistant, who sealed themselves in an aluminum ball in the balloon, were dead or alive.)

AUGSBURG, Germany, May 28—[Thursday].—(AP)—The stratosphere balloon of Prof. Auguste Piccard crossed the northern Italian border early this morning after a helter skelter, "hedge hopping" flight above the Alps and gave rise to a growing belief that Prof. Piccard and his companion, Charles Kipfer, could not remain alive.

After being sighted over several towns in western Austria, tracing a southward flight from Innsbruck, the balloon was reported sighted by the gendarmerie over Bozen, Italy, continuing its southward course.

Report Distress Signals.

Earlier in the night there were reports that what were thought to be distress signals from the two men enclosed in the aluminum ball attached to the balloon, were seen, but the commander of the airport at Innsbruck was reported to have denied that light signals he flashed when the balloon appeared there had been answered by the scientists.

The fact that the balloon continued in the air with no apparent effort being made to bring it to earth, was considered a further argument in favor of the theory that Prof. Piccard and Kipfer had perished.

Tossed Like Ball in Wind.

Friends of Prof. Piccard at Munich, however, were reported to have argued there were grounds for hope in the continued flight. They declared the fact that the balloon maintained a fairly even altitude, rising only as it crossed the Alpine heights, indicated that the huge bag still was being guided by a human hand.

Reports from Innsbruck said that the balloon was being tossed about like a ball in the wind, at a height of 15,000 feet when it was sighted there.

The balloon was sighted over Ostetal and Landeck after it disappeared from Innsbruck at 9 p. m. From then on it was reported from Wems, Merano, and Brenner, and finally over Bozen, Italy.

Drifts Over Glaciers.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, May 27.—Wrapped in silence and mystery, shrouded in the folds of night, Prof. Auguste Piccard's stratosphere balloon tonight drifted aimlessly over the glaciers of the Tyrolian Alps, apparently out of control and occupied only by the dead.

Since 4 p. m. it circled for hours over the Bavarian-Tyrolian border areas, unguided and apparently caught in a pocket of dead air from which it could not extricate itself. With the approach of night its course suddenly shifted in the direction of the Italian frontier.

Two airplanes which took off from Munich this afternoon in an attempt to get in touch with Piccard were forced to return because of their inability to reach the altitude at which the balloon was then sailing.

No Sign of Life.

Throughout the afternoon sky watchers along its route looked in vain for a sign of life from Piccard and his assistant. While some onlookers believed they had detected signals of distress, these proved as unconfirmable as earlier sightings which credited the balloon with having reached an altitude of 40,000 feet.

While Piccard was amply provisioned, his supply of oxygen sufficed to protect him for a period of less than 20 hours, and it is the latter circumstance that now prompts the direst fears, the assumption being that the two aeronauts are either unconscious or dead from suffocation.

At no time since its ascent at dawn at Augsburg today did Piccard attain an altitude of more than 25,000 feet, according to estimates by experts. They declare that during the greater

While it disappeared from view for brief periods, it is not accepted as definite that Piccard succeeded in penetrating the stratosphere. To this extent all conjectures over the scientific success of his flight will remain speculation until examination of his barograph and other instruments yields reliable testimony.

His professional colleagues and the management of the Reidinger balloon works at Augsburg, which constructed the aircraft, admit they are unable to explain why Piccard failed to attempt a landing after having been in the air the greater part of the day. This is one of the mysteries which is stimulating fears among aeronautic observers that the two occupants have completely lost control of the balloon's mechanism or are dead from suffocation. Before taking off at 3:55 o'clock this morning Piccard announced that he planned to land about noon.

It is believed in some quarters that the undertaking was not soundly organized from a technical viewpoint, although its promoter was a man of recognized scientific ability and unquestioned courage.

Experts Frowned on Adventure.

Expert balloonists and scientists had seriously doubted the feasibility of Prof. Piccard's adventure. While it is admitted that a balloon of this size might easily rise to the stratosphere, aeronautical experts wondered how Prof. Piccard would manage to descend. It was pointed out that, having only a little ballast on board, he could not land in the ordinary way by opening a valve and letting out some gas because the speed of his fall could not be broken by throwing ballast overboard.

Prof. Piccard must wait for the balloon to start falling, but it is considered extremely doubtful that the aluminum cabin withstood the many hours of high air pressure from within and the influence of the cold atmosphere and hot sun rays from without. The smallest leak in the cabin would produce immediate unconsciousness and subsequent death, experts say.

Balloon experts also said that sometimes balloonists were caught in a belt of warm air and could not come down. This is because warm air expands the gas, forcing the balloon upward.

A VETERAN BALLOONIST.

Dr. Auguste Piccard's latest attempt to flirt with the upper reaches of the firmament, thereby taking the incredibility out of another of the list of incredible adventures of that romancer, Jules Verne, is no adventure to him. He has made 12 previous balloon ascensions in the interest of science.

The big balloon, christened "F. B. N. S." after the "Fonds Belge National de la Reserve Scientifique," which has given $56,000 for this expedition, is the largest of its kind ever built. The whole balloon, including the gas bag and gondola, was constructed according to Dr. Piccard's own designs by the Reidinger balloon works of Augsburg, Germany.

The gas bag has a circumference of 200 feet and, when inflated to its fullest capacity, holds 500,000 cubic feet of gas. Its fabric is specially processed to withstand all the rigors of weather and to prevent the terrific gas pressure attained in rarefied atmosphere from escaping.

Gondola a 7 Foot Ball.

The 220 pound gondola is in the shape of a ball seven feet in diameter. The shell is made of aluminum and constructed to keep the pressure of the interior from bursting out when the outside atmospheric pressure is reduced. Two portholes and a screw top manhole are built into the convex sides of the gondola, permitting entrance to the interior without weakening any part of the shell of the structure.

Taking advantage of the known influence of radio active waves on aluminum, Dr. Piccard painted one side of the gondola white and the other black, so as to utilise all energy properties, outside of air, which are needed to maintain life. White reflects the sun rays and black absorbs similar rays.

To control the painted hemispheres of the gondola in the fate of the sun the whole cabin is hung on a vertical axis which may be turned by a propeller.

Two air machines, one containing liquid air and the other 1.8 cubic meters of oxygen under pressure, keep the air in the cabin renewable for 10 hours. Parachutes are provided both for the occupants of the gondola and for the delicate scientific instruments.

Because gas expands as it rises into higher altitudes, the gas bag was filled with less than one fifth of its capacity at the beginning of the flight. Ballast of lead is carried, which is released by means of levers when further altitude is required.

The danger in seeking altitude such as Dr. Piccard has aimed to do is that when gas under great pressure is released to effect descent, the descent becomes faster as altitude is lost and pressure automatically reduced by increasing influence of "thicker" air. Dr. Piccard said the greatest trouble he anticipated was when he attempted to come down.

Aimed at 50,000 Feet.

In exploring the stratosphere, which lies between 40,000 and 80,000 feet up, Dr. Piccard aimed at the mean of these figures, 50,000 feet. The highest altitude to which man has ever flown is 45,166 feet, a little less than 8 1-4 miles.

This was accomplished by Lieut. Apollo Soucek, American naval flyer, on June 4, 1930, in an airplane. He reported that the temperature was about 60 below zero.

It is thought that in the stratosphere the minimum of cold is arrived at. Dr. Piccard believed this might reach 68 degrees below zero.

The purposes of Dr. Piccard's expedition were numerous. He wanted to seek additional confirmation of the Einstein theory, to prove that it is possible to sustain life at such altitudes, and to test the possibility of travel by air at such heights.

But above all, he hoped to investigate cosmic rays, measure electricity in the air, and determine the ionic charge of the upper atmosphere. The energy of the atmosphere has never been measured. The transformation of atoms in the higher regions would be a bigger source of energy than all the world's coal mines by a million times, Dr. Piccard said.

Twin Brother in U. S.

Wilmington, Del., May 27.—(AP)—Dr. Jean Piccard, twin brother of Dr. Auguste Piccard, said tonight he had no fears for his brother's safety.

"A balloon is never in distress in the air," he said. "My brother knows how to handle a balloon. He is as safe there as a man sitting at home."

Dr. Jean Piccard is director of the chemical service department of the Hercules Powder company here. He worked with his brother in 1913 and made an experimental trip in a balloon in that year to measure atmospheric pressure on balloons. # Raid and Close Dog Race Tracks for Second Time

Attempts to reopen the dog tracks at Thornton and Cicero last night were halted for the second night in succession by raiding squads from the state's attorney's office and the county highway police under Sheriff William D. Meyering.

Promoters of both tracks, despite the raids and arrests on Tuesday night when they first attempted to open, resumed operations last night, but the authorities intervened after the first races had been run.

At Thornton, Thomas Healey, 921 Eastwood avenue, manager of the track, who was not arrested in Tuesday night's raid, was taken into custody last night, along with Charles Huey, a mutuel clerk, who was arrested in the first raid. Both were held under bond to appear before Justice of the Peace William Ward in Morton Grove at 2 o'clock this afternoon, along with those seized in Tuesday's raid.

To Face Justice Today.

Two others were arrested in the raid on the Cicero track—William Finneran, the manager, and Lonnie Gray, another mutuel clerk, both of whom had been arrested the night before. Finneran and his clerk also were held under bond to appear before Justice Ward this afternoon.

The raid at Cicero was led by Lieut. William V. Blaul of the state's attorney's office, and Lieut. Edward Webber of the county highway police. Two deputy sheriffs and three detectives made up the squad. About 400 customers were attending the races.

The Thornton raid was led by Chief William Collins of the highway police and Sergt. Nell Kahler of the state's attorney's office. Both tracks were closed after the raids. The managers announced that they would be open again tonight. The raiders said they would be on hand again to prevent the opening.

Suit Attacks Horse Races.

Promoters of the dog tracks instituted a new attack on horse racing yesterday afternoon by filing a suit in the Circuit court to recover $30,000 that had been wagered and lost on horse races at the Hawthorne track last year. By means of the suit the dog track promoters hope to place their enterprise on the same footing as horse racing or cause the abolishment of both.

The suit, known as qui tam or popular action, was filed by Attorney Edward H. Morris in behalf of William E. Liebetrau, 1020 Lawrence avenue, who alleged that Ludwell J. Sarcey, a friend, had lost the $30,000 at the Hawthorne races. The suit will attack the legality of pari mutuel betting on the horse races.

ANOTHER HOME MACHINE GUNNED IN BEER FEUD

In supposed reprisal for the machine gunning of the south shore home of Frank McErlane's brother-in-law early Tuesday morning gangsters in a moving automobile at midnight last night fired a volley of machine gun bullets into the home of Walter Zwolinski at 1503 West Garfield boulevard. Zwolinski, according to the police, is a follower of the Edward (Spike) O'Donnell beer faction on the south side. Neither he nor his wife was at home.

Sixteen of the bullets struck the front wall of the Zwolinski home, an English basement apartment. Four or five others crashed through windows and were imbedded in a kitchen wall. One bullet flew through a window of the second floor apartment of Clem Johnson, but no one was injured. The police said it was the second gun attack on Zwolinski's home, the other having occurred on May 5.

The Tuesday morning machine gunning occurred at the home of Robert Marvis, 7754 Crandon avenue. Marvis, who is McErlane's brother-in-law, declared that the gangster had not been in his home for a week and that hilarious guests fired the shots as they were departing. Other reports were that McErlane fled from the house by a rear door as gangsters were peppering the front with bullets.

PLANE STRIKES PLANE IN TAKING OFF; ONE KILLED

Cleveland, O., May 27.—(AP)—John Ross, a student pilot, was killed instantly late today, just after he had landed his open cockpit plane at Cleveland airport, when another ship, piloted by an experienced flyer, crashed into his ship as it was taking off.

George K. Scott, 29, a licensed transport pilot, was slightly hurt when his cabin monoplane, according to airport officials, rode over the student's plane from the rear, striking Ross from behind and inflicting injuries from which he died en route to a hospital.

Maj. John Berry, manager of the airport, said Scott was violating the established rules of the air when the accident occurred. "Ross had just landed his plane and was standing in the middle of the field when the plane piloted by Scott came down, and then, without stopping, started to take the air again," Berry said. "As Scott's plane was leaving the ground its landing gear grazed the tail of Ross' ship and it tore along the top, tearing the open plane to pieces and striking Ross in the back before it toppled off the front and landed on its nose."

Lay Plans to Insure Older Men Share of Jobs

Harrisburg, Pa., May 27.—(AP)—The house today adopted a resolution authorizing the Greater Pennsylvania council to investigate alleged discrimination against persons over 45 in industry. The council would also be authorized to inquire into the feasibility of aiding persons over 45 in obtaining employment by imposing a graduated tax to be paid by employers on wages of employes under 45.

NEW YORK "BOMBED" BY ARMY AIRPLANES TAKING PHOTOGRAPHS

New York, May 27.—[Special.]—An army observation plane on a photographic expedition launched an unexpected air "attack" on the Columbia university section of the city tonight, dumping two enormous photographer's flashlight bombs that exploded with terrific detonations, shaking residences and apartment houses, shattering scores of windows and startling thousands. No one was injured.

Each of the bombs dropped contained sufficient flashlight powder for a three billion candle power flare. As they exploded in a mass of bluish flame the force of the detonations was felt for blocks around.

Ald. Massen Suggests Side Doors for Trucks

Ald. John A. Massen [48th] asked the city council yesterday to authorize his committee on traffic regulation and public safety to make a study of the advisability of putting side doors on motor trucks. The advantage would be, he said, that the trucks would unload while parked parallel to the curb instead of having the radiator nosing out into the street. "Side doors are all right," commented one alderman. "I know they are fine in speakeasies."

SHELTON SENTENCE AFFIRMED.

The conviction and sentence to one year in jail of Carl Shelton, East St. Louis gangster, on charges of violating the prohibition laws, was affirmed yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

PADDEN CALMS ROW OF YANKEE MAYORS IN PARIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 27.—With their nerves on edge from too much wining, dining, and travel, the American delegation of mayors, who are guests of the French government, staged a noisy scene today within the dignified precincts of the venerable Paris city hall, where they had just been entertained at lunch. Only the prompt intervention by Judge Frank M. Padden, who is representing Mayor Cermak of Chicago, prevented a worse scene.

Ignoring the presence of the mayor of Paris, Count Jean de Castellane, Marshal Lyautey, and other distinguished hosts, Mayor George Baker of Portland, Ore., the leader of the delegation, suddenly raised his arms about his huge frame and shouted: "Stay where you are and don't anybody leave. We will have a frank talk right now and straighten out certain things." The clamor of angry voices immediately arose. Judge Padden induced the delegation to adjourn to Claridge's, where it was determined to select an executive committee of four to assist Mayor Baker, the chairman: Daniel W. Hoan, mayor of Milwaukee, who is the middle west representative.

Mayor Baker precipitated another extraordinary incident when he delivered a dramatic 20 minute address before the tomb of the unknown soldier. He launched into his speech before anybody could tell him that speeches were barred by tradition, which heretofore had never been broken.

MOVE TO RAISE KIRKLAND'S TERM TO 5 TO 21 YEARS

Attorney General Holds His Sentence Illegal.

Valparaiso, Ind., May 27.—[Special.]—With Virgil Kirkland in the Pendleton reformatory tonight, starting a 1 to 10 year prison sentence imposed this morning, the legal machinery of the state was in motion to set aside his sentence as arbitrary to law and inflict a heavier penalty.

R. C. ESTILL.

At 11 o'clock this morning Judge Grant Crumpacker sentenced the Gary youth to the reformatory for assault and battery with intent to rape his 17 year old sweetheart, Arlene Draves, at a party which resulted in the girl's death. A jury last night found him guilty on this charge, which was popularly supposed to carry an automatic 1 to 10 year penalty.

A few hours after the sentence had been pronounced Prosecutor Robert C. Estill announced he had received official notice from Attorney General James M. Ogden that Judge Crumpacker had erred, that the penalty called for under the law was 5 to 21 years in Michigan City penitentiary.

"I expect to go before Judge Crumpacker next Monday," Mr. Estill said, "with a motion to alter the judgment."

Judge Also Notified.

From his office at Indianapolis, Attorney General Ogden confirmed the prosecutor's statement. The attorney general said he had notified Judge Crumpacker as well as Mr. Estill of what he construed to be a judicial error.

The statute of 1921 covering the crime of assault with intent to commit rape specifies a penalty of five to twenty-one years in the penitentiary, Mr. Ogden pointed out. In imposing no lesser punishment this morning, Judge Crumpacker invoked the Juvenile law of 1927, which provides that the court, at its own discretion, may use the one to ten year reformatory sentence on any minor not previously convicted of a felony, providing that the defendant's crime does not involve capital punishment or life imprisonment.

Cites Court Decision.

"The question at issue is whether the act of 1927 supersedes the statute of 1921," said Mr. Ogden. "The Supreme court has ruled specifically on the question, holding that the newer law does not supersede the older one, since the statute of 1921 has not been repealed.

"In my conversation with Judge Crumpacker I cited him the decision of Justice Benjamin M. Willoughby, handed down in a Supreme court decision of October, 1930," the attorney general explained. "Judge Crumpacker said he had not been informed of that decision, but would look into it immediately."

It seemed not improbable therefore that Kirkland may be brought back from Pendleton next week to be transferred to the penitentiary, where more rigid discipline is the rule.

The youth was all smiles this morning when Judge Crumpacker called him forward to hear his sentence.

"You are a fortunate young man," the judge observed, after citing the juvenile statute and imposing sentence. Kirkland hung his head sheepishly.

The judge here praised the defense lawyers and interjected a reference to his having granted Kirkland a new trial after a jury had convicted him of murder last February with a penalty of life imprisonment. He contrasted the severity of that penalty with the one he was now imposing.

"You must not think I condone your offense," the judge admonished Kirkland. "I think that your conduct and that of the other four boys indicted with you was very reprehensible. You are certainly not without fault. Let this be a lesson for you, never to repeat any such conduct when you finish your sentence."

Kirkland Makes Bow.

Kirkland bowed an acknowledgment, then turned impulsively to Prosecutor Estill and grasped his hand.

Then he thanked his attorneys, Oscar B. Thiel of Gary and Ronald C. Oldham of Chicago.

Oldham, who had been arrested last night on a charge involving a fraudulent check issued in Hamilton, O., settled his difficulty this morning by making restitution.

Thiel, still nursing the bruises inflicted last night by Guy Weaver, who slugged the lawyer twice in the courtroom in resentment over Thiel's remarks concerning his daughter, Mrs. Bernice Elser, announced he had changed his mind about having Weaver arrested for assault and battery.

Dr. Orlando F. Scott, the defense medical export, whose arrest on a charge of drunkenness last night climaxed the misfortunes of Kirkland's legal staff, was released this morning on a $100 bond posted by Attorney John Crumpacker, son of the judge and associate defense counsel. Dr. Scott branded the arrest of Oldham, the slugging of Thiel and the jailing of himself as "persecution" by the hostile population of Valparaiso.

With reference to Kirkland's codefendants, Paul Barton, Leon Stanford, David Thompson, and Henry Shirk, Prosecutor Estill said he would probably move for dismissal of the indictments against them early next week.

SCHOOL BOARD MAY CLAIM RICH LOOP PROPERTY

Land Bequeathed by Old Morrison Will.

The board of education yesterday authorized its attorney, Thomas V. Sullivan, to inquire into the legality of an old school claim to a valuable loop corner which was purchased more than a century ago by James M. Morrison, who died in 1868. The property includes certain lots at the northeast corner of Clark and Madison streets, and was bequeathed to the school system, according to the attorney, under the terms of Morrison's will, filed 62 years ago. The attorney estimated its present value at $10,000,000.

Should Attorney Sullivan find there is a possible legal basis for the school board's claim, he said he would file a suit in the state courts for the land. The property in question is across the street from the Morrison hotel, the site of other old Morrison holdings.

Capt. Edward W. Morrison, son and sole surviving heir to the estate, died about 18 months ago at the age of 93. Proceedings relative to Capt. Morrison's estate are now being heard in the Probate court.

Based on Will Abstract.

James M. Morrison's will was probated in 1869, but the will was destroyed in the Chicago fire two years later. In 1916 an abstract of the will was found in the vaults of the Chicago Title and Trust company. Attorney Sullivan bases his possible claim on this abstract.

The will, as shown in the abstract, left a life interest in virtually all of the estate, valued at more than $2,000,000, to Capt. Morrison to pay all debts and to care for another son so young that he had not then been named. The fourth paragraph provided that if the two sons should die without children the property at the northeast corner of Clark and Madison streets should go to the city in trust.

From the trust, the will provided, the sum of $100,000 should be paid to relatives and the balance should be given to the school board for the purpose of constructing a high school.

Dies Without Heirs.

The unnamed son died in infancy. Capt. Morrison, the other son, died without leaving any children, according to testimony that has been given by witnesses called by attorneys for his $3,000,000 estate at the current hearing before Probate Judge Horner. One claimant to the son's estate, Capt. William Foulkes, contends that he is the son of Edward W. Morrison and Mary Prange, a domestic in the Morrison home, but this claim has been tentatively ruled out.

Attorney Sullivan said that he would await a ruling on Capt. Foulkes' claim before pressing any school claims. There are a few small properties involved in the trust created by the elder Morrison's will which the school board will also claim, he said.

About 15 years ago a suit to construe James Morrison's will was tried in the state courts and a decision was handed down that the trust for the benefit of the school system was valid only in the event that Edward W. Morrison died before his brother. The latter, however, died nearly 64 years before Edward W. Morrison.

This decision, according to Attorney Sullivan, has no bearing on the school board's claim, because the school board was not made a party to the suit, although it was the beneficiary of the trust.

Like his father, Edward W. Morrison left the most of his estate to charity, but instead of bequeathing it to the school children he provided that it should be used to build a home for the aged. In addition to Capt. Foulkes, two adopted daughters and twelve relatives are seeking to break his will. A decision in the probate case is expected next week.

MERCURY HITS 84; WEATHER MAN SAYS TODAY WILL BE FAIR

Unclouded skies and summertime temperatures prevailed in Chicago yesterday, the mercury reaching a mark of 84 at 3 p. m. Today, according to the official forecast, will be fair and warm.

Mercury readings were even higher in donwstate towns than in Chicago, the high mark at Carbondale being 89 degrees, a record for 1931. Heavy rains and high winds were reported from points in the northwest, the total precipitation at Watertown, S. D., exceeding 7 inches for a twenty-four hour period.

Reports from Des Moines, Ia., said the rainfall in that region had helped the corn crop, but the frosts during this month had nipped tender vegetation.

GOVERNOR SIGNS BILL FOR COUNCIL FOR WAUKEGAN

Gov. Emmerson yesterday signed the bill passed by the general assembly legalizing the election of the new Waukegan council and city officials, and it appeared last night that this action would make possible the paying of $30,000 in overdue salaries to teachers and janitors in the public schools of the city. Waukegan voters recently voted to change from the commission form of government to the aldermanic form.

County Treasurer J. B. Morse of Lake county, who had refused to countersign checks of the city treasurer unless he was assured that the latter was a legal office holder, said that he would consult his own attorney today and release the money at once if he is advised to do so. About 150 teachers are affected. The salaries ordinarily would have been paid a week ago.

She Shoots Herself, He Leaps on Tracks.

Natrona, Ill., May 27.—(AP)—The suicide of Genevieve Watkins, star student at San José High school, was followed today by the attempted suicide of Clayton Norrick, her friend and fellow student.

The girl fired a bullet into her heart this afternoon. When Norrick heard the news he tried to fling himself in front of an Alton passenger train, but was snatched to safety by his sister.

Ever since last October, when the 17 ygar old girl moved here from Middletown, Ill., Clayton, also 17, had called for her at her home and driven her to school at San José, where both were members of the junior class.

"Friends," Says Principal.

"They were both good friends, but nothing more, so far as we knew," Will Hullinger, principal of the high school, said. "He was quite an athlete, a member of the basketball team. She was a good student. He had been in the habit of taking her to and from school every day."

"They're both just children," the boy's mother said, "and I'm sure there was no love affair. The boy was just so excited and shocked that he didn't know what he was doing."

Student Is Found Slain.

Quincy, Ill., May 27.—(AP)—The body of J. Albert Worman of Pittsfield, Ill., a pistol nearby, was found tonight in a thicket atop a bluff overlooking the Mississippi. He had been shot in the head, and authorities said he apparently committed suicide. He was a sophomore at Culver-Stockton, Canton, Mo.

Worman's family and college authorities professed to know no reason. He stood well in his studies and was popular on the campus. He was a member of Mu Theta Nu fraternity. The youth was last seen Tuesday night.

WOMAN KILLED BY FALL.

EXTRA SESSION CHIEF HOPE FOR CHICAGO BILLS

House Postpones Action for a Week.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 27.—[Special.]—Chicago's revenue bills, the outgrowth of the conferences between Mayor Cermak's advisory committee and the legislators, drew a week's postponement late today in house revenue committee. Action was deferred until next Wednesday, after Michael L. Igoe, minority leader, who introduced the measures yesterday, learned that the bill have not yet come from the printer.

E. J. SCHNACKENBERG. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Some of the members of the mayor's advisory committee were present but there was no discussion.

A general sentiment seems to prevail among assembly leaders that little will be done this session on any of the fundamental revenue measures. For the last few weeks there has been a well defined feeling that a special session will be necessary on the matter of revenue and taxation, and that forms the background for a somewhat lackadaisical attitude towards measures now pending.

Schnackenberg Opposes Plan.

One of the Igoe bills, in the program of the Cermak advisory group, seeks to abolish the elective board of assessors, the board of review, and the 30 town assessors and to substitute a board of assessment and revision of three members, one to be the assessor, to be appointed by the president of the county board. This plan of reorganizing the taxing machinery of Cook county today drew the opposition of Elmer J. Schnackenberg, one of the Republican floor leaders.

Mr. Schnackenberg, who headed a committee which held prolonged hearings in Chicago early in the session on the question of remodeling the boards of assessors and of review, tonight put forth the following argument:

"1—The Cermak plan would forever deprive the people of Cook county of the right of electing their assessing officials. This would strike at representative government in one of its most vital places.

Says Plan Has Failed.

"2—The Cermak plan appears incongruous in providing that the county assessor, to be appointed by the president of the county board, shall sit with two other persons, likewise selected, to pass on complaints against the assessment made by the assessor himself. Experience in other cities has demonstrated the folly of this procedure. It is like having one of the attorneys in a law suit sit with the judge in rendering the decision of the court."

House Refuses Action.

Meanwhile, the house today refused to allow mass introduction of 99 bills pushed by the Chicago Real Estate board as a relief measure for overburdened taxpayers. The vote was 52 to 57.

Representative James J. McVicker [Rep., Chicago] asked unanimous consent of his chamber to put the bills into the already heaping hoppers, pleading that any measures designed to afford surcease for the real estate owners should be given consideration.

"It would be impossible to consider these bills within the next three weeks," Speaker Shanahan reminded him, referring to the short life remaining for the current session. "The cost for printing them alone would be $2,500."

Igoe Explains Bills.

The members remained in virtual ignorance of the provision of the bills until Representative M. L. Igoe [Dem., Chicago] rose to answer a question asked by H. D. Sparks [Rep., Shelbyville].

"Is there any chance of the Chicago members getting together on these bills?" Sparks asked.

"As I understand them," replied the minority leader, "they provide for placing all real estate in Illinois on the basis of 100 per cent valuation. This would give additional bonding power to Cook county, and to all the other counties for that matter, and would allow Cook to fund its 1930 taxes. The plan, I am informed, is to wipe out the 1930 tax levy and issue bonds for it which would mature over a period of 20 years.

"I am not committed against the principles of these bills, but I do think that we have enough trouble now in collecting out taxes to permit ourselves additional worries."

A rising vote on the question of allowing the introduction defeated the motion, 38 to 62. McVicker then asked for a roll call, which stood at 52 to 57.

Congressmen Protest New Districts.

A small group of congressmen were busy today buttonholing members and presenting arguments against the tentative reapportionment of congressional districts as it now stands. Congressman William P. Holaday [Rep., Danville] does not like the tentative map because it puts him in the same district with Congressman Homer W. Hall [Rep., Bloomington].

Congressman Peter C. Granata [Rep., Chicago] is dissatisfied with the boundaries of his new district, while friends of Congressman Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Carrollton], dean of the Illinois delegation, are protesting that too much Republican territory is being pushed into his proposed new district.

The Day in Springfield

THE SENATE:

After two hours debate, tabled 23 to 24, the house bill No. 494 [Lager] to reduce the license fee of Fairmont race track near Collinsville from $2,500 a day to $1,500.

Received a bill for Senator Epler Mills [Rep., Virginia], requiring every commercial air craft to carry not less than two licensed pilots and to furnish each passenger with a parachute.

THE HOUSE:

Advanced to third reading the $35,000,000 appropriation of the department of public welfare without debate.

Passed the $12,000,000 appropriation bill for the state distributive school fund.

Appropriations of $1,645,600 for the state auditor, and $1,742,770 for the department of labor.

ALDERMAN ASKS QUIZ ON PAVING GRAFT CHARGES

An investigation of paving conditions in Chicago to determine if collusion has existed between the paving contractors and some city officials, and, whether the property owners have been forced to pay from two to three times as much as would be fair for pavements was asked at the meeting of the city council yesterday by Ald. James C. Moreland [41st]. His request was referred to the committee on special assessments.

"The cost of street paving to the home owners and the owners of real state," said Ald. Moreland, "has increased in the last fifteen years by more than 300 per cent, while the cost of materials and labor have increased only approximately 60 per cent. It is alleged that the cost of street paving in adjoining municipalities has increased only from 60 to 70 per cent.

"It is believed by many that collusion has existed between the paving contractors and some city officials, whereby the property owners have been forced to pay from two to three times as much as would be a fair assessment."

RAID ON GARAGE UNCOVERS PARTS OF STOLEN CARS

Four youths, who were arrested yesterday afternoon in a stolen automobile, gave the police information which resulted last night in a raid on a small garage at 625 South May street and seizure of automobile parts valued at more than $1,200. The parts were obtained by the garage, according to police, from cars which had been stolen in loop streets and dismantled.

Those under arrest are Patsy Marciano, 1119 West Harrison street; Samuel Pinna, 736 South Racine avenue; August Consalazio, 1152 West Harrison street, and Joseph Rocco, 1519 Flournoy street.

They were pursued, fired on, and captured by Detective Sergeants Daniel Kenny and Daniel Moriarity, who had seen them taking an automobile at Wacker drive and Dearborn street.

Woman, Bitten by Pet Dog, Dies of Wounds and Shock

Mrs. Mary L. Watson, 48 years old, died at the Jackson Park hospital yesterday morning from wounds received Monday night when she was bitten by her pet bulldog in her home at 7328 Champlain avenue. The shock of the attack also contributed to her death, physicians said. The large English bull had been a pet in the home for five years. He became infuriated when his mistress took a bone from him and slashed her legs and body until a policeman shot the dog.

DEFICIT GROWS AS CHIEF WORRY FACING HOOVER

Meeting It Without Boost in Taxes Is Poser.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 27.—[Special.]—What he is going to do about the steadily mounting treasury deficit is causing President Hoover more concern than any other problem on his desk, according to the tidings from the inner circle at the White House.

ANDREW MELLON.

The deficit will be not far from one billion dollars for the fiscal year ending June 30, next, and bids fair to reach two billions by the time another year rolls around.

The short term borrowings of the treasury already aggregate more than two billions and additional borrowings are impending.

The country cannot continue indefinitely with an unbalanced budget. Unless a revival of prosperity increases the revenue from present sources of federal taxation it will be necessary eventually to increase present tax rates or extend present taxes to persons now exempt or impose new ones or perhaps do a little of all three.

Possibility of Tax Revision.

There has been discussion by the President and his advisers, it appears, of the possible revision of the tax schedule that would produce sufficient additional revenue to wipe out the deficit.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon favors a lowering of the income tax exemption, so as to extend the tax to thousands of persons of small income who now are exempt, and also favors new excise taxes. A federal tax on gasoline, if not on automobiles, seems to meet with more favor in the administration than any other proposal, and next to that a stamp tax on checks, drafts, and legal papers.

At present Mr. Hoover is concentrating on effecting economies in the 1932 budget, the compilation of which for presentation to the December session of congress is now in progress. He has got far enough with that project, however, to realize that the aggregate saving within the realm of possibility will scarcely nick the deficit.

Under the budget law the President is required, in the event of a deficit, to recommend to congress how it shall be met, whether by borrowing or by the laying of additional taxes. Mr. Hoover therefore will be compelled to reach a decision on his fiscal program by the time he presents the new budget in December.

Although fresh taxation has been discussed in cabinet councils, none of the administration leaders entertains any notion at present that Mr. Hoover will present a tax increase program in December. Republican leaders are unanimously of the opinion that it would be politically suicidal for him to take a step of that character on the eve of his canvass for another term in the White House. A tax increase might be abundantly justified, yet the psychological effect of such a move on the voters, not to mention the political advantage to be taken of it by the opposition party, invariably gives the leaders of the party in power the shivers to contemplate.

Hope for Business Upturn.

What the administration hopes is that the tide will have turned toward better times sufficiently by next December to lay the ghost of a tax raise. If business then should be pronouncedly on the upgrade the President would feel justified in taking the position that eventual increase of revenue from income and corporation taxes would produce a surplus to wipe out the deficit.

In any event, the advice of the Republican leaders to the President will be to go on borrowing to meet the deficit and to stave off any consideration of a tax increase until after the 1932 election.

The proposed gasoline tax has been brought forward more or less as an alternative to a restoration of a tax on automobiles which was repealed by the 1928 law, contrary to the advice of Secretary Mellon. The automobile tax brought in about 66 millions a year. Mr. Mellon warned that if it were repealed it could not be "reimposed in time of peace."

Argument for Gasoline Tax.

The argument in favor of a gasoline tax is much the same as that Mr. Mellon made for retention of the automobile tax. He pointed out to the ways and means committee that the federal government was subsidizing highway building to the extent of 75 millions a year, an amount since increased to 125 millions.

"These expenditures by the federal government," he said, "are for the direct and immediate benefit of automobile owners. They should make some contribution in return.

"There is another aspect of this situation deserving consideration from the standpoint of justice and fairness. The automobile is one of the railroads' chief competitors. Our railroads are paying heavy taxes to the United States government, a part of which is being used for highway purposes. The revenue act of 1926 materially reduced the tax on automobiles designed for the transportation of passengers and repealed the tax on trucks and accessories.

"Is it quite fair to ask the railroads to contribute to the construction and maintenance of the roads on which their rivals operate while exempting the latter from any contribution?"

Tax Boost Criticized.

About the only support of an immediate tax boost emanates from the left wing Republicans and Democrats, who would not be noticeably desolated by any ill effect it might have on the political prospects of the party in power. The conservative Democrats, also with an eye on the voters in the presidential election, have no more stomach for the proposition than the administration Republicans.

Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], ranking minority member of the senate finance committee, criticized Secretary Mellon today for the suggestion of a tax boost contained in his address last Saturday.

"The American people," he said, "are in no position to pay increased taxes and it is not a proper time for congress to formulate a permanent tax policy."

PROPOSE $2,500 TAX EXEMPTION FOR PERSONALTY

Aldermen Advance Plan as Relief Measure.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The city council yesterday offered a new remedy for the tax ailments of the local governments. It proposed a new law to exempt every owner from paying taxes on his first $2,500 worth of personal property.

Mayor Cermak from the rostrum characterized the action as "indiscreet." Ald. Thomas P. Keane [34th], who is a former legislator, told the council before it voted that such a proposal would be "offensive" to citizens downstate. Ald. James B. Waller [43d] and Ald. John A. Massen [48th] questioned the constitutionality of such an exemption.

Corporation Counsel Busch told the council that if $2,500 worth of personal property is exempted it would be necessary to exempt the first $2,500 worth of real estate for each owner and even then the constitutionality of such exemptions would be debatable.

But the action was taken on motion of Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the finance committee. He was supported by Ald. O. F. Nelson [46th], floor leader for the late administration, who suggested at first that all household furniture be exempted.

"If the legislature adopts the council recommendation," said Ald. Keane later, "and we collect the same amount of taxes in the same way taxes on real estate must necessarily be increased.

"Exempting $2,500 of personal property will cancel two-thirds—on a guess—of the personal property tax bills downstate and 40 per cent in Chicago. It would possibly toss aside $30,000,000 or $35,000,000 in taxes now collected; and if we collect the same amount in taxes that exemption on personal property will be added to real estate.

"Instead of relieving real estate, as the council desired, the effect of the action is to increase the tax burden on homes and other real estate."

Busch Makes Report.

The Clark motion came on a report by Corporation Counsel Busch that he had prepared a bill, requested by State Representative Michael L. Igoe, which would require every one to file a personal property schedule, fully itemized, under penalty of $500 fine and six months in jail. The proposed law would punish false statements in such schedules as perjury. On motion of Ald. Wiley Mills [37th] the plan was referred to a committee.

Ald. Clark had the motion reconsidered and then moved to approve of the bill with the amendment for exempting $2,500 of personal property from tax.

"There are 400,000 unemployed in Chicago and three and four families are housed in one flat," argued Ald. Nelson. "I cannot indorse a bill to put a penalty on laboring people for failure to file a schedule."

"You cannot accomplish more under this bill than under the existing personal property tax law," said Ald. Frank J. Corr [17th]. "The maker of a schedule at present is required to sign an affidavit, and if it is false he can be prosecuted for perjury."

Aldermen Debate Bill.

"If the flagrant cases were prosecuted at present there would be an improvement in personal property tax payments," said Ald. Waller. "This bill would give a premium to perjurers and place a penalty on honest makers of schedules. Is it constitutional?"

"I've heard the sort of speech made by Ald. Waller as long as I can remember," said Ald. Clark. "It has been made by men who desire to evade personal property taxes. We should go after the millions and millions in safety deposit boxes."

"If you can exempt $2,500," said Ald. Massen, "you can exempt $5,000, and if $5,000, then you can exempt $50,000. I do not think that the constitution permits it."

Mayor Calls a Halt.

"You have discussed this bill for an hour," finally said Mayor Cermak, "and we are not getting anywhere. But we are going on paying $1,000,000 a month in interest on tax warrants."

"Let's be honest," said Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th], just before the debate ended. "This exemption proposal is an idle gesture."

Ald. Waller offered a resolution proposing that indorsement be given to legislation to issue bonds to redeem outstanding tax warrants, cut the penalty on real estate to one-half of one per cent a month and extend the date of forfeiture and tax sale of real estate for taxes.

FIGHT FOR GOOD TIMES, PLEA OF STATE BANKERS

Convention Closes with Call for Courage.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Courage and hard work and the continued spur of competition, rather than reproaching, blaming others, and leaning on the government for money or new regulations.

E. C. STEPHENSON.

This is the atmosphere, touched with a conservative optimism toward the future, in which the Illinois Bankers' association met in the closing sessions of their forty-first annual convention at the Edgewater Beach hotel yesterday.

"We could not have gone on the way we were traveling two or three years ago," said Rome C. Stephenson of South Bend, president of the American Bankers' association. "All will agree that the ride has been rough and we have struck many air pockets, but it has been a chastening influence and we are glad to get back again on firm foundations.

Sees a Greater Prosperity.

"America will go ahead and we will have a greater prosperity in industry and agriculture than ever before.

"The bankers do not want to see wages reduced. We should deny that emphatically. Some one in Washington seems to be disposed to trace this movement to the bankers. The bankers realize that in order to have prosperity wages must remain on a high plane. They should be as high as activities will bear. The only question is whether they can be maintained under present economic conditions.

"No banker is proud of the record of the last ten years, when he looks at the banks that have failed. But it cannot be attributed solely to poor management. Four thousand small communities have failed, too, because the hard roads swept business away from them.

For Improvements Within.

"Improvements should be made from within the banking business. The protective department has worked out a plan that will make banks bandit proof. Most failures came because the banks did not have strong secondary reserves.

"The same sound policies that kept the vast majority of the banks in the country strong and prosperous should be made to prevail in every bank. The job of getting good bank management into all banks is the job of organized banking.

"The finest kind of unemployment insurance is a savings account. If all industrial workers had set aside one-sixth of their earnings there would have been no trouble whatever."

R. Arthur Wood, president of the Chicago Stock exchange, said that banker, broker, artisan and farmer are all bound together for good or ill.

"There is no trade or industry that can prosper when others suffer," he said, "and we are seeing every day that there are really no depression proof industries.

"We have heard many speeches seeking to diagnose the current depression. Generally the blame has been put on excessive speculation, and with that I agree. But I cannot pass unchallenged the most general accusation that speculation in the securities market was the prime cause of the depression.

"There were warnings in plenty that trading in securities had reached a dangerous volume and that prices had reached perilous heights. I know that many reputable brokers warned their customers of the dangers of the securities market.

"Is there any thoughtful banker or student of economics who will assert that the securities markets were the only medium for speculation? How about that other noble experiment of our national government in stabilization of grain and cotton prices?

"How about the vast growth in the use of so called consumer credit, more familiarly known as installment buying? Wasn't it an artificial demand that couldn't continue indefinitely? Wasn't all this business speculation supported by manufacturers, merchants, bankers, and investors?

"Isn't it better to confess frankly that we are all to blame? I have faith in the courage and intelligence of the American people to move forward, just as they have in the past, to a great destiny.

"I do not believe that we need to tear down our vast and wonderful structure merely to remedy its defects. We can replace the faulty parts of our economic machine as we develop better parts. But the machine must go on."

Speaks Against Bureaucracy.

Merle Thorpe, banker and editor of Washington, D. C., spoke in defense of American individualism and for the defeat of bureaucracy.

"Progress is from the bottom up, not from the top down," he said. "Our economic and political freedom is slowly being whittled away. Paternalism is abroad in the land, thoroughly articulate, looking to government as the source of all blessings.

"The present depression is stupid and inexcusable. For the last ten years we have leaned too heavily on government. The American people should know that there is no Santa Claus in government. Today one family in twelve is on the tax pay roll. Last year 60 million pamphlets came out of the government printing plant. We have felt the bureaucratic impact in all forms of business.

"It is high time some one should sing the glories of competition. Eternal adaptability is the price of survival. Change and competition give the opportunity to the new generations. The oyster does not worry about competition but the eagle is still our national emblem."

The association adopted resolutions favoring the organization of regional clearing house associations and recommending the establishment of an individual state banking department, separate from the auditor's office, "with an appointed head free from all possible political entanglements."

Opposition to the plan for trade area branch banking was reaffirmed, as was that to any measure having for its purpose the granting of branch banking privileges to Illinois state banks. It was declared that state autonomy in respect to banking laws should remain inviolate.

Paul S. Abt of East St. Louis was elected president of the association, and Paul Zimmerman of Oak Park vice president. M. A. Graettinger remains executive vice president.

NEW WITNESSES QUESTIONED IN 4 POISON DEATHS

Mrs. Summers' Case to Grand Jury Tomorrow.

Assistant State's Attorneys E. A. Ferrari and C. Wayland Brooks, after examining new witnesses yesterday, stated that they expect to go before the grand jury tomorrow and present evidence against Mrs. Margaret Summers, 45 years old, 633 West North avenue, charged by a coroner's jury with the murder of her husband, her nephew, and two roomers in her home.

C. WAYLAND BROOKS.

Mrs. Summers, who is in the county jail, persuaded her victims to take out insurance with herself as beneficiary, it is charged, often making payments herself, and then killed them with arsenic.

While the prosecutors were preparing evidence on the four deaths for the grand jury they were also investigating a fifth death, that of Louis Meyers, a brother of Mrs. Summers. Meyers died on Aug. 1, 1928, in the county hospital.

The authorities were inclined to disparage reports that the death of John A. Meyers, another brother, thought to be of St. Louis, was under suspicion.

The four whose deaths were found by chemists' tests to have been caused by arsenic poisoning were: Thomas Meyers, 17 years old, son of Louis Meyers; Thomas Summers, Mrs. Summers' second husband, and the two roomers, Thomas Lanagan and William Reenan.

Robert Baker, 50 years old, 1518 Cleveland avenue, formerly a fireman but now a peddler, who lived at the Summers home four years ago, and Samuel Strauss, 24 years old, a cab driver who rooms at the Summers home now, were questioned by Mr. Brooks yesterday.

"Mrs. Summers asked me to take out some insurance," Baker said. "I told her I had no money. She said she would make the payments, so I signed a paper."

Strauss said that he drives a cab operating under the Chicago Cab company and owned by Mrs. Summers. He was described as her "sweetheart" by investigators. Strauss said he had signed one insurance policy.

The prosecutors said they have discovered that 19 insurance policies totaling $9,028 have been issued by one company, payable to Mrs. Summers.

These policies insured the lives of ten persons, five of whom are dead. Those still living are Baker, Mrs. Margaret Ritti, 1144 Orleans street, adopted daughter of Mrs. Summers, and Mrs. Ritti's three children. Mrs. Summers has collected approximately $6,700 in insurance.

MAN, 55, IS ALLOWED 90 YEARS TO PAY UP BACK ALIMONY DUE

Daniel Beebe, 55 years old, was given 90 years in which to pay up his arrears in alimony in an order entered yesterday by Superior Judge John J. Sullivan. Beebe owed $24,000, and the court ruled that he could pay it up at the rate of $5 a week.

DANIEL BEEBE.

Beebe was given other cause for cheer after he told the judge that he was now broke, although formerly wealthy. When Mrs. Etta Marker Beebe, 717 Washington boulevard, Oak Park, divorced him in 1924 he made a $50,000 settlement on her, and agreed to pay $600 a month alimony. The $600 was cut to $30 monthly by Judge Sullivan.

Beebe is now remarried and lives at 1625 South Berwyn avenue. His former wife had him arrested and jailed last Christmas eve but his present wife bailed him out.

JACK M'GURN'S LOVE LETTERS READ IN COURT

Love letters written by Jack McGurn and his present wife, the former Louise Rolfe, were read yesterday in Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley's courtroom, where the two are on trial for conspiracy to violate the Mann act.

McGurn's attorneys objected to reading of the letters, but the judge finally ruled that they were material evidence. McGurn and Miss Rolfe were married some time ago in an effort to defeat the Mann act charge, but the government, proceeding on a general policy of harassing gangsters, insisted on going ahead with the case.

The government has one more witness who will testify this morning. Several witnesses yesterday testified that McGurn and Miss Rolfe had traveled to and from Florida and Mississippi throughout 1929.

FIRE BLOCKS TRAFFIC.

Traffic was blocked for half an hour yesterday when flames attacked a building at 1431 East 53d street, causing damage of $2,000.

FIND FOURNIER, BROKER, GUILTY OF MAIL FRAUD

Arthur J. Fournier, former head of a La Salle street brokerage concern bearing his name, was found guilty yesterday of using the mails to defraud. A jury in Federal Judge John P. Barnes' court returned the verdict in 30 minutes. Fournier faces a maximum sentence of five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine on each of three counts. A motion for a new trial was made by Attorney John Elliott Byrne and was set for hearing on June 5.

According to Assistant United States Attorney Joseph A. Struett, Fournier solicited investments over the long distance telephone and, having obtained a customer, would let him make a small profit and then induce him to buy unlisted stocks. The government alleged that Fournier had defrauded between 75 and 100 investors of amounts aggregating $100,000 in a period of less than one year.

JOE HUSZAR, ONCE TERROR OF ROADS, SEIZED IN WEST

Ex-Broadview Chief Faces Joliet Cell.

Indian Joe Huszar, once the chief of police of Broadview and the terror of the roads of western suburbs, was under arrest yesterday in Pueblo, Colo., according to a telegram received by Assistant State's Attorney Q. J. Chott. Huszar is under sentence of 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary for assault with intent to kill and because he abandoned his appeal will be taken directly to Joliet upon his return to this state, Mr. Chott said.

The fugitive was hiding in a closet when detectives found him. When brought to the police station he introduced himself as "Chief Huszar, the man who cleaned up Broadview," and he was indignant over his arrest. He then stated that after leaving Broadview he worked in the Kansas harvest fields before reaching Pueblo.

Chief Huszar became notorious as the operator of a speed trap on Roosevelt road outside the city limits which, according to testimony, brought $500 a month in court costs alone to Justice of the Peace Edward J. Wareham, before whom Huszar brought all the prisoners he accused of speeding. This was exclusive of fines.

Faced Many Charges.

When officials of the Chicago Motor club brought about the arrest and indictment of Huszar and Wareham there were hundreds of complainants who told of acts of terrorism by Indian Joe.

Dozens of criminal charges were made against Huszar, including robbery with a gun. He was indicted on four charges.

The village of Broadview fired him as police chief, but he was still an elected constable and he continued harassing and abusing motorists, according to many complaints. The defendants said they were usually fined whatever amount of cash they had with them. Several stories were told of Indian Joe's avarice and how he held persons as hostages while others of the motoring party were sent for money with which to appease his anger.

Couple Seized on Road.

The specific charge on which Huszar was convicted was brought by John H. Schrieffer, 1147 Gunderson avenue, Oak Park, and his wife, Louise. They were arrested Sept. 27, 1925, when they drove their car off the road and stopped to eat popcorn. Huszar took them to the station and demanded $22 in cash for bail. Schrieffer protested he had done nothing wrong, he testified, whereupon Huszar drew a revolver and threatened to kill him if the money was not forthcoming. After manhandling and abusing the couple, calling them vile names, Huszar obtained the $22 and told them not to come back for trial or they would receive unfavorable publicity in the newspapers. They didn't return.

Then Indian Joe disappeared. His wife said she knew he had fled with Mrs. Martha Schenck, who was arrested with him previously at Geneva.

KID WEIL REASSURES HIS ACCUSER; TOLD HE'LL DO WORRYING

Decatur, Ill., May 27.—(AP)—Joseph [Yellow Kid] Weil today reassured the man who had him arrested on a confidence charge:

"Don't worry," he said to Walter Danzeisen, who charges that the Kid bilked him. "Everything will come out all right."

"I should worry," said Danzeisen. "You're the one that has the worrying to do."

Weil and his companion, Fred Buckminster, were up in court to answer indictments. They succeeded in getting their bonds reduced from $12,000 to $3,000 each and pleaded not guilty. The date for the trial will be set later.

WARREN WRIGHT DEFENDS STAR CARRIED ON AUTO

BY HAL FOUST.

Warren Wright, president of the Lincoln park board, yesterday discussed the "I gotta drag" stars from the viewpoint of the man who owns one.

"The star on my car," he said, "is an emblem of my office as president of the Lincoln park board. It is an honor that accompanies this appointment from the governor of the state of Illinois.

"Furthermore, the star has a practical use. It would enable me to drive through police or fire lines if my duties should require me to do so.

No Respect from Public.

"Of course, with everybody and his uncle wearing some kind of a star on his automobile, the emblem no longer carries a mark of distinction. I don't think it gives me any courtesies in traffic, unless it's from the Lincoln park police. The public, I'm sure, no longer respects a star on a car. No, I don't have a siren."

In a drive around the city a reporter took the state license numbers of a few of the members of the "I gotta drag" club. An emblem reading "City Prosecutor's Office—Personal Staff" was attached to a car parked at Ogden and North avenues. The license, 16-440, was issued to Vincent Ferrara, 5407 Glenwood avenue.

Parked on the sidewalk at Ogden and Clybourn avenues was an automobile with one of the world's fair stars which have been disclaimed by the world's fair committee. The license number was 589-811, issued to Herbert Schulz, 1487 Clybourn avenue.

Parked at Ogden avenue and Clark street, with the rear bumper sticking over a pedestrian path, was a car with the two right wheels over the curb bearing another of these discredited world's fair emblems. The license number was 622-543, issued to Glen Newkirk, 2105 North Clark street.

On Division street, with the rear bumper sticking across the Hickory avenue crosswalk, was an automobile with a "city official of Chicago" star. The license, 806-406, was issued to Oliver J. Evans, 5072 North Winchester avenue.

More "World Fair" Stars.

Parked opposite a street car loading platform in the 5400 block of West Madison street was a machine with license 545-314, which was issued to Philip Guagenti, Fosgate hotel, Elgin, Ill. It carried one of the world's fair stars. Another of these unauthorized emblems was on a car parked in the 4000 block of Madison street, with license 23-476 issued to Mrs. H. W. Glantz, 59 North Menard avenue.

Council Approves County Ban on Fireworks Sale

Upon the recommendation of the committee on health, the city council yesterday approved a resolution requesting the board of county commissioners to prohibit the sale of fireworks in Cook county outside of Chicago. The sale of fireworks in Chicago has been prohibited for a number of years, but because they have been sold outside the city limits, according to Ald. Terence P. Moran [16th], health committee chairman, the city act has been virtually nullified in its effect.

A FAIR HORIZON

Within a small box on a shelf in our hosiery department there now lies a pair of silk stockings, neatly folded. They are especially fine silk stockings. Brilliant and long fibres were skillfully fabricated that they might have truly outstanding quality. An achievement in manufacturing art! And yet their price today is very low.

Hosiery, like a thousand other things, has stepped down from a pedestal.

Silk is no longer worth its weight in gold. Improved methods of weaving in great volume have lowered costs. And in this time of stress a dollar has exceptional buying power for us, as it has for our customers.

There is no secret or trick in the low price-range of today.

That particular pair of silk stockings is probably one of the finest pieces of merchandise that has ever been procurable at so low a price. And its kindred thousands are equally interesting.

There is promise of better things to come for America in this bottom-price market.

This store does not compromise with quality. Every manufacturer knows that its buying standards are top-level. Seconds and below-grade merchandise are outside its horizon. If silk stockings or mattresses, bathroom rugs or bedroom furniture, range low in price here today, there is never any compromise with quality.

REDS STIR RIOT IN SPAIN; CIVIL GUARDS KILL 6

Martial Law Clamped on San Sebastian.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, May 27.—Communist agitators preached their brand of violence to Basque fishermen in the San Sebastian region, and tonight six of these lusty salts are dead and twenty-five lie with bullets of the civil guards distributed through their persons. Martial law has been clamped tight in what was Spain's summer capital. The wounded include one woman.

There were only forty communists among thousands of fishermen who worked out of the Basque port on the Bay of Biscay, but they turned the trick. They incited a mob from Pasages, the port from where Basque whalers sailed in the old days and from where Lafayette took ship for America.

Marching 2,000 strong with women and children in front, the agitators bringing up the rear, they got by the troops with fixed bayonets and then met the civil guards. Breaking the old tradition, these grim guardians of the peace fired once into the air and then three volleys straight into the mob. Two were killed and the others met death in later clashes.

Troops Guard Street Cars.

Troops are guarding street cars in San Sebastian, and although shutters on shops were rattled down at the news of the shooting, the city was quiet tonight.

The government is using a strong hand, not only to keep order but to settle the fishermen's strike, which is on the point of spreading to other points. The salts are asking Sundays off and more wages.

Four days were given to both the men and employers to arbitrate, with the government's help if it is desired, or find themselves declared "enemies of the republic." Efforts of the communists and the committee of the San Sebastian union to declare a general strike failed.

Increase Paper Currency.

Chiefly to meet a currency shortage caused by the withdrawal of funds from the banks and the tightening of credit, the minister of justice today announced that paper circulation would be increased to "proportions which are indispensable." A limit of six billion pesetas [$600,000,000] has been set by law. He did this, he said, with the unanimous approval of the superior banking council. It was stated that the country can issue 800,000,000 more pesetas [$80,000,000] before being menaced with actual inflation. At a recent cabinet meeting Indalecio Prieto said:

"If more circulation is required in a pinch there is always that Spanish gold reserve."

It is estimated that at least $80,000,000 have been taken from the banks and either interred in the old sock or smuggled out of the country in the last week. Measures at the border to prevent money from leaving the country have been redoubled.

MYERS RE-ELECTED AS PRESIDENT OF THE SCHOOL BOARD

Lewis E. Myers was unanimously reelected president of the school board yesterday and pledges of coöperation with the administration of Mayor Cermak were made by the school trustees. Mr. Myers was nominated by Trustee James A. Hemingway, head of the finance committee, who assured his fellow trustees that the recent dispute with the administration had been removed through President Myers' efforts.

LEWIS E. MYERS.

Oscar Durante, editor of L'Italia, Italian language newspaper, was elected vice president of the board after Walter H. Brandenburg, who had held the post for three years, declined the nomination. Mr. Durante was chairman of the school administration committee. He has served on the board four years.

President Myers announced that he contemplated changes in the personnel of the board committees, probably with a shift in two chairmanships. He returned for the meeting from Springfield, where he obtained the promise of state officials of a payment of $250,000 owed to the board for its crippled children's welfare work.

Earthquake Shakes West Mexico for Half an Hour

Telegraph communications with the town have been interrupted, but the disturbances occurred, and no report has been received as to casualties or damage.

TWO GIRLS AND MAN BURNED TO DEATH IN CRASH

Car Overturns and Bursts Into Flames.

Marengo, Ill., May 27.—[Special.]—Two young women and a man were burned to death this evening when an automobile in which they were riding overturned as it struck a culvert five miles north of Marengo on state highway No. 23.

The victims, all resident of De Kalb, were:

MRS. DONALD KENDALL, 17 years old.
MRS. RAOUL CHIPLESS, 19 years old.
WILLIAM SHALAKES, 28 years old.

A fourth member of the party, Mrs. Mary Vitkus of De Kalb, mother of Mrs. Kendall, was hurled out of the automobile when it overturned. She was found wandering in a field near by a short time after the accident occurred and was taken to a hospital in Harvard, Ill. There it was said she had received no burns and would recover.

The party had left De Kalb to drive to Williams Bay, Wis., where the husband of Mrs. Vitkus operates a gasoline filling station. Mrs. Kendall was driving when a tire exploded and she lost control of the car.

Apparently the gasoline in the car tank exploded at once and burned the young women and Shalakes before they could get out. The car was consumed by the fire.

MOTORIST KILLS WOMAN, 74, AND DRIVES ON WAY

Six deaths caused by auto accidents raised the 1931 Cook county toll to 467 yesterday. The victims:

Killed early this morning when his automobile crashed through a detour barricade and into an excavation in Shermer road just north of Simpson street, about a mile south of Glenview. William Rubo, 28 years old, 1730 Lyons street, Evanston, who was riding with De Rock, was probably fatally injured. He was taken to the Des Plaines Emergency hospital. Both De Rock and Rubo were city truck drivers in Evanston. De Rock was the father of three children. Rubo has five children.

Peter Calato, 60 years old, 935 Larrabee street. Fatally injured when he turned his bicycle in front of an automobile driven by Daniel Vigenelli, 17 years old, 653 Rees street, in Oak street. He died at the Henrotin hospital.

Garvey then fled with two companions who had accompanied him.

FARMERS BUYING ON 1916 BASIS, SURVEY REVEALS

Costs Drop as Income Is Reduced.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Not only have prices of farm commodities dropped back to the low levels of 1915 and 1916 in recent weeks, but the prices farmers pay for things they buy, with but two exceptions, have likewise returned to 1916 levels.

This was disclosed yesterday in a study of market levels, as recorded by the United States department of agriculture, in which it was found that prices received by farmers for their products last month were 80 per cent of the five year average between 1909 and 1914. The prices paid by farmers for what they bought in March were 136 per cent of the price for the 1909-'14 period, the lowest since 1916, and showing a decline from the high point of 206 reached in 1920.

The two items in farm expense that are exceptions to the general reduction, the study divulged, are taxes and farm machinery. The federal statisticians report a steady rise in farm taxes from an index figure of 100 in 1914 to an index of 267 for 1929, the last year for which revenue figures are available. The index of machinery for 1930 was 159, compared with 101 in 1910 and the high point of 188 in 1920.

Grain and Cotton Low.

Grains and cotton have sunk to the lowest levels of the six major crop groups on which nation-wide price indices have been kept by federal economists since 1909. In March the grain index stood at 74, compared with 100 for the five year average of 1909-'14, and cotton at 80.

Fruits and vegetables in March stood at 109, meat animals at 106, and dairy products at 101. These are the three farm products groups maintaining the most favorable position in the agricultural picture. Poultry products were 93 per cent of the pre-war average.

In recent weeks meat products, particularly pork, have shown further recession. Corn, eggs, live poultry, butter, and potatoes also have reached lower price levels than since 1915. Some upturn is recorded for eggs and poultry since May 5, when, many believe, the lowest point in poultry prices were seen, and butter values, upon which all other dairy prices are based, have been firm for a month.

Cotton, with its further decline in value yesterday, has averaged about 1½ cents a pound lower than the March average, which is expected to lower its price index for May to 70, while corn, being lower, will also cause a drop in grain index levels to about 73.

Not since 1919 have the prices received by farmers been equal to the prices paid by them. At present the ratio of prices received to prices paid is only 67 on the basis of 100, according to the federal economists.

Farm wages, a large item in farm expense, are reported by state and national statisticians to be the lowest since 1917. Based on the five year pre-war average of 100, the index of rural wages was 150 last October, the same point they reached in 1921, and in January, 1931, was 129, with further declines reported in recent weeks.

See Land at Lowest Price.

"It is the belief of farmers that the low point has been reached in farm land values," reports J. H. Peters, federal statistician at Des Moines, Ia., in recording an average value of $110 per acre for well improved Iowa land on March 1. He reports increased turnover of ownership this spring as evidence of his contention.

"Indiana farmers are making unusual efforts to produce a low cost crop," reports Miner M. Justin, federal economist for Indiana, at Lafayette. "An unusual demand for places to live on farms from men thrown out of city employment is evident."

"The general effort of farmers," says the Washington office of the bureau of agricultural economics, "is to go ahead with a program of production that is about normal."

KANSAS CITY TO BUILD HALL AS CONVENTION BAIT

Kansas City, Mo., May 27.—(AP)—Kansas City started today a race with time to complete a 4½ million dollar convention hall in the hope of obtaining the 1932 Democratic national convention.

Only yesterday the voters, 3½ to 1, approved a bond issue of $39,950,000 for a ten year program of improvements, including the convention hall to replace one hastily erected for the Democratic convention of 1900 which nominated William Jennings Bryan. President Hoover was nominated in the same hall in 1928.

Moving swiftly today, the city made its first move toward purchasing a site in the block adjacent to the present structure.

Conrad H. Mann, president of the chamber of commerce, addressed a telegram to Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic executive committee, advising him of the successful bond election and asking him to direct the attention of the members of the national committee to Kansas City's most urgent invitation to hold the 1932 convention here.

Deputy and Neighbor Kill Each Other in Gun Duel

Erwin, Tenn., May 27.—(AP)—Deputy Sheriff Frank Harris, of Unicoi county, and Mert Ingram, a neighbor, were shot to death near here early today. Sheriff W. M. Buckner said it was apparent Harris and Ingram engaged in a gun battle, although he has not determined their motive.

SKIPPER IS SHOT BY COAST GUARD IN BOOZE CHASE

New London, Conn., May 27.—[Special.]—The skipper of the speedboat Java was shot, two members of the crew arrested and 300 cases of whiskies and cordials seized by a coast guard patrol boat near here today after a chase in Long Island sound. The wounded man gave his name as Harry Barber and said his home was in Oradell, N. J.

The rum hunter was cruising near Plum island when it encountered the fleet motor launch Java, listed as a rum carrier. The Java was hailed and immediately wheeled and opened up its two powerful motors. The patrol boat set out after it, pouring one pounder and machine gun fire at the stern of the fleeing speedboat.

When the skipper was wounded the Java, a previously uncaptured ship, slowed down and was herded in toward New London. The wounded man was taken to a hospital, where it was said he was not seriously injured.

It had been two months since a capture had been made in the vicinity of New London and the arrival of the bullet-scarred speedboat and its crew caused considerable excitement in the harbor.

Deny Policeman's Right to "Help Himself"; Fire Him

Palo Alto, Cal., May 27.—(AP)—Police Sergeant Percy Farnell was dismissed from the department today because he was accused of "accepting gifts of groceries and merchandise and helping himself to delicacies visible on delivery wagons."

RAIL EXECUTIVE TESTIFIES IN SECURITY CASE

Henry W. Beyers, vice president in charge of traffic of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad, was the principal witness yesterday in a hearing before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward on an application by the government for an injunction to restrain the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad from issuing securities without approval by the interstate commerce commission.

Under questioning of Special Assistant United States Attorney Elmer B. Collins, Beyers testified that the North Shore line is in direct competition with his railroad in both passenger and freight traffic and therefore is in interstate commerce competition.

TEXAS MOVES TO END LICENSE OF GOAT GLAND DOC

Dallas, Tex., May 27.—(AP)—Suit to revoke the Texas medical practice license of Dr. John R. Brinkley, "goat gland specialist," formerly of Milford, Kan., was filed in District court here today by District Attorney William McCraw.

The complaint charged Brinkley with fraud and deception of the public through the advertisement and performance of gland operations for "rejuvenation."

Brinkley was reported to be in Del Rio, Tex., where he announced recently plans for building and operating an $80,000 watt radio broadcasting station at Villa Acuna, Mexico, under a license obtained from the Mexican government.

GAMBLING ISSUE RAISED BY RAIDS IN CAPITAL CITY

Nearly 200 Are Rounded Up in Five Places.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 27.—[Special.]—Washington, suddenly turned crime conscious and cynical, indulged itself today in wondering why a detective's badge should be a passport to enter a gambling resort.

For the explanation of why no warrants were issued for yesterday's raids on five gambling houses was that none was needed. Four headquarters detectives, so police officials told the story today, walked in, found things running, called up the vice squad. The vice squad came, rounded up between 150 and 200 persons, and that was all.

Washington is also wondering how these gambling houses, which were seemingly easy to find when the time came, had hitherto been passed over. All were in the first or downtown precinct.

The circumstances brought to mind the recent statement of Harry N. Douthitt, editor of the police journal known as the Blue Coat, who said that things were "being kept cool for gamblers in the first precinct by a $30,000 a month ice bill." Douthitt's charge was made after he had been severely beaten by two assailants who visited him in his apartment.

Still a third cause for speculation was the admission today by Capt. Frank S. W. Burke, first precinct commander, that "about a hundred more" illegal resorts are running in his district. Capt. Burke issued an opening warning that they would soon be raided.

May Be New Weapon.

In the past, Capt. Burke pointed out, District Attorney Rover has insisted that police raid drinking and gambling places only when armed with warrants. But so far no protest about yesterday's foray has been heard from Mr. Rover and it is even understood that he is conducting a thorough investigation of the charges against the nine men held.

With a grand jury investigation into the internal difficulties of the International Union of Operating Engineers scheduled to begin tomorrow, headquarters detectives today began a search for a "mysterious stranger from Chicago" in connection with the gun attack a week ago today on three officers of the union.

The three officials were conducting an investigation into the alleged embezzlement of $36,000 by a former official who is now reported to be in Chicago. While detectives are convinced that the former official was in that city at the time of the shooting, they are now looking for another Chicagoan who they claim was seen in Washington the day before the affair and who apparently fled immediately afterward.

GOV. F. D. ROOSEVELT IS BACK FROM PARIS; SILENT ON POLITICS

New York, May 27.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt returned today aboard the North German Lloyd Bremen from a visit to his mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, in Paris.

In high spirits and excellent health the governor reported his mother was so much improved that he expected her to arrive here within two or three weeks.

Not a word would the governor utter on the subject of the forthcoming contest in the Democratic party for the nomination of President.

HOUSE REPORT BLAMES NO ONE FOR JOLIET RIOT

But Suggests Changes in Prison Rules.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 27.—[Cpecial.]—Little is wrong with Illinois penitentiaries — particularly Joliet and Stateville—in the opinion of five representatives who investigated the prison riots and returned their report to the house today. All concurred in the report.

ROGER F. LITTLE.

Warden Henry C. Hill of the Joliet - Stateville penitentiaries is a capable executive, the committee feels; the board of pardons and paroles is composed of exemplary individuals; the care of prisoners at Joliet is as it should be in the main; and the department of public welfare is alive to all the problems at the correctional institutions.

These are the commendations given by the personnel of the committee; Representatives Roger F. Little [Rep., Champaign], chairman; M. L. Igoe [Dem., Chicago], M. E. Bray [Dem., Litchfield], William G. Thon [Rep., Chicago] and Harry M. McCaskrin [Rep., Rock Island].

Other Side of Picture.

Shackling prisoners to their cell doors in solitary confinement should be done away with; the killing of three men who scaled the walls at Joliet last Feb. 22 should never have occurred; the parole board is perhaps unwieldy with its nine members.

The investigation began after the first of the riots had crystallized dissension among the convicts. It came shortly after the three men had been slain and Joseph Coakley, a Chicago prisoner, had died while cuffed to his cell. Mr. McCaskrin introduced a bill just after Coakley's death to eliminate the practice, and with the support of the committee behind it it is believed this measure will be approved.

The report calls attention to the bitterness displayed against the pardon board by the inmates at Joliet. The committee credits a supreme court decision with causing it—a ruling which insists that prisoners serving sentences of from ten years to life must serve the entire minimum before becoming eligible to parole.

Hundreds of prisoners had been released after serving slightly more than six years prior to the ruling and some 600 were left when the ruling was issued. These have been bitter against the board.

The killing of the three convicts was "unnecessary and could have been avoided," the report states.

Youth, 19, Takes Own Life; Note Blames Lack of Job

Harold Mau, 19 years old, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a revolver in the bathroom of his home at 2112 South 59th street, Cicero, last night. A note was found near the body, in which the youth attributed his act to despondency over lack of work. The body was found by his parents and sister when they returned home after being absent all day.

DECISION TODAY ON PROPOSAL TO IMPEACH HORTON

Committee Will Pass on Tennessee Case.

Nashville, Tenn., May 27.—(AP)—A legislative committee's recommendations tomorrow will determine whether Gov. Henry H. Horton will face impeachment proceedings on charges of allowing personal friends to dominate his actions in affairs of state.

A committee appointed in the lower house of the general assembly by Speaker Walter M. Haynes to study the report of another legislative committee that investigated the state's affairs was authorized to decide if a movement to impeach the chief executive was justified. Instructions specified that decision be made by Thursday.

Meanwhile, Col. Luke Lea, Nashville newspaper publisher and politician, whose association with the governor was a factor in the impeachment movement, was denounced on the senate floor today by Senator Hal Clements, an east Tennessee Republican, as "the greatest enemy Tennessee has ever known."

Soon after the financial upheaval, the legislature appointed the investigating committee and an inquiry that lasted four months was made into the affairs of state departments, the operations of the banks that failed and the reputed activities of Lea and Caldwell in having certain banks favored for the depositing of state funds.

CHICAGO'S WHOLESALE TRADE VOLUME IN '29 IS PUT AT 5 BILLIONS

Chicago's wholesale trade in the good old roaring days of 1929 reached an annual volume of $5,194,205,000, according to George W. Rossetter, chairman of the business research committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce. The figures were gathered in collaboration with the bureau of the census.

Stocks on hand in the wholesale establishments at the end of 1929 were valued at $307,421,000, indicating that stock turns were made seventeen times during the year.

The 1929 trade volume was 350 million dollars above that of 1926, although commodity price levels in the latter twelvemonth were 4 per cent under 1926 averages. Admission is made that the figures do not represent 1931 conditions, but it was asserted by Mr. Rossetter that Chicago still offers the best facilities for national coverage in distribution.

JAPANESE STRIKE FIZZLES; MIKADO O. K.'S WAGE CUTS

TOKIO, May 27.—(AP)—Agitation against a wage cut for 60,000 employés in all government departments apparently collapsed tonight, relieving fears that a railway strike would be called and spread to other industries throughout Japan.

Sanction by Emperor Hirohito of the cabinet's reduction of wages of government employés receiving more than ¥42.50 monthly appeared to have ended the opposition. The thrift order, effective June 1, cabinet officers said, would save the government ¥4,000,000 yearly.

The projected sympathetic strike of 216,000 railway workers, 9,000 of whom were affected by the wage cut, was forestalled by the arrest of 34 agitators. Nearly all officials decided to remain at work. Railways continued to run regularly, officials said, despite the walkout, believed temporary, of between 2,000 and 3,000 employés early today.

EX-WIFE CAUSES KARPEN'S ARREST AFTER SEVEN YRS.

Mrs. Edna Marie Karpen Gordon ended a seven year chase last night when she caused the arrest of her former husband, Benjamin Karpen, 33 years old, son of the late Isaac Karpen, one of the founders of the Karpen Furniture company.

"Not counting interest," said Mrs. Gordon in explaining the arrest, "Ben owes about $6,000 alimony."

It was in June, 1924, that she obtained a divorce before Judge Joseph Sabath. Alimony of $15 a week for the support of a son, Robert, was ordered. According to Karpen's former wife, he paid nothing. Since 1924 she has tried to have him arrested.

Yesterday, she said, Karpen telephoned her, proposing a reconciliation, despite the fact that he now has another wife. Mrs. Gordon arranged to meet her former husband at 9 o'clock last night at Randolph and Wells streets.

She met him—accompanied by Sergt. Robert Caulkins.

Holds Up Speakeasy; Slain in Hotel Lobby

New York, May 28 [Thursday].—[Special.] — Following an exciting chase through the early morning crowds on Broadway one of two unidentified holdup men who had just stolen $600 from an alleged speakeasy in West 48th street was shot and killed by a patrolman early today in the lobby of the Hotel St. James in 45th street. The dead man's accomplice escaped with the stolen money.

Delay Making Auto Tags to Consider New System

City Clerk Brady was directed by the city council yesterday not to enter into any contracts for the manufacture of city vehicle tags pending the decision of the city's revenue commission on the adoption of a theft proof insignia to replace the tags. Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th], sponsor of the order on the city clerk, stated that the revenue commission is considering replacing the old tags with a sticker that will be permanently fastened on the inside of the windshield.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, May 27.—Col. Alexander Prystor became premier of the new cabinet tonight. It is composed of all the ministers of the previous government with the exception of the ministers of commerce and finance. The finance portfolio was given to John Pilsudski, brother of Marshal Pilsudski, who remains as war minister. Gen. Ferdinand Zarzycki was made minister of commerce.

PERU TO ELECT NEW PRESIDENT NEXT SEPTEMBER

LIMA, Peru, May 27.—(AP)—The government today ordered a general election for president and members of the assembly for Sept. 13. The assembly would meet Oct. 25 for inauguration of the new president. The chief executive's term is fixed at five years and a president is not eligible for reelection. The government also ended martial law.

The government announced today that quiet had been restored in the oil fields of northern Peru following a serious clash between troops and workers at Negritos, near Talara, Sunday evening. The cruiser Grau sailed from Callao Sunday night bound for the north, but no official explanation of her movements was made.

ROTATING POWER IS STRONGER

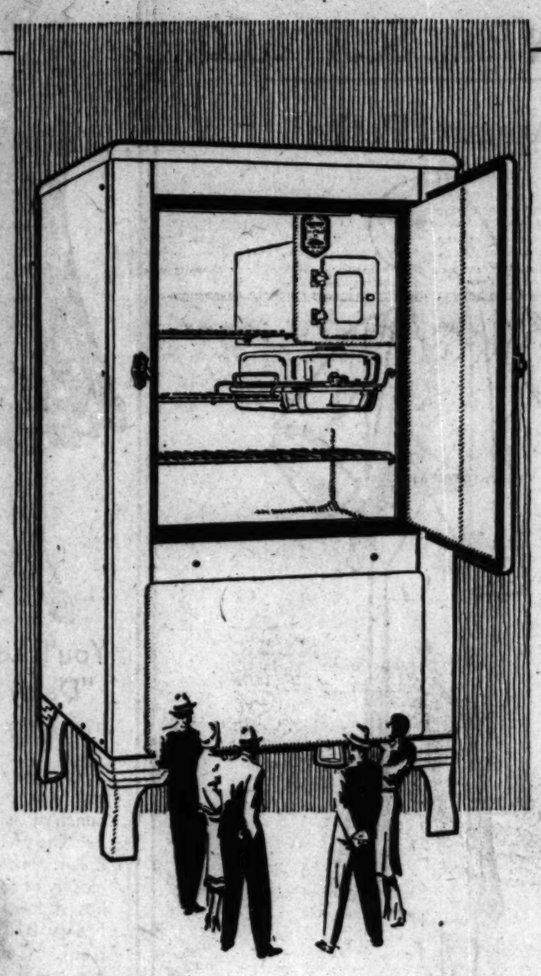
...SMOOTHER.... SIMPLER...



NORGE

ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR WITH THE ROLLATOR

With bodies simulating piston strokes, pull and heave on the oars, slaves sent galleys splashing through the water, to the accompaniment of clanking chain, creaking oarlock and cracking whip... that was old-time reciprocating power. Today steam turns rotary screw propellers and ocean liners slip smoothly, quietly, swiftly across the seas.

In Norge Refrigerator too, reciprocating power has been done away with. A rotary refrigerating mechanism, exclusive with Norge, the Rollator, gives unfaltering performance... compact, powerful and simple, it goes right on refrigerating and quickly freezing ice cubes, even in extremes of summer heat.

Besides the Rollator, Norge has 33 quality features that make it the refrigerator to meet today's requirements... see the Norge before you buy.

The Watervair keeps a full gallon of quickly chilled drinking water on tap. The Watervair is extra equipment.

REPORT JORDAN DROPS INSANITY AS HIS DEFENSE

Witnesses at Trial Tell of Police Killings.

An insanity defense for Frank Jordan, bank robber on trial for the murder of Policeman Anthony Ruthy, was reported to have been abandoned by the defendant's attorneys yesterday afternoon. Alienists who examined Jordan were said to have found him sane in the legal sense.

JUDGE PRYSTALSKI

A number of witnesses took the stand at yesterday's hearing and testified that they saw Jordan shoot the policeman. Judge John Prystalski ordered a night session of court in order that the case may be completed by tomorrow night.

Captor Takes Stand.

"Jordan was grappling with Policeman Durkin when Ruthy ran up," said Schaeblin. "Jordan jerked away and fired directly at Ruthy. The latter dropped. Then Jordan ran and I followed, tackling him at Washington street and Wabash avenue."

Policeman Patrick Enright, who was slightly wounded by Jordan in the shooting, was another witness. The state announced that only a few witnesses remained and that it would close its case by noon today.

Witnesses Tell of Shooting.

Eye witnesses to the murder who told of the shooting at Michigan avenue and Randolph street on April 30 included South Park Policeman Thomas Mortell, 3256 South Hoyne avenue; John Wisehart, 3144 Walnut street; Walter Fogh, 6318 Kenwood avenue; Paul Bolger, 8805 South Elizabeth street, and Edmond Loughran, 5903 Glenwood avenue.

Loughran, a bus starter stationed at the corner, said he saw Policeman Patrick Durkin put Jordan under arrest. Suddenly, there was a scuffle, he said, and both Durkin and Jordan rolled on the sidewalk. Shots were fired and Policeman Ruthy came running, only to be met by a bullet fired by Jordan, according to Loughran.

Meet Attack on Warrant.

The state met the defense attack upon the warrant issued for Jordan's arrest by putting on a number of witnesses to prove the legality of the warrant. W. H. Whaples, official of the State bank at Neponset, Ill., testified that he asked for the warrant after picking Jordan's picture as that of the bandit who robbed the bank of $4,400.

OTIS GLENN DEMANDS FACTOR'S 'RIGHTS' BE GIVEN CONSIDERATION

Senator Otis F. Glenn, chief of counsel for John [Jake the Barber] Factor, who is demanded by England as a master swindler, addressed himself to United States Commissioner Walker yesterday in a plea for his client's "constitutional rights."

JAKE FACTOR.

"This man is a human being, the son of a Jewish rabbi, a former barber, if you please, and he has the right to know what he is charged with so he can meet that charge," said the senator.

"There is a disposition here to laugh at constitutional rights. Counsel for his royal imperial Britannic majesty says that he can be charged under all kinds of statutes, but he hasn't said what the crime is."

Attorney Franklin Overmyer, the crown lawyer, declared that the specific charge is obtaining $2,242,000 by fraud, and quoted the United States Supreme court to the effect that this is a crime in Illinois, a point necessary for extradition.

Depositions read yesterday set forth that the taking of Factor's fake stock selling company, Broad Street Press, Ltd., was $8,114,630 during 1930.

REPORT SECRET MILITARY PACT TO SEIZE VIENNA

BUDAPEST, Hungary, May 27.—(AP)—The newspaper Magyarsag said tonight that the chiefs of staff of the little entente countries today signed a secret military treaty of defense at Bucharest, under the terms of which Czecho-Slovakia was assigned the task of occupying Vienna with troops in the event that the Austro-German customs accord is put into effect.

Germany, Hungary Work on Pact.

BERLIN, May 27.—(AP)—Representatives of Germany and Hungary today started negotiations for a German-Hungarian trade treaty. Preliminary work toward the agreement was done last November when Count Stephan Bethlen visited Berlin.

At the foreign office it was stated that "for the present" these discussions have nothing to do with the idea of a customs union.

Aldermen Consider Demand on Phone Co. for Cash

The city council yesterday referred to its committee on gas, oil, and electricity the request of Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady [14th] that city officials make immediate demands upon the Illinois Bell Telephone company for the payment of $4,207,696 due the city as compensation for the company's use of city streets.

RAILROADS FIGHT AIR LINES FOR ILLINOIS TRAFFIC

Issue Raised in Hearing Before State Board.

A three cornered traffic fight, with railroads, bus lines, and rival airway lines competing for passenger and freight business between Chicago and St. Louis, started yesterday when the Illinois commerce commission held its first hearing of the petition of the Century Air Lines for a certificate of convenience and necessity.

Acceptance of the petition by the commission was the first indication that it would be willing to take jurisdiction over air traffic. The chief competitor of the Century Lines, the American Airways, Inc., filed a petition requesting the identical route, soon after filing of the petition by the Century lines. The American Airways now has the mail contract for the route in question.

Doubt Safety in Air.

Railroads involved in the hearing, representatives of which contented themselves with close questioning of witnesses, are the Chicago and Alton, the Wabash, the Illinois Central, and the Chicago and Eastern Illinois. Their questioning sought to throw doubt on the safety of air lines in general and the adequacy of airports.

Observers present, taking part in the questioning of witnesses and frequently raising the question of interstate or intrastate control, included representatives of the National Air Transport company, the Transcontinental and Western Air Express lines, the Air Law Institute, E. McD. Kintz of the United States department of commerce, Howard C. Knotts, supervisor of the aviation section of the commerce commission, and Warner Wall, assistant corporation counsel of Chicago.

Study Traffic and Finance.

Testimony yesterday was concerned with the financial structure of the Century lines, the physical equipment involved and the traffic between various Illinois points.

The hearing was continued to June 16 in Springfield. It was indicated that no ruling will be made on the Century petition until hearing of evidence in the American Airways' petition. The other air lines represented indicated the ruling in the present case would govern their own action in the future.

ACCUSE PAIR OF RUM PLOT.

Joseph Rothstein and Albert Avena, arrested by special prohibition agents in a raid early yesterday on an alcohol depot southwest of Aurora, were held in bonds of $3,000 each on charges of conspiracy by United States Commissioner Walker yesterday.

THE ELECTRIFICATION BILL.

A legislative committee has been conducting hearings on a bill to oblige the railroads to electrify their Chicago terminals by 1935. The spokesman for the companies has said that in the present state of railroad finances the additional capital outlay cannot be made. That is probably true in the main. But it was not always true. The railroads did find the money to electrify in New York, Cleveland and Philadelphia, to mention a few of the metropolitan areas which have benefited from the past prosperity of the carriers. They have consistently neglected Chicago, and if the legislature is aroused over the discrimination the railroads can blame themselves for it.

There is assuredly no justification for the arrogance displayed by some of the railroad spokesmen in discussing the bill. The electrification proposal may be temporarily inexpedient, but it is not "unreasonable, unjust and unnecessary," as one witness boldly asserted. On the contrary, it is eminently reasonable of the state to require an industry to conduct its business with regard for the health and comfort of the community; it is just to demand that the railroads do not continue to discriminate against Chicago, and it is necessary, apparently, to coerce the railroads into doing what they have refused to do of their own free will.

While the temperamental outburst of the railroads is indefensible, it must be conceded that at the moment many of them cannot raise the money needed to electrify, and no law can make it possible for them to do so. One of the most serious problems which the country faces is devising a means of increasing railroad revenue. As matters stand, the carriers are in no position to spend money for many major improvements which are greatly needed. It is probably well within the truth to say that no single influence could so benefit the country as a whole—with the possible exception of the repeal of prohibition—as the improvement of railroad credit. It would be followed by a great increase in railroad buying and construction and might well serve to rejuvenate the economic life of the country.

It is not so easy to see how the result is to be achieved. Additional revenue might perhaps be obtained by raising rates, but there is much reason to expect that raising rates would result in a compensating loss of traffic. Also, rate increases would meet with tremendous political opposition. Perhaps a judicious lowering of rates might prove more helpful, but there is no reason to believe that the commerce commission would dare try this expedient in the face of present earnings reports.

The only hope that we can see in the situation is the granting of greater freedom to the traffic departments of the railroads to adjust rates to stimulate business and thereby increase earnings. The interstate commerce commission is unequal to the task it has undertaken of fixing every rate of every railroad in the country. Also, the right of the railroads to charge less for the long haul than the short haul to meet water competition should be granted. The railroads should also be free to make especially low rates for trainloads. They have lost much of the less-than-carload business to the trucks, and the carload is in danger of going the same way. It costs less to move a trainload to a single destination than it does to move a train of cars destined for various terminals, and that fact, if recognized in the rate structure, should make business for the railroads. Trainload rates will offer a means of competing with waterways.

These are all remedies which the railroads themselves might apply if they were not hampered by the commission. It is altogether clear that the commission has not and cannot save the situation, and no other political interference is likely to do any better. But until the remedy of greater initiative and freedom is tried it is too early to say that the outlook is hopeless. If, as a consequence of greater freedom, some of the weaker roads which have been kept alive by the commission are pushed to the wall by their stronger competitors, the loss will not be too great. As matters stand, many of the stronger as well as the weaker lines are headed in that direction. The effort to keep the weak alive is at the expense of the strong which might survive. Where would the country be today if the government had exerted its influence to keep alive all the fly-by-night automobile factories whose names are today forgotten? Who is shedding tears today for the defunct bicycle manufacturing companies? There are thousands of miles of railway today that are as unworthy of survival as any of those automobile or bicycle factories. The sooner the corpses are removed, the better for the general health of the transportation industry.

AN AMERICAN MODEL FOR SPAIN.

Spain will be hunting around for the republican form. For permanence the government structure of the United States offers it. The constitutional convention of the American states found it. Its keystone is the presidency, an office of definite term filled by the action of adult suffrage. When the founders of the American republic had this function well in mind they had the nation in a continuing and stable form. They had very little to guide them from previous English history. The English had failed to grasp this essential of republican government and their failure was the failure of their democratic attempts.

The Americans had little to create in a parliamentary way. That system was ready at hand to be transferred to the government of the Union, but the English had been preoccupied with their parliamentary independence and did not see the way out of executive difficulties. When they considered the top of government they found nothing but king or dictator. Cromwell was not a radical democrat. He was a sound middle class property owner. The democrats were such men as Lilburne, Winstanley, Walwyn, Overton and others of the Levellers and the True Levellers. The kinship of the American republic is with them, but even they were not ready for universal suffrage and none of them and none of the conservatives in the revolution could see the only solution of democratic administration. It was offered when George Washington took the oath of office as President elected for a four year term. Even then the election by the vote of all the people was not clearly seen. The electoral college was the intervening mechanism and as a shadow still is.

Ferdinand Schevill in his rare book "Siena" shows that the city states of Italy in the middle ages experimented with the idea of the executive of limited term, the podesta, with a preference at times for an alien in the position—a man from Padua to be podesta of Siena, as Cincinnati might elect a citizen of Cleveland to be business manager. The American idea was bold enough, however, to be a cutaway from tradition and precedent and its adoption and application promised the durability of a government of self-centered states reluctantly federating in recognition of common needs and interests.

A democracy contenting itself with a development of the parliamentary system has not reached a safe level. Parliaments fragment themselves. They tend to committee government and that to chaos. The refuge is in monarchy or dictatorship. Mussolini, Stalin and Cromwell are the answers found when groups prove futile and parliamentarians are merely partisans. The direct and indirect powers of the American President may be greater at times than those of a king, but he is not only elected but he is elected for a term. The conditions have never been abused and it is not conceivable to Americans that they could be. Usage and traditions have even limited the number of terms. There is an office which is continuously powerful without men who can fasten a heredity or even a life thereon.

THE TRAGEDY AT WHEATON.

Human progress is at the price of human sacrifice. Men give their lives to push the frontier of knowledge into the unknown, to tame the forces of nature to our service. The tragedy in which the lives of Pilot Shirley Short and three aids were lost is a part of the price exacted for the advance of aviation. Pilot Short was considered a highly competent expert, his assistants were carefully chosen and the Bellanca was licensed by the department of commerce for experiment and later for long flights. Investigation should add to the knowledge of structural requirements in airplane design, as the accident was evidently caused by structural defects and not by fault of the pilots.

The families of Pilot Short and his aids and the Daily News have THE TRIBUNE'S sympathy.

JUSTICE AND KIRKLAND.

Young Kirkland's second trial at Valparaiso came to a verdict of guilty of assault and battery with intent to rape, penalty one to ten years' imprisonment. Immediately after the trial one of the defense attorneys was arrested on a charge of fraud, another was punched in the jaw by the father of a defamed woman state witness, and one of the medical experts of the defense was picked up soused in the streets by the police and put in jail. All this seemed to be a fitting finale. It was harmonious.

Of the two trials, it could be said that they made the worst of a shocking turpitude and justice in conclusion leaves the perturbed elements of society more dismayed when the processes of law are completed than they were when the crime was discovered. To its inhuman depravity was added the claptrap of courtroom melodrama. The composite was one of degenerate youth and befuddled maturity, of gin, lechery, depravity, and brutality with criminal justice playing tricks. It is true that the defendant's real offense was his character. The nature of the people involved was the appalling exhibit. The crimes were evidently inherent. The law does not try a man for his character, and public opinion does. Outraged people would have executed Kirkland for what he is. Criminal justice muddled about trying to punish him for what he did. The fact remains that a girl went into a party of friends, young and healthy, and came out of it ravished and dead. The penalty may be a year in the penitentiary.

TOSCANINI AT MILAN.

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

Beaten up by the Fascists at Bologna, Arthuro Toscanini seems to have got safely to the home he still owns in Milan, where as director of the Scala Opera house he achieved the reputation that made him director of the New York Philharmonic orchestra. We are told that a guard was put around his house "to prevent violence." We are told also that twenty persons who cheered for Toscanini at the Scala, though he was not present, have been locked up in cells by order of Mussolini. Which throws a curious light on the explanation of the "guard" at the Toscanini home.

For musical development, for art development, as for literary development, there can be no freedom under such a dictator as "Il Duce." Toscanini cannot be enjoying the vacation in his native land. He would be happier in New York. When he comes back to this metropolitan city he will realize the difference. Will he come back? Who knows? Mussolini has a habit of putting those who do not applaud him where they are very much lost to the world. All things are possible under Italy's medieval tyranny.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

HITCH-HIKERS NEVER HIKE.

The time has come around again. The college papers have items like this: "Tommy Flunker, '31, and Billy Grind, '32, will spend their vacation on a trip through the west and northwest. They will hitch-hike to Dallas, Tex., then to Los Angeles, and up the coast to Vancouver. They expect a wonderful time." And another that is another item about three gels of the Coo Koo Coo sorority planning a splendid trip this summer to Washington, then up through New England, and back home by way of the Adirondacks and the Catskills, "hitch-hiking all the way."

Hitch-hikers are interesting; they always hitch, they never hike. We will give a silver plated, hand illumined doughnut to anybody who ever saw a hitch-hiker hiking. If one automobilist passes them by with a dirty look they know that all they have to do is to keep on jiggling their right hand in that mystic sign they have developed and a car will stop very soon and take them in.

This hitch-hiking thing is the newest of all the rackets and is developing rapidly. The time is not far distant when the hitch-hiker will refuse to ride unless meals are guaranteed en route and the car equipped with radio. They're a proud and haughty race, these hitch-hikers.

THE EVANSTON EXPERTS who examined the students of the Women's Class of Fancy and Applied Auto Driving asked them all about ignition systems and what was a clutch and why was a brake and when, but omitted one very important question: "In powdering the nose on a curve or in heavy traffic should one release the transmission lever or should the powder rag be fastened to the steering wheel and the nose rubbed deftly against it?" "And if so, why?"

AND THE EVANSTON WOMEN, like all women drivers, seemed to experience trouble in backing. A good way to train the girls to back deftly would be to tell them when they are ambling forward to look behind. Then have somebody hold up a sign reading: "Wonderful Bargain in Suits! Were $10.00; Now, $5.99!" Oh, the way those girls would back their autos would be simply nobody's business.

When it does we're going to ouijaboard Mr. Sage and tell him our opportunity to buy Western Union at 50 has come, but what are we going to buy it with, Mr. Sage, what are we going to buy it with?

AND RECREATION, according to the New York Automobile club, cost each individual in this country $40 last year. Of which probably twenty went for gas, fifteen for hot dogs, and we can't moralize on this until we know whether bootleggers' stuff is counted as recreation or groceries.

CARBON MONOXIDE.

In some states carbon monoxide poisoning is compensatory. If a person can prove he has it or had it, and can prove that his employer, or some one else, is responsible for his having it, he is entitled to compensation, and the chances are that he can easily prove that he has been disabled. There is greater difficulty in proving that carbon monoxide was the cause.

Dr. May R. Mayers gives the following as the procedures to go through to prove that carbon monoxide was the cause of a given casualty: In the case of a person found dead it is not enough to prove that carbon monoxide was present in the air, or that some machine was running, or fire was burning, or that the ventilation was poor. A pink color of the skin may be due to something other than carbon monoxide. The examination should include examination of the blood for carbon monoxide and of the body to discover evidence of this poisoning. An autopsy should be made. If the person wore a gas mask this should be tested to determine whether or not it leaked.

If a person is found unconscious but alive it is very necessary to know whether carbon monoxide is responsible. The blood should be tested for this chemical. There should be a careful examination to exclude other causes of coma, such as drunkenness, diabetes, Bright's disease, and some others.

If the unconscious person is found to be suffering from carbon monoxide poisoning, he must be kept alive until the gas can be eliminated and after the emergency has passed he must be watched closely for follow-ups, such as pneumonia, anemia, nervous heart, and various forms of mental and nerve disturbances.

If there has been no coma or unconsciousness in a given case it may be much more difficult to decide what is the cause of the symptoms. The blood should be examined for the poisoning gas, but that examination may not help.

Headaches, dizziness, eye strain, insomnia in a person exposed to this case should cause suspicion. To settle the question the physician should learn whether the blood contains carbon monoxide and what is the condition of the air where the man works or sleeps. When either of these fails there are two or three helpful tests.

Expose the suspect to carbon monoxide gas. If he is a case of chronic carbon monoxide poisoning he will have a fast heart beat and will breathe rapidly after a slight exposure. His blood pressure will drop rapidly or shoot up for a brief spell. He is liable to become quite pallid and his head will ache, or he will become dizzy.

RINGWORM OF THE NECK.

Mrs. T. D. K. writes: About a week ago I read a request for a cure of ringworm on the neck. Your answer was to use iodine for three days, followed by a sulphur ointment, but you said this did not apply to a hairy surface.

Can you tell me what, in your opinion, is a cure for ringworm of the scalp? I have been fighting this condition for some time with iodine and, while I think I have it under control, it is not entirely cured.

REPLY.

Cure without removal of the hair is difficult. Treatment is generally begun by removing the hair with X-ray, thallium, or some depilatory. As a rule, this is omega, as well as alpha, since further treatment is not required.

HIGH CLASS MORON.

Mrs. F. O. N. writes: A college student at a recent dinner party announced that she was graded in college as a "high class moron." What is it? Is it something to be proud of?

REPLY.

A high grade moron is an adult with the mind of a child twelve to fourteen years of age.

Boasting of being a moron is not to be expected. It is used as an excuse in criminal courts, but not as a means of boasting in an educational career.

ORANGE JUICE IN MORNING.

J. F. writes: I drink the juice from two oranges each morning. Could this possibly produce rheumatic pains in limbs and hips some days and slight stiffness? I am 60 and have no teeth of my own.

REPLY.

No.

DEPENDS ON THE GOITER.

W. E. M. writes: Is there any diet, treatment, or medicine that will cure a goiter that has not yet become troublesome, in a woman of middle age? I do not refer to an operation.

REPLY.

There are several kinds of goiter and different stages of each kind. Diet and medical care has a place in the treatment of goiter. Just what, depends on the kind and the stage.

SUE FOR RECOVERY.

Chicago, May 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Some time during the last month the janitor and his helper took the window out of my storeroom and filled the aperture with mortar and brick. They did not consult me in any manner. Now I notice some things are missing in the storeroom. 1. Who is responsible, the owner or janitor? 2. Is the fact that this was done without my consent sufficient breach to break my lease? P. J. G.

1. The facts that you state would create a presumption that you would be entitled to recover from either one unless they could rebut the presumption.

2. On the facts stated, it does not appear that the interference with your rights is sufficiently serious to make it safe for you to move out.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 28, 1915.

LONDON.—The admiralty office announces the destruction of the British battleship Majestic by a torpedo while it was supporting the allied army on Gallipoli peninsula. The torpedo was fired by a German submarine. The battleship Majestic was of 14,900 tons displacement and was one of the oldest in the British fleet. Nearly all of the officers and crew were rescued.

LONDON.—The Princess Irene, a British auxiliary steamship, was blown into atoms with 425 men aboard as it lay at anchor in Sheerness harbor this morning. The explosion apparently was internal and its origin was marked by complete mystery, the inference being that the work was due to a German spy. Not one of the crew escaped.

LIVERPOOL.—The American steamer Nebraskan, which was disabled by an explosion off the coast of Ireland, arrived here shortly before midnight. "I saw no submarine," the captain said, "but am certain it was a torpedo which hit us. Moreover, a submarine could not have failed to see our name and nationality, which were outlined in huge letters on our sides."

CHICAGO.—The latest chapter in the many sided romance of the former Princess de Chimay, who started her career as Clara Ward of Detroit, has been written in Chicago in the filing of the will of her late mother. The document disposes of an estate valued at more than $1,000,000, but the only mention of the former princess is the provision for $1,000 "equalization money" in a codicil.

CHICAGO.—John M. Collins, chief of police under the administration of Mayor Edward F. Dunne, was buried at Calvary. Six police captains acted as pallbearers.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

CHICAGO.—The Champlain building, northwest corner of State and Madison streets, with its leasehold interest, was sold by the Chicago Real Estate trustees to Charles Netcher, proprietor of the Boston store, for $285,000. Possession will be given on next Jan. 1, when Mr. Netcher will extend his business to the building he has just acquired.

NEW YORK.—The Rev. Dr. George D. Herron, former Grinnell professor, and Miss Carrie Rand, daughter of E. D. Rand of Burlington, Ia., both of whom hold unconventional views of marriage, were married on May 25 in the apartment of Charles Brodie Patterson by the Rev. William Thurston Brown, pastor of Plymouth Congregational church of Rochester. When they entered the room the doctor said: "My friends, I have chosen Miss Rand to be my companion." Then she said: "I have chosen Mr. Herron to be my companion." That was all there was of the marriage ceremony, so far as they were concerned. However, Dr. Brown arose and after a short talk he concluded: "Inasmuch, therefore, as George D. Herron and Carrie Rand are thus united together by the bond of reciprocal love, I announce that they are husband and wife by every law of right and truth."

CHICAGO.—"In a Balcony," a poetic drama in one act by Robert Browning, was presented at the Grand Opera house by Otis Skinner, Eleanor Robson, and Sarah Cowell Le Moyne.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Supreme court of the United States handed down decisions holding that Porto Rica and the Philippines became integral parts of the United States upon the ratification of the treaty of Paris and that the constitution follows the flag but not to the extent that tariff laws in those territories must be uniform with those in force in the United States. The decisions were by a bare majority of the nine justices.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

CHICAGO.—President Garfield has appointed Norman Williams of Chicago honorary commissioner of the United States to the International Exhibition of Electrical Apparatus and to the Electrical congress, which meets in Paris next August.

ALBANY, N. Y.—At the end of the second week of the senatorial campaign Mr. Conkling finds himself as far, if not farther, away from the vindication he seeks in his row with President Garfield than he was at the end of the first week. He, Platt, and Vice President Arthur returned from Albany to New York last night. Some of the reports represent Conking as sad, dejected, and weary, while others represent him as cheerful and confident that he will be reelected.

CHICAGO.—William B. Sullivan's law directory for 1881 has just been published and is now being delivered. It contains the names of 1,283 lawyers, as against 1,356 last year.

ELGIN.—Harlan Gepfill and Miss Emma Gould were married at the Gould farm in the presence of a large number of guests.

HE FOUND A JOB.

Chicago, May 25.—I do believe that if every one who is out of work tried diligently to obtain a job we would have a few more dollars demanding more things and putting more people to work to produce those things. Then little by little conditions would improve.

I had been jobless for many months when the above thought came into my mind. I went right out and found a job. It did not pay much—about $13 a week—but it was something. Of course it's not enough to stop the Mrs. from doing something desperate, because she and the children have had to live off relatives all winter, but, still, it means that every week $13 more is going into that old game of supply and demand.

Now there are many who want jobs and who need jobs, but subtract those who wouldn't take a job if it was handed to them on a silver platter from those who are honestly looking for and have made up their minds they shall have work and I venture to say it will cut the number of unemployed squarely in two. Here's hoping I get a raise.

JOHN ALVIN.

LOOKING FORWARD.

Chicago, May 22.—Too much emphasis is being placed on the present business slump. In every trade report, annual statement, and chronicle of convention gatherings it is given as the reason for this or that until the public have depression ingrained in their system.

I believe that cartoons and glaring headlines of articles serve only to intensify the feeling of uncertainty. Instead and without attempting to predict the exact time of the turn in business wouldn't it be better to devote more space to the fundamentally sound character of modern American business?

With our corporations in the strongest financial position they have ever been in, our banking system tested and proved superb, with plenty of money which is actually going begging at 1½ per cent, the cheapest rate recorded, and stocks of merchandise in the hands of individuals and corporations depleted, I believe that the next forward movement of business [which is about to take place] will carry us to a far greater prosperity than we have as yet experienced.

I am thankful that the most productive years of my life will fall within this great period of coming prosperity. Now is the time to prepare for it.

FRED COHEN.

HELEN WILLS MOODY CORRECTS A PHOTOGRAPHER'S ERROR.

San Francisco, Cal., May 15.—I was somewhat upset to see in your CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE a picture which had below it "The Queen of Tennis, Helen Wills Moody, with her mother, Mrs. Clarence Alfred Wills."

The lady in the picture is really an elderly French countess and not my mother at all. My mother is quite beautiful, and this picture is somewhat of a shock! My mother has never had her picture taken with me by any photographer that I know of.

HELEN WILLS MOODY.

THE STRIKE AGAINST THE CITY.

Chicago, May 22.—According to the recent strike, no workingman in Chicago is entitled to a living unless he is a union man. Even Mayor Cermak, with all his announced fearlessness, is explaining and denying things to the street cleaners' union and to a man with the strictly American name of Gazzolo.

What I would like to know is this: When have the unions of this city been known to do anything for the general good of the public and when have they broken away from their unutterable selfishness? And since when have they become so powerful that they can terrorize executives and forbid them to give a living to good men in need? W. K. C.

TEETOTALERS ON THE FORCE.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 16. — I was rather amused in reading an item in today's TRIBUNE wherein the Hon. Judge Michael Feinberg stated that he has yet to find a policeman who does not take a drink once in a while. I was born and raised in Chicago and am personally acquainted with a great many police officers, from patrolmen to captains, and would be pleased to give the honorable judge a list of as many as he would want who do not and never did drink any liquor of any kind.

JOHN LESSICK.

A DEFENSE OF THE DIRECT PRIMARY.

Chicago, May 23.—I note that there has been considerable agitation for the repeal in Illinois of the direct primary law. I was a member of the legislature for many years during the time of the fight by the people for the direct primary law, and I believe it would be a grave mistake to go back to the old convention system with all its evils.

The direct primary law goes to the fundamentals of popular government and allows the voters to express their own choice as to whom they wish to have nominated for various offices. This direct action by the people secures to them the genuine right to rule themselves. The opponents to such action include some well meaning people who do not understand the meaning of direct action by the people, not only in this but in many other ways, and it also includes the majority of those politicians who are not well meaning at all, but who, having made a trade of politics, realize that their business is interfered with by whatever expedient gives greater importance to direct action by the people and therefore less importance to them when they either represent or misrepresent the people.

One of the evils against which we have to struggle is the corrupt alliance between the professional politician who wishes to make a living or more than a living out of politics and the crooked man of wealth who wishes to secure favors which the politician has no right to give and the other has no right to receive.

The old convention system was handled by one party or the other of this mischievous and sinister alliance, or by both parties thereto, so as to thwart the will and wishes of the people at large. Doubtless in the case of most of the politicians engaged in thus thwarting the genuine wishes of the people the motive is simply to retain their own control of the political machine. But there are doubtless also many cases where the politicians are acting in response to pressure from great interests for purely selfish motives.

To return to the convention system and take from the people their direct action in the nomination of their public servants would result in insolently and defiantly thwarting public will and tend even to upsetting popular judgment. This would oppose genuine popular rule in every shape and substitute for it a rule by part of the people, no matter what part, over the rest of the people.

There are many phases of the contest for popular rights and one of the most important in this country is the contest to give the people the right to nominate their own candidates for public office.

WILLETT H. CORNWELL.

SUBSTITUTES UNPAID.

Chicago, May 25.—I am writing in behalf of the vast army who help to make up the teaching force of the Chicago public school system—namely: the substitutes, who seemed to be considered a necessary evil.

When the weather is inclement a teacher has the privilege of remaining home, knowing she will lose only $3.50 for the day, if an elementary teacher. A substitute is called. She responds, realizing that should she refuse it may be many a day before she is called again. She has spent three years at the Normal college and has been awaiting assignment possibly three more; yet, when the pay roll goes in, what happens? Here it is! The regular teachers get paid and the substitutes wait, wait. Inquiry elicits the same old response, "We have no money for you and do not know when there will be any."

The majority of teachers have been teaching for years, many at the maximum. Surely they could better wait than the substitute, who may be entirely dependent upon the $7 a day she earns.

Three times this school year the substitute has had to wait while the teachers were paid. Now they are destitute, many not even having carfare; yet nothing is done about it.

MARGARET PARKMAN.

THE POOR RUSSIANS.

Chicago, May 25.—Pity the poor Russians! They want to manufacture all the goods in the world so as to bankrupt all the capitalistic manufacturers in the world. But that takes lots of oil and coal in order to wreck all the oil and coal companies in the world.

EX-MAYOR HALE AND REGAN WIN RUM PLOT APPEAL

Evidence Insufficient, Is U. S. Court Verdict.

Former Mayor Raleigh P. Hale of East Chicago, former Police Chief James Regan and four others convicted with them a year and a half ago on charges of being involved in a huge liquor conspiracy, won a reversal yesterday in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. Hale and Regan were sentenced to imprisonment for two years each and were fined $1,000 each by the conviction which is now set aside.

RALEIGH P. HALE.

In all, fifteen men were found guilty of a conspiracy which government prosecutors said involved the wholesale selling of protection for bootleggers and vice lords. Hale was reelected after his indictment, but he and Regan resigned after they were found guilty. Regan is a Chicago police sergeant who was on leave of absence while acting as chief at East Chicago. He has not returned to the Chicago force, it was said yesterday, but has continued to live in East Chicago.

The other defendants who appealed with Hale and Regan were Martin Berkovich, former detective captain; Patsy Ramey, former detective; Phil Collenger and Joseph D'Angelo, alleged representatives in Indiana of Al Capone. Those who received minor sentences did not appeal.

The Court of Appeals said the reversal was due to insufficient evidence to justify a conviction and an error in the failure of Federal Judge Thomas W. Slick to admit evidence favorable to the defendants. The appeal was heard by Presiding Judge Samuel Alschuler, who wrote the opinion, and Associate Judges Evan A. Evans and William M. Sparks.

Admits Slaying Opponent in Business Controversy

George D. Scott, 53 years old, was captured in his home at 3946 West Erie street early yesterday morning. He confessed to the shooting and killing of William Johnston, 60 years old, a week ago. Scott said he and Johnston had become enemies in a business dispute. He claimed that Johnston was about to draw a gun on him and that he killed him in self-defense.

GIRL OFFICIAL SEIZED BY U. S. AS MEMBER OF BIG BOOTLEG RING

Kansas City, Mo., May 27.—[Special.]—The government today arrested Rosemary Lyons, delinquent tax collector at the city hall, as the alleged bookkeeper of the bootleg ring whose headquarters were raided last night by prohibition agents. Her books had been seized last night.

The government also had a warrant for the arrest of John Lazia, north side Democratic boss, and deputy marshals were seeking Charles Carolla, operator of the North Side Finance corporation and brother of Pete Carolla, the bandit. All are charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, together with twenty men arrested last night who were arraigned today.

The ring controlled the bootleg industry here, kept the prices of liquor standardized, allowed for protection up and down the line, shipped in carloads of raw alcohol from the Capone gang in Chicago, and had connections with New York and other gangs. They were the Kansas City bootleg barons who managed this territory and dealt with eastern groups.

Federal authorities today pointed out the liquor ring, whose headquarters and distributing point have been at Kansas City, is one of Capone's attempts to gain a foothold in every large city of the country. They feel that his plans have been delivered a terrific blow almost at their inception through the crushing of the organization at this point.

NUDE BODY FOUND IN CANAL.

The body of a young man about five feet four inches tall, weighing 145 pounds, with long dark hair, was recovered from the drainage canal at Lockport yesterday morning. The body was nude. The lock keeper received a note several days ago warning him to be on the watch for the body of a Capone gangster, but a description given in the letter did not fit the body found.

WING FAILURE CALLED CAUSE OF PLANE CRASH

Daily News Ship Fell Apart, Witnesses Say.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

A coroner's jury of six flyers sitting at Wheaton yesterday found that structural failure of a wing of the tandem motored Chicago Daily News Bellanca caused the airplane crash which resulted in the deaths of Shirley J. Short, chief pilot for the News, and three others in the plane's crew Tuesday morning.

CHAUNCEY REED.

Farmers in the vicinity of the crash scene and motorists who were driving near by testified that they saw the big ship roaring low over the treetops, when, suddenly, pieces began to fly from its wings, continuing to fall until the plane, disabled and out of control, wheeled dizzily in the air and crashed to the ground.

Broke Before Hitting Ground.

Some witnesses disagreed as to which wing distintegrated first and others told of hearing explosions in the air and the sputtering of faltering motors, but all were definite in their testimony that fabric flew off the wing before the crash. Two witnesses declared that by the time the plane hurtled to the ground most of the covering had been ripped away from one wing.

The inquest was held in the Du Page county courthouse at Wheaton and was conducted by Coroner Paul A. Isherwood, assisted by State's Attorney Chauncey Reed. In its verdict the jury found that all four men "came to their death in an accident due to structural failure during the flight of an experimental plane." Besides Pilot Short the other three victims were Richard K. Peck, co-pilot; Robert U. Gormley, mechanic, and Lewis S. Rice, navigator and radio operator.

"I first saw the plane coming from the south and flying low," testified Mat Hinz of West Chicago, employed by a warehouse at Gretna, north of Wheaton. "The ship seemed to flutter as it came overhead and then pieces fell from it as when a man tears up paper and tosses the bits away. Then it swerved quickly to the right and the fabric began to peel off very fast."

Others Tell of Crash.

"As it came over above me I heard a cracking noise as when you break a stick across your knee," said Deputy Sheriff Arthur Lynis, who was passing nearby in Gary avenue, Wheaton.

A. R. Ransom, a farmer, testified that the plane turned over twice before crashing. Harry S. Beam, another employé of the Gretna warehouse, said he saw what appeared to be parts of the wing and tail fall away in flight and this was borne out in the testimony of Arthur Borchard, E. V. Wills, farmers, and George W. Clark, locomotive engineer, who also said he heard a cracking noise while the plane was still aloft.

Cedric V. Merrill, assistant business manager of the Daily News, recounted the history of the experimental plane and of how it was built by Giuseppe Bellanca, the noted designer, and developed by Pilot Short for long distance flying. The ship, he said, weighed 8,000 pounds when empty. On its last flight it carried a crew and equipment weighing 1,000 pounds, 5,400 pounds of gasoline, and 4,400 pounds of lead shot ballast, making a total gross weight of 18,800 pounds. The plane averaged 132 miles an hour during the 1¾ rounds of the course between Curtiss field and Serena, Ill., over which Short and his comrades were attempting to establish a flying record with a heavy load.

Widows Present at Inquest.

Present at the inquest, but not testifying, were Mrs. Short, the pilot's widow; his father, W. H. Short, Goldfield, Ia., and Mrs. Gormley, widow of the mechanic. The widows wept quietly as they listened to witnesses unfold the story of the tragedy.

Messages of sympathy for the associates of the dead flyers and of praise for their notable contribution to the furtherance of aviation were received yesterday from many leaders of business and of aviation by the Daily News. Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, praised the pioneering work of the Daily News flyers and expressed the condolences of the association members.

Funeral services for Pilot Short will be held at 1 o'clock today at the funeral home at 2d avenue and Lake street, Maywood. The body will be taken to Goldfield, Ia., for burial. Members of the Aviation post, No. 651, of the American Legion will act as honorary pallbearers.

CITY HEALTH BOARD TO MAKE SURVEY OF CHICAGO FOOD PRICES

Because in the opinion of Ald. John Toman [23d] the cost of living has a bearing upon the state of the public health, the city council yesterday authorized its committee on public health to investigate and report upon the following topics:

Whether the price of bread in Chicago has reflected the decline in the price of wheat and flour.

Whether the price of milk and other dairy products reflects the decrease in the price received by the farmer.

Whether the prices paid for meat and meatfood products reflect the decline in the price received by the producer and the packer.

AIR RESOURCES OF U. S. TESTED BY MANEUVERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 27.—[Special.]—The army air fleet of more than 600 fighting ships clicked off another day of parade flying along the New Jersey coast line. Ideal weather favored the maneuvers today and there was not a cloud to mar the show at Newark, Trenton, and Atlantic City.

Swinging through the dust of five Long Island airports, the planes cruised away without mishap shortly before noon. They were over Newark in a jiffy, passed Trenton before 1 o'clock and in a twenty mile long parade slid through sparkling skies over Atlantic City's famous boardwalk, a black streak of humanity eight hundred feet below.

The combat demonstration unit arrived over the resort city, put on its now famous diving formations at "dog fight" and the fleet, a great swarm of locusts high in the skies, roared back to Long Island. The return trip was given over to training exercises and many a startled New Jersey farmer tilted his neck to see what it all was about.

No Serious Accidents.

The planes returned safely to their bases, the only incident reported being an accident to Maj. G. N. Brett's pursuit plane. Maj. Brett had landed and was headed for his quarters when another ship taxiing about the field nosed into his plane and damaged it slightly.

"What has the army accomplished in these maneuvers?" is a question frequently asked away from the flying field. The air corps has a ready answer. Here it is as outlined by the headquarters staff:

"The purpose of the 1931 air corps defense exercises is to test and improve tactical theories of the army with respect to aerial defense of our coast line against enemy invasion; to bring the various air corps units together for annual training in the highly essential field of teamwork and to improve methods of command and maintenance.

"All of this has been accomplished. Commercial aviation will be benefited commensurately and the vital need of commercial airports in the movement of massed groups of army planes has been demonstrated."

Problems Worked Out.

Here are some of the problems that are being worked out each day in the air and on the ground and to which detailed answers will be available for the first time when the two weeks "war" ends Saturday in Washington:

Is the present air force, its organization, equipment, and schedules adequate?

How many and what spare parts must be laid down at various airports to insure proper maintenance of 672 planes in cross-country flight?

Are present methods of communication adequate and what are the most effective methods of communication? Can part of the fleet be controlled by radio so that changes of operations may be made after it is in the air? [This has been successfully demonstrated.]

How many airplanes can be successfully operated from one airdrome? Hence how many air fields would we need in time of war? [More than 800 were successfully operated in Fairfield air depot at Dayton.]

One of the greatest benefits to aviation from the 1931 army maneuvers so far has been the remarkable record of having flown more than 600 airplanes approximately 2,000,000 plane miles without a major accident or single fatality.

How would YOU answer this Question?

"Regardless of price, convenience, etc., what tire do you consider the best tire made?"

A LITTLE bewildered by the shaky statistics of some recent tire advertisers, Goodyear asked the Bureau of Business Research of a great University to put the above question to 205,000 representative motorists to get the real low-down on this matter of tire superiority.

You can put calipers on treads and sidewalls, you can compare breaker-strips and cross sections until the cows come home, without knowing much more than you did before.

What you really want to know and have a right to know is simply this—what kind of service does the tire give?

The only people who can tell you the real answer to that fair question are the millions of other motorists like yourself who are wearing out millions of tires every month.

So, when there appeared to be a confusion of meaningless comparisons cropping up in the tire business, Goodyear went to the man who knows—the car owner himself.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 27.—[Special.]—Of the 6,300,000 workers estimated to have been jobless in January, about 1,000,000 have since found employment in industry, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, declared today.

WILLIAM GREEN.

Including those who have been absorbed by agriculture, he said, the total of those employed since the first of the year would not exceed 1,500,000.

"Employment gains this spring have been so small that they leave the problem almost as serious as at the first of the year," President Green declared. "In one way it is far more serious for more families than ever are finding their resources exhausted. Charity organizations were still increasing their relief payments in March, the latest report said and over $11,000,000 was given out to over 434,000 families, not including the large sums spent to give work.

Spring Improves Little.

"Compared with spring improvement in a prosperous year this year's employment gains have been small indeed. In 1929, from January to May, according to union reports, employment gains covered 4.6 per cent of the membership; this year only 3.7 per cent found work.

"This leaves the nation with a serious problem ahead for the dull summer months. Employment usually reaches its spring peak in June but there is not much improvement after May. July brings the summer layoffs and unemployment increases, so that many workers who now have jobs must look forward to losses of income. In September the fall busy season increases employment for two months, but we cannot hope for much improvement before next winter unless business picks up unexpectedly.

Asks Guarantee of Jobs.

"We must begin planning at once if we are to prevent widespread suffering. Before all else is the problem of security. Workers want to know that they can count on a job. Without taking undue risk, most employers could unquestionably guarantee work to a certain portion of their work force. Practically every employer can estimate the number of men he will need for a minimum force even in dull seasons. A guarantee of employment to ...en a portion of the country's work forces would help business revival enormously and bring relief from anxiety to thousands of workers' families.

"At present workers are holding all they can in reserve for fear of losing their jobs. They cannot do otherwise for they can see ahead. The funds they reserve amount to billions of dollars. If they were sure of their jobs the release of these funds would be an immense stimulus to business."

During the first half of May the employment of union members, said President Green, gained only five-tenths of one per cent of the membership, or in actual figures about 150,000 of those out of work.

Building Trades Hardest Hit.

The federation's weighted figures for all trades show 17.1 per cent of union men unemployed during the present month, compared with 17.6 per cent during April, 13.3 per cent during May, 1930, and 6.7 per cent during May, 1929. The highest present percentage of unemployment, 48 per cent, is in the building trades.

KLEIN ATTACKS CUTS IN WAGES; UNFAIR, HE SAYS

New York, May 27.—(AP)—Wage cutting was attacked today by Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, as "manifestly and supremely unfair" in an address.

Dr. Klein said that reducing wages ended buying power, and destroyed consumer morale. He said it did not result in an appreciable curtailment in costs and was unfair to the wage earner.

Dr. Klein said there are three major perils in wage cutting.

STATE REFUSES TO ADMIT DEATH OF MIKE HEITLER

Insufficient proof has been shown that "Mike De Pike" Heitler is dead, Assistant State's Attorney John Hampton informed Judge John Prystalsk yesterday when Heitler's indictment for perjury was reached on the court call. The burned body of a man found a month ago in an old ice house near Barrington, Ill., had been tentatively identified as that of Heitler, public enemy and brothal keeper but, the prosecutor pointed out, the coroner's inquest has not been closed and the coroner has not yet accepted the identification. Coleman Heitler, brother of "Mike De Pike" told Judge Prystalski he is certain the body was that of his brother. The prosecutor decided to ask that the case be stricken off the docket with leave to reinstate, a proceeding which would permit of Heitler's being tried if he appears alive later.

ARMED MEN FORCE TRUCK DRIVER TO GIVE THEM $2,000

Four armed men halted a truck of Mandel Brothers at 29th street and Cottage Grove avenue in midafternoon yesterday and compelled the driver, Robert Gay, 6926 South State street, and his helper, John Finnan, 1753 East 72d street, to surrender a money box containing $2,000. The robbers then drove away in an automobile.

Gay and Finnan had received the money in the company's garage at 4820 Cottage Grove avenue, where receipts from C. O. D. collections of other drivers on the south side were concentrated. The box had been hidden in one of a number of trunks carried on the truck. The bandits seemed to know which trunk carried the money and threatened to shoot the driver and his helper unless they pointed out the right trunk.

CARROZZA CALLS ANOTHER STRIKE OF CITY WORKERS

Electricity Department Laborers Out.

Michael Carrozza, labor leader who called a strike last week that threw approximately 4,000 employes in the department of public works out of a job for a few days, yesterday called another strike of city laborers.

MICHAEL CARROZZA.

The new strike affects 26 laborers in the department of gas and electricity, who were installing underground electric light equipment in the 3d, 4th and 5th wards. Because of the lack of laborers on the job, 20 linemen and three foremen had to be laid off.

Neither Francis M. O'Donnell, acting commissioner of gas and electricity, nor Mayor Cermak was able to learn the exact cause of the new strike. It is believed, however, that it followed upon the appointment of temporary linemen helpers.

Mayor Cermak's Reply.

"I suppose they were working too hard and wanted a day off," the mayor told Mr. O'Donnell when informed of the latest strike. "Let's have a real strike, and tell these men that pretty soon they will have a reason to strike in the lack of money to pay them.

"I don't see how linemen helpers get to be members of Carrozza's union. From the title I should think that they would be members of the electrical workers' union."

The mayor ordered a layoff of all men in the gangs affected by the strike. These men are paid out of a bond issue approved last year for the extension and betterment of the city's electric light system. Mayor Cermak announced that he will meet with Carozza today in an effort to settle the differences.

Carrozza Blames Mayor.

"Cermak fired about fifty laborers, union men, and replaced them with temporary appointees who were nonunion men," he declared. "When the nonunion men started to work the union men walked out. The discharge of the men by the mayor was a violation of an agreement he made not to fire any more men pending a disposal of the department of public works strike last week. There will be a conference on that strike tomorrow."

Mr. O'Donnell also reported to the mayor that the layoff of two laborers in one of the department's garages has resulted in an ultimatum from Carrozza that city trucks will not be washed until the men are reinstated. Carrozza is the head of about seven city labor unions.

SPRAGUE WARNS CITY COUNCIL ON GIVING UP STREETS TO STATE

In a communication to the city council yesterday Commissioner of Public Works Sprague warned the aldermen of the increasing number of city streets that are being surrendered to the state. With his letter he inclosed requests sent to him that nine more streets be turned over to the state.

"In view of the increasing number of city streets that are being designated for state control," wrote Commissioner Sprague, "and because Chicago's loss will result in serious confusion and in expense to the people of the city, I respectfully call to your attention this feature of the gasoline tax law."

The new streets over which the state offers to build 20 foot concrete roadways include Fullerton avenue between Western and Sacramento avenues; West 55th street between Archer and Cicero avenues; South Chicago avenue between 71st and 93d streets, and two stretches on South Crawford avenue.

COLLEGE PARTY SHOWN VICTIMS OF YACHT BLAST

Wreckage Is Blackened; Find Second Body.

New York, May 27.—[Special.]—Charred life preservers, a blackened oil tank from a ship's stove, and a second body were yielded by the waters of Long Island today as mute evidence that the motor sloop Sea Fox, which left City Island Sunday morning with a yachting party of college professors, their wives, and friends, had blown up, and that all hands on board had died.

Police planes, private planes, six coast guard patrol boats, two destroyers, and scores of small private craft searched every cove and harbor along the full eighty mile span of the sound from Block Island to East river without finding a trace of the Sea Fox.

Convinced Boat Blew Up.

Boatmen are convinced now that the Sea Fox blew up somewhere in the vicinity of Norwalk harbor or Darien. The opinion is based on the finding at Pratt's Island of a badly burned life preserver of the same type which kept the body of Mrs. Marcie Snedden afloat until it was picked up off Darien late Tuesday. The spot where it was found is only a half mile from the point where Mrs. Snedden's body was first seen. Mrs. Sneddin is the wife of David Sneddin, owner of the yacht, whose body is missing.

Another burned life preserver was found off the beach near Norwalk by a boatyard owner, and in the same vicinity coast guardsmen found the oil tank floating in the drift. These things all indicate that the Sea Fox met its end in an explosion somewhere near or on the rocky reefs of Norwalk.

Clothing Shows Sudden Disaster.

The body found today was that of Miss Doris Dewey, 25 years old, of Castle, N. Y. There was no life preserver around it, as there had been around Mrs. Snedden, but it was fully clothed, the attire suggesting that Miss Dewey had been lolling on deck when the Sea Fox met disaster.

Miss Dewey and Mrs. Snedden were both psychologists in the psychopathic ward in Bellevue hospital. Those still missing, besides Mrs. Snedden, include:

RETURN VERDICT ON DROWNING.

A verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury in the case of Elmer Hultquist, 31 years old, 69 East 79th street, a mechanic on a power cruiser owned by Dr. Harold A. Hooper, a dentist. He and another man were rowing to shore of the Jackson park yacht harbor when the boat capsized and Hultquist was drowned.

FALL APPEALS BRIBERY CASE TO SUPREME COURT

Criticizes "Tactics" of Government at Trial.

Washington, D. C., May 27.—[Special.]—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, today appealed to the United States Supreme court asking it to reverse the decision of the District court of Appeals which affirmed his conviction on a charge of having accepted a $100,000 bribe from Edward L. Doheney.

Fall was found guilty of having taken the bribe in return for his signature on the lease of naval oil reserves to the Pan-American Petroleum company, represented by Doheney. He was sentenced to a year's imprisonment and to pay a fine of $100,000.

The former secretary's appeal, which was filed by Attorney Frank J. Hogan, attacked the indictment on the ground that unauthorized persons were in the grand jury room and assailed the tactics of government counsel, questioned the admissibility of certain evidence concerning Fall's dealings with Harry F. Sinclair, and charged that the trial judge's instructions to the jury were prejudicial.

The brief also questioned the validity of the transfer of the naval oil reserves from the navy to the interior department.

MAY COMPLETE JURY TO TRY PANTAGES ON GIRL CHARGE TODAY

San Diego, Cal., May 27.—(AP)—The trial of Alexander Pantages, wealthy showman, and three co-defendants on conspiracy and morals charges dragged through the third day with prospects that a jury would not be completed before tomorrow night.

Accused with Pantages are Jesse H. Shreve, San Diego business man, and William Jobelmann and Olive Clark Day, alleged operators of the Hollywood "girl market." The state alleges the millionaires conspired with the alleged market operators to bring 17 year old Lydia Nitto to a hotel party here last October.

One prospective juror, a woman, was excused for cause after she admitted she was prejudiced against any one who might use intoxicating liquor. Three women and nine men were tentatively seated in the jury box this afternoon.

Excavation Is Started for New Motorists' Building

Excavation was started yesterday for the construction of a building at Michigan avenue and 24th street to house the Motorists' Association of Illinois, the Motorists' Athletic club, and the Motorists' corporation. The building is designed so that eventually it will be twenty-nine stories high, with 3,000,000 cubic feet of space. The present contract, let to Paschen Bros. provides for a building with 2,000,000 cubic fet of space.

"2 GUN" CROWLEY GOES ON TRIAL AS POLICE KILLER

New York, May 27.—[Special.]—Francis [Two Gun] Crowley, a sneering little police killer wh owas described by his own attorney as a "moral imbecile," went on trial for his life in a Long Island courtroom today and heard his 16 year old sweetheart, Helen Walsh, testify as the state's star witness.

FRANCIS CROWLEY.

It was the first time the pair had met since the afternoon 100 policemen stormed an apartment and seized Crowley, despite his boas that he would die before surrendering.

The Walsh girl repeated the story of the murder in Black Shirt lane very much as she told it to detectives the night after Crowley's capture.

She was called soon after John McCahill, Crowley's erstwhile friend, had completed his testimony. McCahill told of riding with Crowley and the girl to the spot where the policeman was killed. He said he left Crowley and the girl alone in the car.

FREED OF BANK ROBBERY CHARGE.

Witnesses to the $2,000,000 bond robbery of the Lincoln, Neb., National bank failed to identify Max Brenner, 1308 South Springfield avenue, and William Evans, 1546 South St. Louis avenue, and they were freed yesterday.

MOTION PICTURE OPERATORS VOTE ON PAY REBATE

Washington, D. C., May 27.—[Special.]—Motion picture machine operators and stage hands working for the six large chains of movie houses have been advised to rebate part of their wages for 10 weeks this summer and the various unions are voting on the proposal, it was learned here today.

William Canavan, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employés and Motion Picture Operators, recommended this voluntary action, he said today. Under his plan, those receiving salaries under $60 weekly would rebate 5 per cent of their salaries, while those receiving more than $60 weekly would turn back 7½ per cent.

At the headquarters of the American Federation of Labor with which the alliance is affiliated it was said that this is the first move made by any trade to institute a plan to save for employers a portion of their pay rolls.

100 IGNORE AUTO LICENSE TICKETS; BONDS FORFEITED

The appearance of only 100 out of 200 defendants scheduled to answer charges in the Grand Crossing court yesterday of not having city vehicle tags aroused the ire of Judge Freeman L. Fairbank.

He forfeited the bonds of those who failed to appear and issued capiases for their arrest. Those who did appear and had obtained the tags were discharged.

"I was lenient at the first hearing," the judge said, "and granted continuances to enable the defendants to obtain their licenses. Evidently they are under the impression that they can get away with this sort of thing. They will learn differently."

IN A GRAND TREASURE HUNT

FOR THE BEST SOLUTIONS TO

"GOOD TIME CHARLIEGRAMS"

HOW many words with daggers (†) after them can you find in the advertisements in today's Chicago Tribune?

Certain words in advertisements in today's Chicago Tribune have been identified with this mark (†). When all the words so marked are placed in their proper order they will form a "Good Time Charliegram"—a message of good cheer or sound advice, named after Good Time Charlie Dawson, the mythical person who sent $5,000.00 to Mayor Cermak to help bring back good times.

The Tribune is matching Good Time Charlie's offer! This newspaper will pay $1,000.00 a week for five weeks for the best solutions to "Good Time Charliegrams" submitted in accordance with a few simple rules.

THE SIMPLE RULES:

1. Each day for seven consecutive days, daily and Sunday, various words in display advertisements which appear in the Chicago Tribune will be identified by a dagger (†) after the word. When these words are arranged in the proper manner they will form a "Good Time Charliegram"—a message of good cheer or sound advice of interest during the present period of reconstruction. You are invited to look for these words and find the Good Time Charliegram. No words will be hidden in the Want Ads.

2. The Chicago Tribune will pay $1000.00 in cash prizes to the persons who send in the most nearly correctly arranged and the neatest complete sets of Good Time Charliegrams in accordance with these rules.

3. The prizes for each week are as follows:

| 1st Prize | | $250.00 |
| 2nd Prize | | 100.00 |
| Next 2 Prizes | $50.00 each | 100.00 |

| Next 40 Prizes | $ 5.00 each | 200.00 |
| 74 weekly prizes totaling $1,000.00 | | |

4. This offer is open to every one—men and women, boys and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

5. Good Time Charliegrams are to be submitted in complete sets only. DO NOT send in each day's solution separately. Hold all Good Time Charliegrams until you have the complete set of seven (7). Then send them to "GOOD TIME CHARLIEGRAMS," the Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Illinois. All entries must be received in the Tribune office before 6 P. M. on Wednesday, June 3, 1931.

6. Contestants may submit as many sets of Good Time Charliegrams as they wish, but no contestant will be entitled to more than one prize.

7. You need NOT buy the Chicago Tribune. You may use the handy blank or you may copy your entry on a separate sheet of paper. The Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at public libraries free of charge.

Durant Offers His Own Guide for Culture

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

WILL DURANT, author of the immensely popular "The Story of Philosophy," is publishing today a volume which he calls "Adventures in Genius." It is divided into five parts, "Adventures in Suggestion," "Adventures in Contemporary Philosophy," in which Mr. Durant discusses the philosophy of Spengler, Keyserling, and Bertrand Russell; "Adventures in Literature," in which he writes of Flaubert, Anatole France, and John Cowper Powys; "Adventures in Travel," which encompass Palestine, India and China, and "Adventures in Controversy," which consists of four controversial essays. There is little cohesion about the volume. It is a compilation of the essays which Mr. Durant has written during the last five years, either extracts from or summaries of latest travel books.

WILL DURANT.

The first of the five groups of adventures is probably the most interesting to the reader of this column, for in it he gives short biographies of the ten men whom he considers the greatest thinkers of all time, and of the ten men whom he considers the greatest poets, and a list of "One Hundred Best Books for an Education."

The modern American adores having things catalogued for him. The graph, the statistical survey are the most characteristic expressions of our present day culture. Offer us a list of things that one must know to be cultured and we leap upon the task of achieving culture. Try to instill in us the idea of cultural curiosity for its own sake and we grope around like an amoeba. There are no absolute standards of culture, and any intelligent scholar's guess is as good as any other intelligent scholar's on the fundamental requisites of a cultural education. There are certain accepted cornerstones in the edifice, however, and Mr. Durant deals in his "Adventures in Suggestion" with them rather than with the controversial superstructure.

The ten greatest thinkers, according to Mr. Durant, are Confucius, Plato, Aristotle, St. Thomas Aquinas, Copernicus, Bacon, Newton, Voltaire, Kant, and Darwin. But Mr. Durant offers his apologies after his brief summaries of the contributions of the ten he has chosen. "Those whom we have omitted would make as fair a list," he says. "Democritus, Epicurus, Marcus Aurelius, Abelard, Galileo, Spinoza, Leibnitz, Schopenhauer, Spencer, Nietzsche. And consider the vast movements of thought which we have ignored: feminism for example, with its great leaders from Mary Wollstonecraft to Susan Anthony; and socialism, with its roster of hopeful theorists from Diogenes and Zeno to Lassalle and Marx. It must be so; no list could exhaust the treasure of man's heritage or equal its infinite variety."

The ten greatest poets, he says, are: Homer, "David," Euripides, Lucretius, Dante, Shakespeare, Keats, Shelley, and Walt Whitman.

The American Library association offers Mr. Durant's list of "One Hundred Best Books for an Education," which he titles "The Road to Freedom." The whole essay on the subject, including the list, is a part of "Adventures in Genius." Mr. Durant makes the excellent suggestion of approaching culture through the door of history. Until one knows one's background one can never understand the human expressions of its greatness. Therefore he divides his suggested reading into groups, with an introductory group including outlines of science, psychology, history, folkways, religion and the human body and dietetics. Asia and Africa he suggests next, then Greece, Rome, the age of Christianity, the Italian Renaissance, Europe in the 16th, 17th, 18th and 19th centuries, and finally America and the 20th century's most significant contributions to thought. He recommends such outlines as Breasted and Robinson's "The Human Adventure," and lists in each group the chapters which are devoted to that period. It is, so it seems to me, an educational guide of real aid. It is intended as well for the college graduate as for the person who "has studied with life rather than with courses." To the average American reader there will be extra aid in the fact that Mr. Durant has starred 27 books which he recommends for purchase at an approximate cost of $90. The number of volumes in the list is 151—many of the books come in two volumes, and their approximate cost is $300. He also makes statistics about the length of time it takes to read through the whole list. Ten hours per volume he calculates, or, if you devote one hour a day to it, four years.

Couplet to the contrary, HOW those fair Parisiennes did fall for Monsieur Duryea!

He is the prize rooster of Paris when you meet him, and everywhere he goes he is attended by a clucking, fluttering bevy of femmes. Each lady worships him to his last curling eyelash and would do battle for his smile, while, for a KISS—Ah, Mon Dieu . . .!

"He is an institution—like the Eiffel tower," proudly explains a Frenchman to a visiting American and his daughter. The latter two have just watched Duryea's advent into the night club with unbelieving eyes—for never in Rochester was there anything like this.

Now when I tell you that the daughter, Miss Diane Churchill, is impersonated by Laura La Plante, you will grasp instantly that Duryea, the conqueror, finds himself once and forever conquered. His adventures in overcoming the prejudice of Mr. Churchill, to whom he is just one more lounge lizard, and persuading Diane that she is, really, the only woman he ever loved, consume the balance of the picture.

"God's Gift to Women" is nonsense, pure enough, and decidedly simple. The story is far from clever, but there are several amusing lines, and smart acting and direction make entertaining situations that really aren't in the least so. Frank Fay, whom possibly you like better than I do, performs ably as the "gift" and you can have him. I preferred Charles Winninger as Mr. Churchill and Armin Kalis as an undertaker.

Laura La Plante is completely charming as the desired Diane and other ladies in the cast comport themselves avidly—as required by scenario.

DECORATED

Miss Mary McDowell, head of the University of Chicago settlement, was honored by the Lithuanian government for her social work among the Lithuanians of Chicago at the annual settlement dinner given last night at the settlement home, 4630 Gross avenue.

Miss McDowell received the Order of the Grand Duke Gediminas, which was presented to her by Anton Kalvaitis, the Lithuanian consul in Chicago. Mr. Kalvaitis paid tribute to accomplishments of Miss McDowell in aiding the families of immigrants from his country and thanked her on behalf of the officials of his government. There are about 70,000 Lithuanians in Chicago, he said, many of them living in the vicinity of the settlement.

Miss Jane Addams of Hull house, one of the speakers, also commended Miss McDowell upon the achievements of the university settlement.

Charlie Chaplin Will Produce British Talkie

Government Backs Star in English Venture.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 28.—[Thursday.]—Charlie Chaplin is to make his debut shortly as a British talkie director under the egis of the British government. According to this morning's Daily Sketch, negotiations have been proceeding for three months between representatives of the British foreign office and Mr. Chaplin, culminating recently at a meeting in Paris, when Lord Tyrrell, the British ambassador, made a definite proposal to the comedian to devise and direct in England, as soon as arrangements could be completed, an all British talkie of national significance.

The Daily Sketch declares that Chaplin has accepted the proposal, adding that it "may be assumed that the outcome will be a signal mark of honor for Charlie when his work is done."

Chaplin, it is stated, turned down the first suggestion, that he should direct a film on "After the Mayflower"—an epic of the Pilgrim Fathers—and it was he himself who suggested that he should write and direct a film called "London," dealing with the romance and mystery of the city in which he was born.

The importance of films as national propaganda is assumed as the official reason for calling in the greatest film star.

Wales Makes Appeal for Radios for Blind Persons

A story in yesterday's TRIBUNE which said that vagrancy charges against Tony (Mops) Volpe, gangster and public enemy, had been dismissed rather than not prossed, was incorrect. It was stated on Monday, in regard to the death of Claude H. Killinger, 4621 North Damen avenue, that Mr. Killinger was unemployed and a laborer. He was a cost accountant and had held a regular position for twenty-eight years.

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 27.—[Special.]—Helen Twelvetrees and her new husband, Frank Woody, broker and former stunt man, interrupted their honeymoon so the actress could start her new starring picture, "Mad Marriage," exactly at 9 a. m. on May 17. There are several reasons for the actress' promptness. It was at 9 a. m. on May 17, 1930, that she began the picture, "Her Man," which made her a film star and brought wealth. The picture also brought fame and fortune on its other principals: Tay Garnett, director, received a salary increase and fame; Ricardo Cortez staged a movie comeback, and Marjorie Rambeau tasted film renown for the first time.

HELEN TWELVETREES.

The Pathe studio sought to repeat the recipe of "Her Man," in "Mad Marriage," and has given Miss Twelvetrees Garnett as director and Cortez again as a villain.

Miss Rambeau is missing, now being tied up under a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract to make "Susan Lennox" with John Miljan and others.

Miss Twelvetrees and Woody have imported a new English butler. They say their ambition is to jolt him out of his British imperturbability, to which, so far, he has clung in spite of the abrupt change to informal Hollywood customs.

"My husband nearly thawed him out," Miss Twelvetrees said, "when he addressed him by the name we privately have given him, "Dead Wan Eddie."

Complications arising when rival business agents sought to represent Jack Oakie with his employers, the Paramount corporation, followed by Oakie's representations for a salary increase, and a recent unexplained absence from the studio, probably mean that the playboy actor will be seeking employment as soon as his contract expires. The last picture Oakie made was "Dude Ranch," finished about a month ago, with Eugene Pallette, Stuart Erwin, and June Collyer. The box office hawks in the Paramount organization are disturbed because the actor's recent pictures have not fulfilled hopes for profits.

The first venture of the Birmingham author, Octavus Roy Cohen, out of comedy into dramatic writing, supplies Pathe with a vehicle featuring the Bill Boyd family, meaning Bill Boyd and wife, Dorothy Sebastian. The name of Cohen's story is "The Iron Chalice."

Critic Applauds Music Festival of High Schools

Orchestra, Chorus Give Interesting Program.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Singing in Hebrew an extremely ancient Sephardic melody, in Greek the likewise ancient hymn to Apollo, in Latin an Ambrosian and a Gregorian chant, and in English a number of more modern compositions, a chorus made up of students from thirteen high schools sang at Orchestra hall last night, and a similarly composite orchestra played.

The event was the fourth annual senior high school music festival. The schools represented were Austin, Englewood, Harrison, Lake View, Lane, Lindblom, Medill, McKinley, Phillips, Roosevelt, Schurz, Senn, and Tuley. Dr. J. Lewis Browne conducted the singers and Oscar W. Anderson the orchestra.

The orchestra led off with the "Military March from Saint-Saëns' "Algerian" Suite, not Brahms' "Academic Festival" Overture, as printed on the program, and gave it an altogether lively and stirring performance. Next came the turn of the singers, and it was unusually interesting to hear their dealings with altogether unusual music. If the quintuple rhythm of the Greek hymn puzzled some of them, they may be sure that it would have puzzled an adult chorus considerably more. When it came to the contrapuntal singing of the "Holy, Holy, Holy" from one of the Palestrina masses, it was a joy to the ear, and a pair of excerpts from Franck's "Ruth" were sung with all the spirit in the world.

The second part of the program, which emphasized some specimens of Americana in song, could not be heard because of another musical program elsewhere. But the first part justified the existence of high school music festivals. Young artists may not in all cases be finished artists, but they give interesting performances, and not the least because they are easy and unself-conscious about it.

In a program by two young Chicago artists at Kimball hall last night, Ada Weinhouse, soprano, revealed a quite extraordinary talent for interpretation of songs. In fact, her aptitude is at present almost too great for the rest of her vocal development. There were times when emphasis, though legitimate, caused tone, even pitch, to suffer. But the talent is there, also the voice, though the latter will be the better for further ripening.

Luigi Pupillo, her associate on the program, is a violinist possessed of an ingratiating tone and the equipment of a musician. Youth is likewise his present handicap, but also his future asset.

Group of Debutantes Model Clothes—Work of Their Own Hands

A group of debutantes of the last season accounted for many unexplained absences from their homes yesterday when they surprised their mothers with frocks they had made themselves. For the last few weeks they have assembled at the thimble section of Marshall Field & Co., snipping silks and satins with scissors and sewing fine seams to their heart's content. The fruit of their labor was on exhibit yesterday when they modeled their own accomplishments such as evening, afternoon and sports frocks, and lounging pajamas.

Study Cancer with X-Ray in Hunt for Cause

Use Beam as Microscope in U. of I. Research.

New experiments with the X-ray machine which may lead to important discoveries in connection with the diagnosis and treatment of cancer were explained yesterday by Dr. George L. Clark, professor of chemistry at the University of Illinois college of medicine before the university's Medical Research club.

For several years Prof. Clark, aided by graduate medical students, has been testing the uses of the X-ray as a supermicroscope in determining the patterns and composition of natural materials, including human tissues. Among the latest experiments have been those with cancerous tissues, both malignant and harmless, with a view to ascertaining the exact structure of each.

"We claim to have discovered nothing sensational," said Prof. Clark, "but we do feel that our studies may tell us more about the composition of cancerous tissues and, thus, more about the cause of the disease than we have known heretofore."

Dr. D. J. Davis, dean of the college of medicine, who heard Prof. Clark, pointed out that the diagnosis of cancer now is difficult and dependent largely upon the microscope, which has limitations. He said he was hopeful that Prof. Clark's work with the X-ray would produce a new method diagnosis which would prove valuable in cancer treatment.

Significant improvements in the X-ray machine have been made whereby it is possible to take a dozen photographs at one time and at intervals of a few minutes, according to Prof. Clark. This improved apparatus, he said, has opened up a new field of experimentation in the analysis of many kinds of solids and liquids.

In addition to showing the individual structures of human tissue, bones, teeth, muscles, and other parts of the body, the X-ray machine can now be used to test such substances as metals and textiles, Prof. Clark explained. This has induced experiments which already have resulted in new findings with regard to the makeup of industrial materials.

"We have found, for example, by testing shreds of cotton cloth taken from the tombs of Egyptian mummies that there is no cotton grown in the world today comparable in structure with that grown in 3000 B. C.," said Prof. Clark. "Evolution apparently has run backward in cotton, for even Egypt does not produce cotton of such fine quality as came from the tombs."

Art Association of South Side Presents Interesting Exhibit

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The South Side Art association has an interesting show in the Hotel Sherman this week. The association is one of the finest in Chicago working for the mutual understanding of the artist and his public and for the promotion of art activities in the city. The current exhibit is proof that the members do not entirely confine themselves to altruism. There are many delightful paintings here to be chalked up on the credit side of the association's ledger, proof positive that the members can paint as well as boost.

Florence White Williams is responsible for three of the strongest paintings in the exhibit. Her "Old World" is a gorgeous piece of colorful atmosphere, from the girl who gayly balances her bundle on her head to the stolid oxen hitched to the wooden wheeled cart. Her "Phlox" is brilliant and the profile portrait of a middle aged man in "Portrait of a Book Lover" is well handled. Frank V. Dudley is also of importance with his group of dune paintings, his green landscape and his magnificent night scene. Again our hats must be off to him as one of Chicago's best.

Carrie Jacobs Bond Visits Chicago; Hopes to Write Songs Again

Carrie Jacobs Bond, song composer who announced two years ago at the death of her son that she would never compose again, passed through Chicago yesterday on her way to her home in Janesville, Wis. She revealed that she intends to attempt composing again this year after attending the music festival at Salzburg, Austria, this summer. Mrs. Bond composed "A Perfect Day," said to be the world's best seller in music.

Wives of Four Governors Support Cotton Dress Week

Atlanta, Ga., May 27.—(AP)—George A. "Arthur Seligman, governor of New Mexico," the statement said, "has just telegraphed that Mrs. Seligman will consider it an honor to wear cotton apparel during national cotton week." The governors of Kentucky, New Jersey, and Virginia were the others heard from.

Presbyterians Drop Birth Control Issue as Move for Peace

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 27.—(AP)—The end, as far as this session is concerned, came tonight to a budding controversy over birth control in the Presbyterian general assembly when the special commission of marriage, divorce, and birth control decided to eliminate the entire section of its preliminary report dealing with the question.

The preliminary report recommended that the assembly, supreme judiciary of the church, convening here tomorrow, approve birth control when practiced because of maternal health or economic situations. The commission's action of today came after a storm of protest and criticism from members of the church and as a result the matter will not be presented to the assembly.

Little question remained tonight as to the election tomorrow of the Rev. Dr. Lewis Seymour Mudge of Philadelphia as moderator of the assembly, or as to his reelection next Monday as stated clerk, chief executive officer of the church, which has 2,000,000 communicant members throughout the nation.

Little Blarney Acts Like Magic; Shy Girl Told to Give It Trial

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"In a recent article you spoke of the advisability of overcoming sensitiveness and forcing yourself to do the obvious thing rather than allowing yourself to retire to the background. May I ask you how this can be done? Most of the popular girls I know are obvious, but I think some of them make themselves ridiculous. What is the difference? JUNE?"

By doing the obvious I meant doing the kind of thing other girls do, such as, let's say, handing out a bit of blarney to a boy who looks as if he could absorb it [a look you may attribute to all boys; all girls, too; everybody, in fact]. Study your "specimen" and find out just what his weak spot might be, or his enthusiasm.

Practice on your girl friends first. Feel around and find out just what bright, cheerful remark of yours might indicate that you knew something about them by reputation. Something good, of course. You might try it on your brother or on your dad and watch the response.

Shy, shrinkin' girls usually have to learn to talk. One good way to go about it is to focus your remarks in such a way that you start the other one on his favorite topic. As for making yourself ridiculous, one can only do that who is gauche, coarse, or crude, and none of these faults, as a rule, are common to a sensitive person.

The object of a training course to overcome sensitiveness is to get the mind off self and focussed on the other fellow. What difference does it make, anyway, if you make a mistake; if your bright remark didn't go over with the bang you hoped? Try again.

Most girls have had to learn to be popular. They've had to learn the thing to say and the thing to be left unsaid. They've had to discard some of their early, pet theories about boys, and accept them for what they are. They've had to accept invitations and learn to play games [be interested in sports, anyway] and learn to dance awfully well and develop a snappy line, or a charmingly agreeable one.

RIDDING ROSES OF PESTS.

Already two kinds of insects that may become destructive in the rose garden have put in their appearance this spring. They are the green aphids, or plant lice, and slugs, and according to J. J. Davis, entomologist at Purdue university, require immediate attention if best results are to be obtained with roses this season.

Aphids cluster on the terminal buds and shoots and suck the plant juices, causing a deformed bud, or weakened shoot. Especially is it important that these aphids be destroyed when they first make their appearance in small numbers, because they increase so rapidly that if allowed to reproduce naturally they soon overrun the plant.

The most effective control is spraying with a nicotine or pyrethrum extract, several reliable kinds being on the market. If a nicotine sulphate extract is used, use a small amount of soap: one cubic inch to a gallon of water. Whether nicotine or pyrethrum is used, the spray must be applied as a fine, forceful spray to hit the insects.

Rose slugs eat or skeletonize the leaves of rose, and if unchecked may cause complete defoliation and serious damage to the plant. Rose slugs are soft bodied larvae and are controlled by contact insecticides the same as aphids. These insects are also destroyed by arsenical sprays or dusts, such as arsenate of lead. In any case the treatment should be made as soon as there is the first evidence of the insect.

WEDDING

The marriage of Miss Eleanor Willoughby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Willoughby of 6166 Sheridan road, to Walter Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Campbell of Pasadena, took place at the Willoughby's Pasadena residence on April 25.

Here's an Exercise That Will Model the Contours of the Arms

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

There isn't any reason on earth why one of those pastel tinted bath towels shouldn't be yanked off the showoff rack and put to work. And I've found a swell job to put it to. It must be washed every so often, so why not make it earn its soap?

Only, of course, you don't need a fancy towel for what I'm about to suggest. A plain one will do just as well. But let it be fairly sturdy. A laundry worn one might come apart in the action.

Its use is in connection with a perfectly grand exercise for several things that may all your figure. It was originally suggested as an arm trainer. Not an arm muscle trainer, but an arm modeler, I should say. Guaranteed to take off that hanging wad from the upper arm, particularly, or to round out a too lean one.

And this you can do immediately you get your drying done in the a. m.'s, when you're feeling kinda brisk and chipper, after your shower. Choose a bathtowel not too long, nor too short. Stand up straight and with the towel grasped heartily at each end, swing it from the knees in front, overhead to the back of the knees, then back again. Repeat fifty times.

You'll determine the right towel size by being able to make it swing with your arms extended full length. If you use too short a towel you'll cramp the arm and get a crink in the back. It's the same principle as the circular arm movement, but it gives you something to do. Anyway, try it and see if you don't get a good pull on those upper arm muscles.

If you've little fat pads, or big ones at the shoulder socket you can get rid of them quickly with this exercise; also, those pads of flesh on the body just under the arm which make one feel that fat is a mean incumbrance.

And when you're doing it you'll note what it will do for the waist and diaphragm. Also, for teaching you to hold that chest up and thereby getting the feminine curve that is now so desirable a silhouette line, the towel swinging exercise is recommended.

Miss Ruffner Is Engaged to Harrison Todd

BY THALIA——

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM ROGERS RUFFNER of Highland Park announce the engagement of their daughter, Marianna Rogers, to Harrison Tyler Todd of Schenectady, N. Y., son of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Henry D. Todd of Washington, D. C.

Miss Ruffner was graduated from the North Shore Country Day school and from Pine Manor college at Wellesley, Mass. She and her sister, Miss Virginia Ruffner, made their debut together in 1929 and are members of the Junior league. Mr. Todd is a graduate of Leland Stanford university and at present is associated with the General Electric company in Schenectady. He is to arrive today to be the guest of his fiancée's parents at Ruffwood for the Memorial day weekend, and the Ruffners are to give a small dinner for him and their daughter at the Saddle and Cycle on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Martin J. Insull is opening that lovely little summer house of hers, Orchard house in Highland Park, next Tuesday for a tea for a small group of friends who are interested in the Frontier Nursing service. Mrs. Mary Breckinridge, director of the service, is to be the guest of honor.

Chicago Delegation to Sail Tomorrow.

The Majestic will steam out of New York harbor tomorrow night with a representation of Chicagoans including the George Henry Highs, Mrs. Harry H. Shearson, Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson and her two daughters, Annie Laurie and Mary, and Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland and her daughter, Martha. The Highs are going to England for their annual sojourn there with their son-in-law and daughter, Sir Charles and Lady Burney. Mrs. Shearson goes first to Paris and is to be away all summer. Mrs. Borland and Martha are to join Miss Beatrice and Miss Harriet, who have been traveling around the world, in Paris. Mr. Ryerson is waiting until June 20 to sail with his son, Joseph T. Jr., when the school year at St. Mark's is over, to join Mrs. Ryerson. They plan to be in Switzerland for much of the summer.

Countess Seefried, who is a granddaughter of the late Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, has been a visitor in Chicago for the last few days. Dempster MacMurphy and his mother, Mrs. Heman Pettingill, who is here from St. Louis to visit him, entertained her at dinner on Tuesday evening, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster gave a dinner for her last night.

Hailstorm Notes and News of Dude Ranchers.

Brevities—North shore gardeners have been busy comparing notes and bemoaning damages done by the capricious hailstorm on Sunday night. Mrs. William E. Casselberry's garden was absolutely untouched, and a few others are reported as unharmed, but most of them suffered badly. The tulip blooms were mostly all snapped off, but the other flowers, trees, and shrubs will recover shortly. . . . The Alexander Kirks, Mr. and Mrs. Paget Cady, and Mrs. Wilson Blainey are motoring to Palisades Park, Mich., tomorrow for the Decoration day weekend. . . . Mrs. Aldis J. Browne was to land in Quebec yesterday from her European trip. . . . Count Ruggero Visconti di Modrone of Milan [known more familiarly as Ruggi to the friends he made during his stay here last winter] is in Chicago for a short visit with Jacob Bischof at the Ambassador East. . . . Dude ranching is getting to be such a fad that the Burlington railroad is to operate a special dude ranch train on Saturday nights this summer to Sheridan, Wyo., center of the dude ranch country, whence the dudes must stage it for from 10 to 75 miles to the various corrals. The trains have to be very de luxe, all drawing rooms and compartments, because the prospective passengers are that kind. About 80 to 85 per cent of the dude ranchers are New Yorkers, the rest from Chicago.

When your luck isn't running so high out at Washington Park some afternoon and your avidity for following the sport of kings is a bit on the wane, take time off for a careful inspection of the new frieze of pictures in the clubhouse. It is composed of a series of enlargements of camera snapshots that Howard Gillette has collected, showing various famous race days and openings at fashionable turf centers in this country and Europe. The photographs have been taken over a quite long period of years, and some of the old ones from back in the gay '90s are particularly interesting. The reproductions have been colored and are charmingly decorative as well as fascinating to examine closely. There are scenes of Ascot, Belmont Park, Churchill Downs, and countless other racing parks.

The attendants for the marriage of Miss Alice Colby Judson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Judson of Evanston, and Gordon Canning, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew P. Canning of Hubbard Woods, to take place on Tuesday, June 9, at the First Baptist church in Evanston, include Mrs. Kingsley Loring Rice, the bride's sister, as matron of honor; Mrs. Charles French, Mrs. Donald Scott, and Mrs. Rowland Wehr as bridesmaids; Kingsley Loring Rice as best man, and as ushers Albert Belshe Jr., Dillon Brown, Courtney Fitzpatrick, Lawrence Nelson Jr., Arthur Seibold, and Rowland Wehr. A small reception at the Country club of Evanston will follow the service. Mrs. Robert Atwater, Mrs. David Kimball, Mrs. Charles French, Mrs. Ronald Chinnock, Mrs. Donald Rogers, and Mrs. Drennan Slater are among the hostesses giving luncheon parties for Miss Judson before the wedding, and others entertaining are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kitchell Webster, who are to give a dinner party this evening; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Ingram, who are to give a dinner dance at Exmoor on Saturday evening, June 6, and Miss Margaret Lee, who is to give a supper musical on Sunday, June 7. The bridal dinner and rehearsal are to be at the Judson residence the evening before the wedding.

Here Are Two Ways to Help You Insure Health for the Baby

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Although this article appears late in the month of May, it is being written while the words "Child Health day" are being blazoned forth on many newspaper front pages.

It seems as though it would hardly be possible to say any more on the subject of child health than is being said as I write this. Even so, there is one thing that could stand greater emphasis in relation to child health. That one thing is the necessity for pushing back our efforts in trying to secure health for our children. By that I mean not just taking intelligent care of the child after he's born, while he's a big child, while he's a toddler, while he's a baby—but taking intelligent care of him before he's born.

And of course, what that really means is that the expectant mother should take intelligent care of herself. In taking proper thought for her own diet, rest, exercise, and so forth, she is taking proper care of the baby—but all that was touched upon yesterday and the day before.

Of course, she will also sew or buy the small clothes, shop for cribs or bassinets, and concern herself with all the delightful details that no one can quite appreciate who has not prepared for her baby's arrival. But there is another kind of preparation prospective mothers should make. They should prepare themselves with some knowledge of baby care and training. Of course, this information can be gained after the baby is born.

But the danger in that is that often a mother will find herself all tangled up in a problem of feeding irregularity or sleep fussiness which she could have prevented with a little intelligent fore-knowledge. So many expectant mothers have never had any experience with babies before their own came, that this department will be glad to offer suggestions for keeping the well baby well to those who care to write in for them.

First Volume of 1930 Census Report Ready; Complete Free List

Washington, D. C., May 27.—(AP)—A gift book, volume one of the fifteenth census, is being forwarded to all chambers of commerce and all daily newspapers in towns of more than 50,000.

The list of recipients went from the census bureau to the government printing office today, along with a form letter for each, explaining that only one copy would come free, and any additional volumes would cost $2 each.

Appearing seven months earlier than the corresponding volume for the census of 1920, the book was made convenient for the fact-searcher. It was bound as a handbook, octavo size, instead of quarto as in the 1920 census. The unemployment volume, to be published next, also will be octavo. The rest of the more than twenty volumes will be quarto.

"We decided to sacrifice uniformity to convenience," said Census Director William M. Steuart. "After all, this first book is the one that is used by a large majority of the people."

Food Talk.

Mrs. A. A. Writes: "I know avocado is considered a very aristocratic salad fruit. But every salad of it that I have tried to eat has such a fatty or buttery consistency that I cannot call it good. The color of the fruit is so beautiful that I wish I could make a satisfactory salad of it. Is there any such thing as an avocado molded in an iced gelatin mixture?"

Avocado contains more fat than any known fruit and Mrs. A. A. describes its consistency well when she call it buttery. Because of this high fat content it is well to steer clear of mayonnaise or even French dressing that is too oily. One of the most delicious salads I've ever eaten is just plain avocado served with salt, pepper, and either lime, lemon or orange juice.

For those who are just learning to appreciate the flavor of avocado it is well to cut the richness down by combining it with other fruits or vegetables with little or no fat content.

Avocado in combination with cucumbers and tomatoes is especially delicious. Tomatoes may be stuffed with a mixture of diced avocado, cucumbers and French dressing. Or the avocado and cucumber may be molded in an acid gelatin. And if the gelatin is tomato aspic so much the better.

Another gelatin salad that is effective to both the palate and the eye is composed of maraschino cherries, celery, pineapple, and avocado. The cherries are cut in such a way as to form a five pointed star when spread out. Put this star in the bottom of the mold and anchor it there with a spoonful of gelatin. The lemon or orange prepared sweetened gelatin powder may be used. The diced pineapple, avocado and celery are added in layers and the gelatin is added to fill the intervening spaces. The salad when congealed and cold is removed from the mold and served on lettuce leaf.

Another class of salads combines avocado with grapefruit, pineapple or oranges. The avocado is halved, peeled, and then sliced crosswise, resulting in semi-circular shaped pieces. Canned pineapple slices are cut in half and alternate slices of avocado and pineapple are arranged on the plate. If grapefruit is used the sections are freed from the membrane and then alternated with avocado.

Use of Music, Colors in Tests on Insane Hospital Inmates

Experiments in the use of music, colors and various odors in the treatment of mental cases at the Chicago State Hospital for the Insane are being conducted by Dr. Walter Spilkay, experimental psychologist, it was announced yesterday. A machine known as the Colorama, donated by Samuel Insull, is utilized in the experiments, in which it is sought to have the patients form mental associations by use of the music, colors and smells.

THE PUBLIC IS ENTITLED TO KNOW THIS

Many Preparations Labeled "Milk of Magnesia" Are Nothing More Than Mixtures of Magnesia Powder and Water

According to recent laboratory tests, it is now indicated that many preparations on the market labeled "Milk of Magnesia" are nothing more than mixtures of magnesia powder and water.

Note that such preparations are clearly labeled "Milk of Magnesia." And, thus, that the name "Milk of Magnesia" on a bottle offers you or your children no certain protection. Watch out.

Your own druggist may not as yet know this situation. And thus, in all innocence, sell you one of these mixtures of magnesia powder and water, if you go into his store and ask only for "Milk of Magnesia."

For this reason the public is openly and publicly urged to ask for and accept only genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—as endorsed by doctors—for use in the home. Especially when it is used for children.

None of those products made of magnesia powder and water are "like" or the "same" as genuine Phillips'. They can't be. For Phillips' is made in a laboratory with more than 50 years' experience in the making of Milk of Magnesia. Some of the methods developed in making Phillips' are used exclusively in the Phillips' Laboratories.

Hence, for 50 years Phillips' has been recognized as the world's leading laboratory devoted exclusively to making the finest magnesia products.

What folly, then, in the light of these things, to take chances on some other product of which you know nothing. What an injustice to yourself or your children to let anything but the recognized Finest in internal remedies come into your home.

Our interest in this does not matter, but yours does. Get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia at any drug store. Ask for it by name and identify it by the package illustrated in this advertisement—the blue package with the signature of Charles H. Phillips on the label.

SAFETY

For You and Yours in This Bottle

You can assist others by refusing to accept anything but the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Do this in the interest of yourself and your children—and in the interest of the public in general.

By Alice Campbell

SYNOPSIS.

Clare, fifteen year old daughter of Iris de Bertincourt, disappears mysteriously. She and her mother lived in a remote section of Paris. Clare attended a school play one evening and was brought home by friends. Her mother heard the car stop in front of the house and Clare's friends bidding her good night, but when she opened the door Clare had vanished.

Iris has been separated for years from her husband, Marcel de Bertincourt, a man of great charm, but no moral sense. They are cousins and the possible heirs of their tyrannical Aunt Victoire, the Comtesse de Castelmauron.

Iris planned to divorce her husband and marry Maj. Alan Charnwood. Charnwood, about to depart for Africa, has postponed his trip to help Iris.

Iris moves to her aunt's home. When she arrives she learns that her husband is already domiciled there. He seems to have changed in character, and has taken charge of the search for Clare. He has been seeing Clare, unknown to her mother, for some time past, and knows more of the child's life and her friends than Iris.

Alan is refused admittance at the home of the comtesse. Iris sees him secretly and tells him that on account of her aunt's financial assistance she cannot offend her. They plan to meet at Helen Roderick's, the American woman for whom Iris has been working. Alan meets Marcel at Helen's and learns that they are friends, unknown to Iris. He recalls having seen Marcel at Le Touquet, gambling heavily, and hobnobbing with a coarse looking couple. Alan runs across an old friend, Tommy Rostetter, a journalist, and asks his help. They drop in a café, where Alan sees the woman who was one of De Bertincourt's companions in Le Touquet. They go to Tommy's apartment. Tommy shows Alan an apartment opposite, formerly Marcel's but now occupied by Suzanne Marly, an actress. As he is leaving, Alan sees Marcel entering Miss Marly's home. Helen tells Alan that she had dinner with Marcel the night Clare disappeared. Alan receives a wire giving him an extra fortnight's leave in Paris.

Iris receives a letter stating that Clare is being held for ransom. Her aunt offers to pay the sum asked if Marcel and Iris will become reconciled.

INSTALLMENT XXXIV.

AN INTERRUPTED VISIT.

"Iris," Charnwood said, evenly; "you may as well face the truth. You have been bought outright for three million francs. Whether you are willing to pay the price or not, I don't intend to submit to it. Somehow or other we have got to clear you of all obligations."

"But how? There is no possible way."

"If I could raise this amount it would give you the chance to retract your promise." As he said this he knew that what he proposed would mean the sacrifice of his entire capital and a burden of debt into the bargain, but that did not deter him.

"You would do this for me?" Tears sprang to her eyes. "O, Alan, it is good of you—but I couldn't allow it."

"Never mind that now. We still have a small loophole of escape, which we must set ourselves to make the most of. Supposing between now and Friday we could get some inkling of the true facts, we could save Clare without your aunt's assistance. That is what we've got to think of now."

She looked at him as though she thought him mad, but intent on the problem of how to direct her thoughts without giving away his own suspicion, he paid no attention.

"I want your help. I want you to think back carefully to last Tuesday evening and recall every single detail, no matter how trivial. Do you understand?"

"Very well, I'll try," she agreed, puzzled. "What do you want to know?"

"First, since the police are fairly certain that some one—presumably a woman—was hidden in the garden before Clare came home, I am anxious to establish when and how she got in. Let's reason it out. Could it have been during the time you were upstairs changing your dress?"

"Not possibly. My room is just over the front door. The gate could not have been opened without my hearing it."

"I thought as much. You always hear the gate?"

"Always—and I was particularly on the alert that evening, if you remember. I can swear it was opened only four times—when you left, twice for my aunt, and again when Clare arrived."

"Did you actually see your aunt go out?"

"No, she made me remain in the salon because of my throat."

"Then it's conceivable that either she or Ursula may have stayed behind?"

She gazed at him in amazement. "How could that be? The chauffeur would have noticed."

"You forget what you've just hinted about the chauffeur. No, don't try to understand me. I'm merely suggesting that if the gate was only opened at certain times this unknown person must have come inside on one of those occasions, and if it was not when I left, then——" he broke off.

"Flowers?" she echoed, blankly; then, before he could explain, recollection dawned. "You mean Marcel's roses! They had quite passed out of my mind. There's nothing in it, though," she added, shaking her head. "I saw the man leave the garden and there was no one with him."

He felt a tinge of excitement. "See here, have you ever mentioned that incident to the detectives?"

"No, I don't think so. As it happened fully an hour and a half earlier in the evening I didn't attach any importance to it. Indeed, it had slipped from my memory till this moment."

Perhaps unconsciously she had wanted to forget what only stirred up unpleasant associations. However that might be, Charnwood, clutching at straws, suddenly saw that this one tiny happening, overlooked by them both, might possess a hidden significance. His mind worked quickly.

"I'm beginning to recall more of this. Wasn't there a longish pause before the bell rang?"

"So there was. I looked out of the window."

"I know you did. Now, if only one knew where those flowers came from!"

"But I do know—the name was on the box. It was a shop called—what's that?"

With a nervous gasp she sprang up, cramming the anonymous letter into her bag. The door had opened behind them, and on the threshold stood De Bertincourt, staring from one to the other with a face of ghastly pallor.

"Marcel!" she exclaimed. "Is anything wrong?"

Charnwood, watching him narrowly, saw that although he continued to scan their features with a look of sharp question, he seemed unable to utter a sound. At last he rallied himself with a little laugh, which seemed to show relief, and came forward.

"Nothing's wrong," he replied in a rather unnatural voice. "Only you've given us a bad fright, running off as you did. We didn't know what to think, what danger you——" he halted, adding anxiously: "The letter! You've got it safe?"

"Certainly. I merely brought it with me to get Major Charnwood's opinion," she returned quietly.

"Then that is all right. Only you can understand how we felt, Tante Victoire and I. If anything happened to it, if some one guessed its contents——"

While the substance of his remarks was rational enough, his jerky manner of speaking gave Charnwood the idea that he was thinking about something quite different. Moreover, he still displayed signs of agitation, his skin a sickly hue, his forehead moist with perspiration. Evidently he was less skeptical than Iris supposed on the subject of the threats contained in the letter.

"Please overlook my abruptness, major," he apologized. "This sudden news, welcome though it is, has upset my balance rather badly."

"At all events, I am more thankful than I can say to know your daughter has been found," said Charnwood.

"Found—yes, or at least we hope it to be the case. Unfortunately, the business is not concluded." He appealed to Charnwood with a distraught gesture. "What on earth do you make of it all, major? But no—don't answer! I'd rather you didn't. After all, how can you or any one else form a judgment? Like us, you are hopelessly in the dark."

As he drew a shaking hand over his smooth hair Charnwood again got the impression that he was talking aimlessly, against time. He had shown no surprise at finding his wife's friend still about, a fact probably explained by his inner perturbation. On the contrary, he seemed to take Charwood's presence for granted and to regard him as a personal ally, an attitude slightly flattering. At the same time, in the back of Charnwood's mind lurked the knowledge that this was the second time De Bertincourt had broken in upon an interview between them. Was he faintly jealous, or had he some other reason for not trusting Iris? It began to look as though he was afraid to let her out of his sight.

"I suppose I had better go back," announced Iris after another awkward pause. "I'm sorry if Tante Victoire was bothered about me." She moved towards the door.

As if he had been waiting for this, De Bertincourt made an eager assent. "I'll drive you home," he said quickly. "And you, too, monsieur, if you will give that pleasure. I may drop you at your hotel?"

Charnwood declined with thanks, but the other politely insisted. "No, no, it is not the least trouble."

They descended together. Iris took her place in the rear of the car, while Charnwood, in obedience to a sign from his host, got into the seat beside him. This arrangement was not at all to his liking. There was no chance to finish their talk, nor had he the least assurance of seeing Iris alone again before the crisis terminated. He was ready to swear with annoyance, but there was nothing to be done.

French Navy Sails Seine to Pay Honor to St. Joan of Arc

ROUEN, France, May 27.—(AP)—France's navy, represented by the most imposing flotailla that could navigate the River Seine, took part today in the national homage to St. Joan of Arc, burned at the stake almost 500 years ago.

Under the command of Admiral Laborde, three destroyers, five torpedo boats, and one submarine arrived at the quai near the Boieldieu bridge, where the saint's ashes were thrown into the stream. The bluejackets, with their white caps and red pompons, manned the rails and stood at attention while their officers saluted as the craft passed the historic spot.

Doris Kenyon, Movie Star, Sails to Sing in Europe

New York, May 27.—(AP)—Doris Kenyon, widow of the movie star Milton Sills, sailed today for France on the Aquitania, accompanied by her 4 year old son, Milton Sills Jr. Miss Kenyon, herself a film star and singer, will take part in the Mozart festival at Munich and give several concerts in Berlin and Vienna. Milton Jr., when led to the sun deck for his picture, tightly grasped a blue paper bag, and when the pictures were done he set up a howl because the bag had been misplaced. "Oh, it's his seeds," said his mother. "Mrs. Will Hayes brought them to the ship for him. He loves to garden, and when we get back he wants to plant them in his garden at Hollywood."

Cotton Blouse New Paris Style Note

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—This being a suit season, blouses are one of the most important style items of the smart summer wardrobe, and among the smartest of these are blouses that will wash. This means cotton, and the Paris couturiers are making nine thousand and ninety-seven varieties of these invaluable aids to summer freshness.

Innocent fabrics like organdy, batiste, just plain cambric, dimity, dotted muslin, and embroidered Swiss and piqué are momentarily taking the place of their more sophisticated silk sisters.

Sketched here are three of the latest Paris variations of the cotton blouse theme. At the top is a sheer, cream colored batiste blouse from Maggy Rouff, trimmed with finely embroidered and appliqued batiste flowers. Little groups of four fine diagonal tucks lend further fullness to the simple Greek draped décolleté and to the lower puffed sleeves.

Alex makes the tailored blouse in the center of white cambric with triangular collar and cuffs of white piqué worn with their ends pulled through buttoned tabs of the white cambric. Horizontal pin tucks lend interest to the front and back of the blouse. The belt is white cambric trimmed with a tab of white piqué.

The third blouse is a tunic of white organdy trimmed with groups of horizontal pin tucks. It has tiny double ruffles of the white organdy with picot edges, round décolleté, short sleeves, and cutaway hem. An organdy belt ties in a bow in front and a similar bow finishes the round neck.

HAM TASTES BETTER WHEN BOILED OR BAKED WITH SUGAR

Sugar Combines Ideally with Salty Tang of Smoked Ham

There are few meats that can surpass ham in taste-appeal and popularity. When it comes from the oven glazed with sugar and dotted with cloves, it is tantalizing to have to wait for a pink, savory-sweet slice.

To develop the flavor of ham to the utmost, put half a cup of sugar and half a cup of vinegar in the water in which your whole or half ham simmers. Then after the ham is tender let it remain in the water until cool. The result is a delicious, savory flavor.

Ham, however, is but one of the many foods where sugar can be used to advantage. In seasoning meat stews and pot-roasts, canned or fresh vegetables, a dash of sugar to a pinch of salt greatly improves the flavor. Salt by itself merely overcomes flatness. It is the sugar that "brings out" the flavor. Most foods are more delicious with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

INDIA OFFERS TO CARRY OUT LOAN LONDON SPURNED

Gandhi Agrees to Drop His Opposition.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 27.—In order to save the Indian financial situation, it was learned here today, Indian merchants propose that native financiers and princes subscribe immediately to the £50,000,000 loan which fell flat in London last week. It is understood that Mahatma Gandhi agreed to reverse his previous stand in the Nationalist congress on loans and has consented to the subscription.

Will Cover 30 Millions.

According to the proposal, the chambers of commerce of Bombay, New Delhi, and Calcutta will take up the £30,000,000 not subscribed for at London. Financiers are prepared to subscribe for £20,000,000 and the princes have already offered to purchase £10,000,000 worth of the loan bonds.

In view of the fact that the loan was to have covered deficits in the revenue needed for the relief of peasants, the Indians are prepared to aid the government. But in return the government is asked to reverse the policy restricting paper currency, instituted in 1928, against the desires of the merchants, making money tighter and increasing the interest on loans. If the government complies the Indians are prepared to help future loans as well as the present one to the extent of £100,000,000.

Gandhi Approves Loan.

Merchants in consultation with Gandhi pointed out that the government treasury has been crippled by the Nationalist congress no tax campaign and the heavy decrease in customs from railway receipts. The only way to meet the demand of the farmers and commissions on land revenues is the issuance of the loan, and the failure of the present loan added to the government's difficulties. Gandhi therefore agreed to the merchants' action, accepting the desirability of loans which are essential in giving adequate relief to the people during a critical time in the country's finances.

It is believed that the failure of this loan in London was an eye-opener for the Congress party and it is expected that there will be less talk of repudiation of the government in the future.

OLD CITY HALL EXPERTS DRAW THEIR LAST PAY

City Controller Szymczak yesterday submitted to the city council a list of vouchers paid for personal services during April. The vouchers, totaling $36,925, are believed to be the last to come from the "experts" hired by the former city hall administration.

Among those drawing large sums were Samuel L. Golan, $3,112; John G. Drennan, $2,600; Frederick A. Bangs, $1,098, and Albert H. Veeder, $2,300.

Attorneys and engineers paid for subway work drew approximately $15,000. Included were Walter L. Fisher, as chief counsel for the city, $5,000; Robert Ridgway, chief consulting engineer, $2,500, and Attorneys Allan T. Gilbert, $2,302; George A. Mason, $3,000, and Joseph J. Sullivan, $2,300.

Pupils Take Temporary Charge of City Council

Theodore Black of Schurz High school, Myrtle Lohner of Roosevelt High school, and John Ahern of Calumet High school officiated temporarily at the meeting of the city council yesterday as mayor, city clerk, and corporation counsel, respectively, and held a short parliamentary drill. These pupils were members of a group of 104 who last Saturday night were awarded medals for scholarship at the Civic assembly in the Civic opera house. The 104 pupils visited the council chambers and were addressed briefly by Mayor Cermak.

GENEVA, May 27.—(AP)—Representatives of 50 countries assembled today for a conference sponsored by the league of nations on limitation of the manufacture of narcotics.

ALTERIE RETURNS TO ANSWER U. S. PERJURY CHARGE

Louis Alterie, lieutenant of the slain Dion O'Banion, north side gangster, arrived in Chicago yesterday from his ranch at Riland, Colo., to appear tomorrow before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker for preliminary examination on a charge of perjury. Alterie has been under bond of $15,000 since March 5, when he was alleged to have given perjured testimony to a federal grand jury investigating income tax cases.

Alterie left behind him at Glenwood Springs, Colo., a $5,000 bond to appear in court there to answer assault charges on which he was arrested Tuesday. Alterie was charged with slugging Carl Schiesher with a gun and with shooting at Andrew Wilson and Maurice Mulnix after he had ordered the three to leave Sweetwater lake, on which he claimed to have a lease.

H. J. Heinz Company spent eight years in perfecting the exclusive process by which cereal-cellulose is added to crisp, delicious flakes. It costs much more to make Heinz Rice Flakes this way. But it costs you no more.

CUBS WHIP REDS, 8-4; SOX WIN TWICE, 5-4, 10-1

Hack Wilson Back in Lineup.

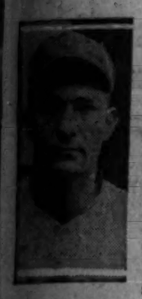
BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., May 27.—The good Cincinnati Reds this afternoon put the Chicago Cubs in third place in the National league when they obligingly lost the eighth straight of the season series. The score was: Chicago, 8; Cincinnati, 4; and the Cubs ate large suppers happy in the thought that tonight they are a half game ahead of the Boston Braves in the first division.



REGS STEPHENSON

Wilson Returns to Lineup.

The contest also was of added interest to Chicago observers, for it brought the return of Hack Wilson to active baseball labor. When Cuyler was seized with a misery in his stomach in the fourth, Hack took his place at bat. The pudgy one celebrated his return with a double which unquestionably would have been a homer at Wrigley field. He also drove home a run with a long fly in the ninth. Afield, Hack made two putouts and an assist.

Bush went all the way for the Cubs, and though he allowed 11 hits, was of sufficient skill to take his critics forget his recent tragic starts against St. Louis and Boston. The Reds used four pitchers, who gave up 11 hits.

Charley Grimm was out as a result of his accident yesterday and Blair played well in his stead. Jurges continued a flash at third and apparently will be hard to displace.

The Cubs will have to beat Red Lucas tomorrow to keep their Cincinnati slate clean. Pat Malone will be looking for his fifth victory.

Cubs Score Run Without Hit.

The Cubs got their first run before they got their first hit. It involved a beautiful example of left hand pitching inefficiency on the part of one Ray Wyrsong, the Reds' starting pitcher. Stephenson walked and moved to second on Cuyler's sacrifice. Then Wyrsong walked Hartnett and Jurges to fill the bases and walked Blair to force Stephenson across with the first run of the game. After this Mister Wyrsong walked to the showers and Strelecki took over the pitching job. Bush hit into a double play.

The first Cub hit was a double to left by Hornsby after two were out in the third. Rogers scored when Stephenson doubled to right center. Hartnett scored the third Chicago run in the fourth. He walked, went to second on Jurges' sacrifice, and ran home on Blair's single.

Double Play Stops Reds.

A double play prevented the Reds from making a million in the fourth, as it was they got only one run in four outfield singles and a walk. Roush singled to left and stopped at second on Cuccinello's single to center. Durocher attempted to bunt, but popped to Bush, and Guy, from a sitting posture, threw to English in time to double Roush off second. Asbjornsen singled to right and Cuccinello stopped at second. Strelecki singled to center, Cuccinello scoring and Asbjornsen stopping at second. Heathcote walked, filling the bases. Sigafoos flied to Wilson.

The Reds made a run in the fifth on two hits. Hendrick singled to center and was forced by Cullop. Cullop went to second while Hornsby was throwing out Roush, and scored on Cuccinello's single to right. Jurges fanned Durocher's single and runners went on second and first. Asbjornsen filed to Moore.

Hack's hello double opened the sixth, but the little man was out on Hartnett's grounder, Durocher to Sigafoos. Jurges caught the infield off guard and beat out a bunt towards third, Hartnett stopping at second. Blair singled to left center, Hartnett scoring and Jurges taking third. Jurges scored on Bush's fly to Cullop.

Stephenson Hits Triple.

Some long distance smacking got the Reds two runs in the eighth. Asbjornsen's third hit was a double to left center and he came home on Finch Batter Crabtree's triple to the scoreboard in left center. Heathcote fouled to Jurges, but Sigafoos sent home Asbjornsen with a long fly to Stephenson. Hendrick filed to Stephenson.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox had that champion complex again yesterday and used it to knock off Detroit's Tigers in both ends of a double bill before 12,000. In one portion of the bargain program the Chicagoans came dashing through with a sparkling ninth inning four run rally to win by 5 to 4, but in the nightcap they employed different tactics. They simply hammered the ball without caution, the high spot being a five run revolt against Waite Hoyt in the second inning, and won in a romp, 10 to 1.

LEW FONSECA.

Among those present in the evening fight was Pat Caraway, the long left-hander, and he was present both as pitcher and hitter. By his curving manipulations, aided of course by brilliant support, he melted down Detroit's batting prowess to five hits. As a hitter he himself did almost as well as the entire Tiger ensemble. He reeled off four hits, crossed the plate three times and drove in three of his mates. It made the sixth triumph of the season for the tall boy.

Frasier Routed in 5th.

The happenings which led up to the winning fireworks touched off by the Sox in the ninth inning of the first game involved some fairly skillful southpawing by Earl Whitehill and an unexpected blowup by taciturn Vic Frasier. Until the Sox got at him in the ninth Whitehill just about had things his own way. Frasier also had his way, but not for long. His start was so impressive that for four innings he traveled a hitless trail. Then the enemy almost knocked him out of his shirt with a three run sortie and McKain had to come to the rescue. He filled the assignment nobly, not giving up a run until the ninth.

Kerr, batting for McKain, scratched a single toward third to begin the winning parade of Chicagoans in the last inning. Blue followed with a pass. Reynolds dragged his charley horse up to the plate to swing for Watwood and crashed a single to center, Kerr scoring and Blue hustling to third. Reynolds retired to let Lyons run. While this change was being made, Whitehill was trudging home from his day's labors.

Fonseca Starts It.

As soon as Herring started operations, Fonseca, hitless in previous appearances, delivered the potent hit of the rally. He doubled to the score board in left, Blue going home and Lyons stopping at third with the tying run. Fothergill bounced to short but Lyons had such a flying start for the plate that Akers let him score and instead threw to first to nail Bob. Fonseca went to third on the play and home a moment later with the winning tally on Cissell's high bounder to Koenig.

FIRST GAME

Until Frasier's sudden fadeout in the first game the Sox had the pleasure of being in front for a few innings. They picked up a run off Whitehill in the second. Cissel pushed open this inning by doubling to left and was sacrificed to third by Eichrodt. Cissell tried to sneak home on Jeffries' bounder to short but was run down, Jeff in the meantime getting to second. Grube went to first base by getting himself plunked by a pitched ball. Then Frasier took the situation in hand. He singled to right, Jeff scoring.

The blast that ruined Frasier's string of hitless innings began when Akers singled to right with one out in the fifth. Schang doubled to left, putting Akers on third. The infield drew in for a possible play at the plate, but Whitehill hit a grounder that Fonseca couldn't reach so Akers scored and Schang followed him.

Vic Walks Three.

Frasier disposed of Johnson on a fly to right and then was overcome by panic. He walked Koenig, Stone, and McManus in succession, and Whitehall scored. Frasier then was obliged to get out of the party. McKain finished the inning with a popup.

McKain suffered only one hit in the stretch between the fifth and the ninth, but in the latter the Tigers caught up with him and their final run was the result. Johnson was the first man up and he hit a sneaker down the left field line for three bases. He went home on Koenig's single to right. McKain ended the inning without further trouble and the Sox then came through with the winning rally detailed above.

SECOND GAME

THROUGH FRENCH LANE'S BINOCULARS

Burning Up, owned by Mrs. Emil Denemark of Chicago, may be one of the best 3 year olds in the west, but he won't have a chance to prove it in the American Derby. Somebody forgot to name him for the $50,000 race.

Just about the time it was discovered he was not eligible for the American Derby, he cantered out on the Washington Park course yesterday and won the Windy City purse from a couple of Kentucky's strongest Derby contenders.

Leading all the way, the colt from Chicago beat the overrated Pittsburgher by a half length and withstood a drive in the stretch that only a game and fast race horse could have survived. Sunny Lassie, the eastern filly from the William Zeigler Jr. stable, was third. In last place came Scotland's Glory, C. W. Hays' Kentucky colt, which had performed so gallantly at Churchill Downs. Many persons were beginning to think of him in championship company.

But Scotland's Glory had no excuses. Neither did Pittsburgher. Neither did any of the rest of them. They were outrun by a fast horse. Burning Up ran his mile in 1:38 2-5. He paid his backers $7.46 in the mutuels.

Burning Up, a castoff of the Idle Hour farm of E. R. Bradley, by Black Toney out of Beach Talk, by Sunridge, was sold in the paddock at Hawthorne at a disposal sale of the Bradley horses last year. Burning Up has won his last five outs and is one of the most improved colts of the present racing season. His Domino line on top and the Sunridge line below combines one of the best crosses of England and America. Beach Talk, his mother, is of the same line as Reigh Count, Sunridge being the grandsire of the Leona stock farm champion.

The folks in the Denemark stable were in a panic when they discovered Burning Up had not been made eligible for the American Derby. Those $50,000 prizes don't grow on trees.

This filly, owned by Miss Marian Hollins, the former golf champion, had started four times out in the land of the native sons. She not only won all four races, but cracked track records every time she stepped on the race course.

So it isn't any wonder the Californians backed her so stoutly that she was an even money choice. And how the Californians whooped it up and tossed their hats into the air as she tore out into a six lengths' lead as the field hit the turn.

But as the stretch battle started the Queen of Nevada began to falter. Her ears went back. Jockey Bobby Jones applied the whip. Along came a pack of horses running so fast Nevada Queen must have longed for the wide open spaces.

At Sunrise, owned by E. B. McLean, won the race. Princess Ivre, from Joe Leiter's barn, was a length back and second. Givanna, the longest shot in the race, was third.

And where was the Queen? I knew

McLARNIN PAYS PETROLLE BACK WITH INTEREST

Slugs Out Decision in 10 Vicious Rounds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 27.—The customers saw spectacular vengeance done in the return fight between Jimmy McLarnin and Billy Petrolle in the Garden this evening. In return for one of the worst beatings that any fighter ever absorbed under the Garden firm's big top, McLarnin slugged Petrolle for ten rounds, inflicting much damage to a countenance already beaten badly out of shape, and won the unanimous decision at the close. Whereupon he turned a handspring and went away unblemished and apparently not much fatigued.

The bout drew a gross return of $82,377, or $70,184 net, the best haul of the year. The crowd was about 18,000.

A few months ago Petrolle caught McLarnin in a careless moment early in their fight and knocked him absent minded on his feet, proceeding thereafter to chop him apart in such a way that the finer sensibilities of certain patrons were offended and editorials appeared in the press asking if such things must be.

McLarnin Starts Slowly.

Tonight, McLarnin crept out of his corner, cautious and slow, going far to his left with a fixed grin on his face, and it was 30 seconds before he allowed Petrolle to come close enough to wing a punch. Petrolle landed only a few glancing swings to McLarnin's face in the entire ten rounds and for his steady forward plodding his only reward, aside from the financial, was a constant slugging of left hooks and right crosses on the chin, the cheekbones, and the heavy awnings of bruised material which overhang his black, squinty eyes.

Neither fighter went down and at times the routine was close to monotony, for McLarnin took few chances and Petrolle devoted himself almost entirely to catching. Not a single punch was offered to the body by either young man, Petrolle swinging constantly for the head that was generally bobbing beneath his punch or drifting back a few inches beyond the arc. Once before he had connected with one of those long-shot gambles and this evening his only hope was to land another of the same.

Petrolle Finds Trouble.

Three rounds went by before McLarnin felt sufficiently confident to risk a right hand punch himself, but this one being successful he settled down to a methodical scheme of clouting. His punches were grouped in series, a number of small, sharp left hooks to the face, then a hard left hook, followed by a creak of soles in the rosin and a dull, sodden sound as his right flicked across and banged the Fargo switchman on the face. Petrolle forced the fight, but he ran up no score and as often as he went looking for trouble he found it with his face.

Although neither young man sat down at any time, Petrolle wobbled and his legs seemed to melt under his 138 pounds of heft when a right cross caught him with special emphasis in the ninth. But his heart was solid and he knew by this time, on the word of his own seconds, who were rasping at him in his corner, that he had to knock his party out to win the fight.

Reminiscent of Rickard's Time.

The maximum price of $10.40, including a couple of dollars for the government, only reminded the customers of more prosperous nights in the same house and brought them storming into the lobby early in the evening. Save the absence of the dress suit trade, which used to occupy the first rows of the ringside section, the attendance was happily reminiscent of the late Rickard's time and the gory operatics of Berlenbach, Delaney, and Michael McTigue. In fact, some brazen optimist, identity unknown, did come down to the ring wearing a boiled shirt and it shone there amid the last year's worsteds and shiny serges.

Chicagoland Sports Congress to Exemplify Spirit of Sokol

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

But to thousands of Americans of Czecho-Slovakian ancestry the word Sokol holds a world of meaning. It is one of the symbols upon which the independence of the youthful republic of Czecho-Slovakia was founded in October, 1918. From this fact it follows that Sokol is not a word defining a single branch of sport, but one which embraces a vital part of a nation's structure.

Five Thousand Take Part.

Chicagoans will have an opportunity to witness a physical exemplification of Sokol on Sunday afternoon, June 21, when the Chicagoland Sports Congress, the greatest demonstration of mass athletics ever held in the United States, will take place at Soldiers' field.

This sports congress, which is sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, will bring together approximately 5,000 men, women and children athletes from all parts of Chicagoland, the majority of them of Czech, Polish, German, Norwegian, Swedish and Danish descent.

Chicago sport followers have seen football with its 22 combatants waging battle up and down a field and they have seen the eighteen principals of a baseball game in action, but the sports congress presents them with a view of thousands of athletes of both sexes, of all ages, going through their paces in unison.

Hundreds in Tug of War.

The big show in the lake front stadium will not be a mere repetition of calisthenics by the various groups. Included in the program, for instance, will be a tug of war. The competitors in this event will not be restricted to scores. Instead, the audience at the congress will see hundreds of men on either side tugging and straining for victory.

In addition there will be a number of team relay races, which will engage hundreds of runners. Champion gymnasts will give exhibitions, as will expert fencers from the various groups. As a climax to the congress all of the participants will assemble on the field for one grand mass drill. Nearly 5,000 men, women and children will take part in this spectacle.

Members of the American Sokol union expressed great enthusiasm when the sports congress was first suggested, and these sturdy sons and daughters of Czecho-Slovakia will be well represented both in the parade which will precede the show as well as in the events of the field.

To them the sports congress, with its cast of thousands, will be an old play, for mass athletics is the fundamental principle of Sokol, one which has been practiced by the majority of Bohemians from childhood up, and by their mothers and fathers before them.

Sokol Spirit of Freedom.

Sokol is the Czech word for falcon, a bird whose speed and courage typify the active, strenuous principles contained in the idea of the Sokol organization.

The origin and growth of Sokol is attributed to one man, Dr. Miroslav Tyrs, a professor of philosophy at the University of Prague during the middle years of the nineteenth century. Dr. Tyrs, an ardent patriot, foresaw that if the Czechs were to overcome the oppression of the Hapsburg dynasty, under which they had labored for nearly three centuries, they must be physically fit when the opportunity for freedom and independence presented itself. The realization of this foresight came with the declaration of Crecho-Slovakian independence in the last days of the world war.

Dr. Tyrs was an admirer and student of the life and times of the ancient Greeks, convinced that they owed their excellence to a rigid program of physical training. His aim was to lead Czech youth to the same goal in the same manner, and to that end he founded the gymnastic organization known as Sokol in 1862. It became a sort of national guard and bore fruit during the world war in the Sokol trained Czechs fighting against the Austrian and Russian armies.

Work Still Goes On.

Although Dr. Tyrs died in 1884, his work has endured to a point where every Czech considers it a pride to become a full fledged member of the Sokol society in his home town. The work includes mass calisthenics, apparatus exercises, pyramid building, wrestling, boxing, and fencing.

At intervals of five years a great "slet," or coming together of the "falcons," is held by the Sokol societies of Czecho-Slovakia in Prague, the nation's capital. It is one of the most important holidays on the Czech calendar, and in 1929, at the last Prague "slet," more than 80,000 men, women, and children took part. A number of Americans of Czech descent who participated in the 1929 gathering will be among the thousands in action at the Chicagoland Sports Congress.

BOAT MARATHON DRAWS BEST OF DISTRICT PILOTS

Veterans and Newcomers Race Saturday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The best outboard drivers in the central west will compete in THE TRIBUNE marathon from Milwaukee to Chicago Saturday. With the veterans there will be a group of younger pilots and the winners in the two divisions of the race, hydroplane and displacement, may be numbered among them. Motor luck, in a long race, frequently offsets experience.

Ray Pregenzer Jr. of Harrisburg, Ill., one of the best known outboard racers in the country, yesterday wired his entry in the marathon and also in the speed events which will be held Sunday afternoon at Navy Pier, commencing at 1 o'clock.

Watch This Milwaukee Girl.

Janet Boller, Milwaukee girl, 21 years of age, also will compete in the marathon. She will drive a Century Traveller. While she has had considerable experience she never has competed in a distance event before. According to Mrs. H. H. Raab, chairman of the Milwaukee committee in charge of the start of the marathon, Miss Boller is expected to have an excellent chance for victory.

The handicap committee, consisting of James Mulroy, Ollie Mullenback, Hugo Biersack, Gates Harpel, and W. J. Guyer, has drawn up its report, based on the records of the different motors and their previous performances. The schedule for the start Saturday morning at Milwaukee follows:

DISPLACEMENT DIVISION.

| B | 24 | 8:30 a. m. | 12 noon |

| E and over | 36 | 9:10 a. m. | 11:30 a. m. |

*Central Standard Time.
†Chicago Daylight Saving Time.

The marathon will be run according to the rules of the National Outboard association. Each boat must carry a racing number, prominently displayed. Equipment carried on each boat must be that prescribed by the federal law governing the great lakes, which specifies an approved fire extinguisher, a marine whistle, two copies of the pilot's rules, and a life preserver for each person aboard. Crews may consist of as many persons as desired.

Each driver may select his own course, but THE TRIBUNE recommends that the course shown on the map which will be supplied at the drivers' meeting tomorrow night in Milwaukee be used, as this course will be patrolled by the coast guard and airplanes.

Must Have Identification Card.

Each contestant will be given an identification card at Milwaukee, and must turn in this card to the scorers at Chicago to qualify. Cards will be given to class B drivers at the dock of the Milwaukee Yacht club at 8 o'clock Saturday morning. Other drivers will receive their cards as the preceding class gets under way.

There will be no time allowance for refueling, but drivers will be permitted to take extra fuel on their own time. Auxiliary tanks may be used, but they must be fastened securely to the boat. The starting line at the Milwaukee Yacht club and the finish line, north of Navy pier, Chicago, will be plainly marked.

The drivers' meeting will be held tomorrow night at 8:30 at the Milwaukee Yacht club. The Milwaukee safety committee will inspect the boats and equipment, and if in their judgment any boat is considered unsafe, the driver will not receive an identification card.

The Knickerbocker hotel in Milwaukee and the St. Clair hotel, Chicago, are racing headquarters. A lunch will be served Saturday afternoon between 1 o'clock and 4 o'clock at the St. Clair hotel for all drivers and their mechanics who finish the marathon.

Door 36 at the Navy pier will be headquarters for the outboard drivers. Service and fuel will be available.

Twelve prizes will be awarded by THE TRIBUNE in the two divisions of

Harridge Is Elected New A. L. Leader

Cleveland, O., May 27.—(AP)—William Harridge, who never played a game of professional baseball in his life, today was elected president of the American league for a full term of three years, succeeding the late Ernest S. Barnard.

WM. HARRIDGE.

His election to the position, which he has backstopped for 20 years, first as private secretary to the late Byron Bancroft Johnson and then as secretary of the league during the administration of Barnard, was unanimous.

In addition to his duties as president, Harridge will act as treasurer and secretary of the league for the first time since Johnson assumed all those duties. During Barnard's term of office, he served as president and treasurer, while Harridge was secretary. The American league club owners today decided, however, that as long as President John Heydler of the National league handled all three offices, Harridge could do likewise.

No salary was mentioned, although the opinion was that he would receive approximately $25,000 a year.

It was back in 1911 that Harridge first broke into the American league office. At that time he worked for the Wabash railroad, routing American league teams. His efficiency caught the eye of Johnson, and Harridge was hired to become Johnson's private secretary. He served in that capacity for almost 17 years until Johnson resigned from office after his quarrels with club owners and Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis. Barnard was elected as his successor and Harridge was named secretary of the league. Since Barnard's sudden death, last March 27, he has handled the league affairs.

"It is not necessary for me to say that I will do everything possible to keep up the traditions of the former two presidents, Mr. Johnson and Mr. Barnard," Harridge said after his election. "I do not propose nor look for any radical changes, although I shall always be open to suggestions from any one."

Harridge, a studious looking man of 46 years, was chosen within a few seconds after the election business was brought up at today's special meeting.

Most of the time of the meeting was consumed by a discussion of umpiring. From within the closed meeting could be heard bitter arguments on disputed decisions. President Harridge later said, however, that it was decided not to call a special meeting of the umpires but to advise them on certain points. He will make a tour of the league soon to see what all the umpire baiting is about.

It was decided to give the pitchers the benefit of a resin bag again. The National league permits its use.

500 MILE AUTO GRIND DRAWS FASTEST FIELD

Indianapolis, Ind., May 27.—(AP)—The fastest field ever to start a 500 mile automobile race—33 of the 40 cars qualifying at more than 100 miles an hour—was assured tonight with completion of elimination trials for Saturday's race at the Indianapolis motor speedway.

Five front drive creations made the grade, among them that driven by Billy Arnold, Chicago, to victory in 1930, and the original front drive of 1925, which finished second.

All gasoline powered cars but one had to show better than 100 miles an hour to win a place in the starting lineup. The oil burning car belonging to Cleadie Cummins of Columbus, Ind., by special ruling, was required only to make 80 miles an hour to win a place in the contest. It averaged 96.371 miles per hour.

Arnold, with an average of 116.080 miles an hour, made the best speed of the qualifying trials, but he did not gain the pole position because of his failure to qualify on the opening day last Saturday.

ARGENTINA AND U. S. OPEN DAVIS CUP PLAY TODAY

Robson vs. Shields in Singles Match.

Washington, D. C., May 27.—(AP)—Two of the leading net stars of two countries, Frank X. Shields of New York and Guillermo Robson of Argentina, were squared away tonight for the opening volleys tomorrow of the final American zone Davis cup series.

With Sidney B. Wood Jr. of New York and Ronaldo Boyd, giant Argentine star, who will contest the second singles match, the players of both teams retired to the Chevy Chase club late this afternoon after a day more filled with international amenities than tennis.

With President and Mrs. Hoover, their son, Herbert Hoover Jr., Ambassador Malbran of Argentina, and a group of invited diplomatic guests as a gallery the youngsters representing the Davis cup hopes of North and South America played a brief exhibition on the White House court.

The matches, played against the beautifully landscaped background of the White House court, were limited to six games each. Teamed with Boyd of Argentina, Gregory Mangin of Newark played Lucilo Costillo and Adriano Zappa a 3 all match.

NORTHWESTERN BEATS MICHIGAN STATE NINE, 5-4

Northwestern's baseball team nipped a ninth inning rally which netted Michigan State four runs yesterday at Roycemore field, Evanston, to eke out a 5 to 4 victory. Johnny Kurft, Purple sophomore, pitched shutout ball and allowed only three hits until the ninth inning.

GOLF STROKES • RIGHT & WRONG

by Jock Hutchison

This photo refutes the old maxim of keeping an eye on the spot where the ball was. My head has turned freely with the swing of the club and I am looking straight toward the objective. The body has pivoted easily and the club is now at right angles to the line of flight.

WRONG.

The beginner has kept his eye on the spot where the ball was. Failure to turn his head in unison with the swing has cramped his body pivot and the club cannot move into position at right angles with the line of flight.

Golf Players Find Bargains Now in Club Memberships

BY HOWARD BARRY.

There are bargains galore these days for the man who is looking for a golf club membership. The bottom has dropped out of the market and some which brought $1,500 two years ago are now being sold for $250. One of the largest and most popular clubs has come down from $1,200 to $800.

In one case an organization found that it had quite a few members who paid their dues regularly but who scarcely ever took time to come out and play golf. As a result they were spending no money around the club.

The committee asked these members if they would be willing to sell their places to others on the waiting list who would be willing to take an active part. This was arranged, new members were brought in, and the club's revenue was increased. Comparatively few have a waiting list at present.

The clubs which are coming through hard times in the best shape are those which are run on the same dollar and cents basis as a business organization.

It has been noted that adult caddies are more numerous on more courses to the south than to the north and west. This is attributed to the fact that the steel towns to the south are on the beat of a great many floating laborers who turn to caddying when unable to find work in the mills.

Of course there are quite a few adult caddies at the clubs along the north shore. These in many cases are married men trying to keep their families in food and clothing by carrying golf clubs until they are able to find work more suited to their years.

But the small boy still predominates in this industry and frequently the youngster is the main revenue collector for the family while the head of the house is unemployed.

Dr. E. Patnaud of Navajo Fields yesterday experienced the thrill which comes to the high handicap golfers when he plays over his head. Dropping his approaches accurately upon the green and sinking several long putts, he scored 87—32—55 to win low net inthe Chicago District Golf association's second tournament of the season at the Lincolnshire Country club.

Up to this time, his handicap of 22 has been none too low, for in the recent C. D. G. A. meet at Sunset Ridge it brought him nowhere near par. The committee said that it is to be readjusted in proportion to his newly found skill.

Low gross was won by Robert C. Baldwin of Olympia Fields, who shot 78. Trailing Patnaud in the net scoring came L. A. Crechette, 83—13—70, and T. H. Wilkinson, 84—13—71.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

TURF SWEEPSTAKES.

ESTIMATES that the American public is defrauded of $1,000,000 annually through sale of fraudulent or counterfeit tickets in turf pools or through sale of genuine tickets in fraudulent concerns appears more than conservative to this column. Our opinion is based on the numerous letters we have received asking where turf sweep tickets may be purchased. Stories of huge winnings by lucky ticket holders no doubt inspired such queries.

Now it seemed churlish to withhold from readers information how they might win as much as $1,000,000 from an investment of $1.00 or $2.50, but we were forced to reply we did not know. Immediately from other readers came a deluge of information convincing us that tickets were much more widely sold in this country than any one supposed.

So we decided to busy ourselves and see what would happen. We addressed a letter, containing no money, but simply asking information, to the official address of the leading Irish concern, which operates with a rakeoff for Irish hospitals.

That letter was returned, apparently unopened. On its face was rubber stamped "FRAUDULENT. Mail to this address returned by order of postmaster general."

Thereupon we wrote the postmaster general, asking him what would be our status if we knew and revealed where sweeps tickets might be bought; also whether these sweeps were held to be lotteries, which, of course, they are. This letter was referred to Solicitor Horace J. Donnelly, who replied:

"In reply to your letter which the postmaster general referred to me, I am enclosing herewith a leaflet containing the postal lottery and fraud statutes of the United States. It will be noted that Section 333, Title 18, United States code, makes it a criminal offense to mail lottery tickets or to use the mails in any manner in connection with a lottery.

That let us out so far as any information emanating from this quarter was concerned. We have no wish to repine in jail for infraction of that particular federal law.

Now if any of these big concerns are conducted honestly, the "take," of course, is heavy. We went over the matter of percentage with a local agent of a large sweep. After allowing the 35 per cent advertised as allotted to charity, the government and city tax in the place where the drawing was held and permitted under special enactment, and the expense of selling the tickets, only 35 per cent of the amount paid in was left to be returned to buyers of tickets as prize money.

So as an investment, tickets in this "honest" sweeps were no bargain. Yet as one of our readers wrote, the $1.00 or $2.50 paid for a ticket won't hurt me and I might be the 1,000,000 to 1 shot to draw a lucky number." It's the old lure of a big return for a small sum, no matter how great the odds against.

Where the buyer has no chance whatever are the dishonest concerns, or dishonest agents. The promoters may just keep the money and pay no capital prizes. The tickets also may either be counterfeits, or the agent may just keep your money without remitting it to headquarters. In either instance, even if you learn of it, there is no civil redress.

At another time we may have something to say of the devices by which some of these foreign sweeps attempt to sell tickets in this country.

Wrestlers End Training for Coliseum Card

Jim Londos and Frank Bronowicz will conclude training today for their wrestling match at the Coliseum tomorrow night. Bronowicz will enter the ring 10 pounds heavier than his Greek opponent. Londos will scale 200 pounds.

Bronowicz, undefeated in Chicago since the first of the year, is confident of victory. His advantage in weight, age, and height are expected to help him considerably, but followers of the tug and grunt fraternity doubt if he has the endurance of the experienced Londos.

Six heavyweight matches have been arranged for the program. Jim McMillan, former University of Illinois football captain, meets Kola Kwariani in the semi-windup. Kwariani will outweigh McMillan by more than 15 pounds. McMillan has won three bouts since coming here from the east where he participated in a large number of matches.

Ray Steele will meet Milo Steinborn in another match which is expected to produce considerable action. Karl Pojello meets Don De Long while Dick Warner of Lincoln, Neb., faces Jack Smith of Chicago. Pat O'Shocker of Salt Lake City has been paired with Floyd Marshall of California.

There is considerable interest in the Bronowicz-Londos bout, although there is no title at stake. Londos is no longer a heavyweight champion in Illinois, his title having been stripped from him by the Illinois athletic commission recently because he would not meet Strangler Lewis.

Giants Subdue Braves 7-4; Take Lead in National Race

New York, May 27.—[Special.]—The Giants pounded Boston hurlers into a coma today and won, 7 to 4. The victory put New York in first place ahead of the Cardinals, who lost to Pittsburgh.

But the New York pitching soured and the fielding was not so good. John Berly started the contest and was nicked for three runs before he was relieved. Heving was more effective. The Giants had little trouble with Seibold's fast ball and came from behind to pound out their third straight win over the Braves. Score:

PARI-MUTUEL BILL ATTACKED; GOES TO 3D READING

Claim It Will Repeal Racing in Illinois.

Springfield, Ill., May 27.—[Special.]—The Harris bill to prohibit pari-mutuel betting on horse races in Illinois was advanced to third reading in the house of representatives after it had been attacked in a hot session.

It was introduced by J. W. Harris [Rep., Chicago]. The bill was called in routine order on second reading and was about to be advanced without comment when Representative Howard L. Doyle [Dem., Decatur] moved to strike the enacting clause.

"The racing law," he said, "brought $1,506,243 to the state in 1929 and 1930 from license fees and 20 per cent of the gate receipts the state is allowed. This money was expended on county fairs to promote the agricultural interests and for the 4-H clubs. Why stop this revenue?"

Libonati Claims Track Crooked.

R. V. Libonati [Rep., Chicago] followed with a fiery speech in which he claimed that at one track in Illinois crooked racing operations alone cost the public $200,000 in one year. After the discussion he said he referred to the Aurora track.

Doyle and Libonati became embroiled in a verbal battle which ended with the downstater telling Libonati "We'll have dog racing bills in here in a little while. You can do your talking then."

Motion Is Tabled.

This prompted Speaker Shanahan to remark that "There will be no jockeying here—either for horses or dogs."

After the argument swung back and forth for fifteen minutes, the house voted to table Doyle's motion by a count of 68 to 52 and the bill went to third reading.

Following senate action in the morning, when the upper chamber refused to pass a bill cutting the license fee of the Fairmount track, Collinsville, from $2,500 to $1,500, a bill was introduced to increase the fee at Aurora from $1,500 to $2,500.

Looking 'Em Over in French Lane's Glasses

you were going to ask that question.

Back next to last. So tired you might have thought she had galloped a mile and a quarter instead of five furlongs. And her California backers were slinking into the background.

Horses that reach greatness are not often asked to carry on long after their legs have ceased to function properly. However, two old timers whose reputations were more or less great, have been observed cutting up with the selling platers in the closing races at Washington Park this week.

Mad Play and Blanc Seing are the old fellows that have been asked to earn their keep as old age creeps upon them.

There were two great days in Mad Play's life. One in November of his 2-year-old season. He was running in the Kentucky Jockey club stakes. After the greatest mile he ran that season Wise Counsellor beat him by a lip. Then there came the great international race at Latonia in the fall of the following year. Sarazen beat Epinard a head after running a mile and a quarter in 2:00 4-5. Less than a length back of Sarazen and Epinard came Mad Play.

Sarazen, Wise Counsellor, and Epinard long ago left the struggle as far as racing is concerned. But Mad Play is asked to win his keeps, be it ever so painful. And his nine year old legs may carry him again into the winner's circle. In his first race here it looked like he was going to last it out and win. He led his pack in to the stretch. Then the old legs began to hurt and Mad Play stopped.

TOLEDO SIGNS COLLEGE STAR.

Toledo, O., May 27.—(AP)—Alex Nigro, star athlete at the Kansas State Agriculture college, Manhattan, Kas., has been signed by the Toledo American association club and will report to the club at Indianapolis June 1. Nigro is an outfielder.

3 U.S. Horses Will Run in English Derby

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, May 27.—Twenty-eight horses, of which three are American owned, will compete in the Derby next Wednesday, according to a forecast of final acceptances which Sporting Life will publish tomorrow.

America's probable runners are Jacopo, owned by Marshall Field, who had engaged Joe Chiles to ride him; J. H. Witney's Jericho, which, will be ridden by J. Dines, and Robert Kahn's Knoloma, for which no jockey has yet been named.

For those sportsmen who believe in lucky portents it may be remarked these three American owned horses appear in alphabetical sequence in the list and have just as good a chance as any of the other longshots of filling the first three places.

The remaining runners in the classic, according to Sporting Life, are Cameronian, Carmelus, Cheery Lad, Coldstream, Doctor Dolittle, Elixir, Estate Duty, Gallini, Goyesneas, Grindleton, Lemonition, Lighting Star, Linkboy, Orphen, Pommedapi, Primitif, Revellion, Roseen Soleil, Sandwich, Shell Transport, Sir Andrew, Spanish Main, Trinidad, Wildson, and Zanoff.

Goyesneas and Primitif are French horses owned respectively by M. Boussac and M. Calmann. Lord Lonsdale, probably the finest judge of a thoroughbred in Britain, said tonight he thought that the three horses with the best chance are Cameronian, now quoted at 7 to 2, Orphen, and Pommedapi.

Nurmi Gives Up Attempt to Set Seven Mile Record

COLOGNE, May 27.—(AP)—Paavo Nurmi, the former phantom Finn, set out today with the announced intention of breaking the world's record for seven miles but gave up the attempt after running six and one-half miles. The seven mile record of 35 minutes, 4 6-10 seconds was set by Alfred E. Shrubb of England in 1904.

WOLF RIVER PIKE AND TROUT LURE ANGLERS NORTH

BY BOB BECKER.

Wisconsin Northwoods, Wis., May 27.—[Special.]—Inasmuch as the wall-eyed pike spawns early, the run of these fish to their spawning grounds was finished some time ago, so when the season opened on wall-eyes and muskies last Monday the former were back on their favorite bars and feeding grounds. The black bass requires warmer water for spawning than either the lunge or the wall-eye, so the Wisconsin season for catching both the small and large mouth varieties of bass does not open until June 25.

On our recent automobile jaunt through a section of the lake country up here we noted several possible camping sites on some of the lakes and streams and at the same time saw a possible river trip that does not require any expert canoeing. Here are the suggestions.

Big Trout in Wolf River.

If you want to take a whirl at the big trout in the Wolf river, which runs almost parallel to highway 55 east of Antigo, there is a pretty good campsite on the west side of the river near the bridge which crosses the stream below the tiny settlement of Markton. Of course this campsite is not buried in the woods in a secluded spot. But it is readily accessible to a good section of the Wolf and is in the timber. From this location it is but a short run to some wall-eyed pike fishing above the town of Lily.

Another tip on trout fishing a smaller stream than the Wolf involves the Lily river from the place called Choate on county trunk E down to the town of Lily. Some Chicago anglers have taken nice messes of brook trout from this stretch of water since May 1. If you want a resident of that locality to go down the stream with you, you can get one of the boys in Lily.

We saw a campsite on Seven Mile lake [pike mostly], which is not far from Butternut lake in that country east of Three lakes. This is not a large lake nor is it on a main trunk highway, but it is quite accessible and the camping ground is high and dry.

Here Is Canoe Trip.

The river trip, which a novice can take with a fishing guide and have a good chance to hook some fish, is on the Wisconsin river west of Eagle River on highway 70. It is possible to get a 28 mile float down the river in one day and then return to your camp or a regular fishing camp in time for dinner in the evening. This year such a trip promises to be a little snappier than ever, because the river is low and a lot of jagged rocks are showing up. This means that the guide is going to play tag with the boulders while you cast.

ter, but Stone didn't get home himself. Caraway attended to that by eliminating McManus on a pop fly and Doljack on a roller to Cissell.

The Sox second inning opened with Cissell being hit and dying on an attempted steal. The five run outburst started immediately. Eichrodt singled to left and Jeffries walked. Grube hit a single, Eichrodt scoring, Jeffries going to third and Grube taking second on the throw in. Caraway heaped insult on Hoyt by uncorking a single, on which Jeff and Grube ran home, and when Johnson made a crazy return throw of the hit Caraway went to third.

Sox Rally Continues.

The action continued with a pass to Blue and a single by Watwood that scored Caraway and sent Blue to third. Fonseca pushed a slow roller half way to the mound and no play at first was possible, so Hoyt took a long chance by scooping the ball toward the plate with the idea of catching Blue. The ball got past Hayworth so Blue not only was safe but Watwood went to third and Fonseca to second.

By singling to center Caraway was responsible for starting two runs off Wyatt in the fourth. Blue's bunt shoved Caraway to second, whereupon Watwood sent him home by doubling to left. Kerr, who had taken Fonseca's place because of a slight leg injury suffered by the veteran when he slid into the plate with the winning run in the first battle, grounded out, but Fothergill produced a hit and Watwood scored.

Caraway used his bat again in the seventh, dropping a double in short center for his fourth hit. Jeffries, who had lined a two-bagger to left, scored on Pat's effort. A passed ball moved Pat to third and he ambled home on Blue's single to right. Watwood also singled and a double steal then was attempted, but it didn't click.

"Give Porto Rican Products a Chance. Porto Rico, a part of the United States, with a population of 1,600,000 American citizens, produces much that is valuable and useful. Our sugar, our fruit, both canned and fresh, our coffee, our vegetables, our hand embroidery, our needlework, and our tobacco, are all in my opinion of exceptional quality, *and, of course, as Porto Rico is part of United States, all Porto Rican goods come into the United States duty free. I wish our fellow Americans on the continent would give us a chance to prove the quality of these articles by trying them and seeing if they do not agree with me."

*El Toros come to you duty free!

There's no difference between the latitude of Havana and Porto Rico. But there's a big difference between the price of Havana cigars and El Toros. That's because Porto Rico, where El Toros are made, is a United States possession—and her cigars come to you duty free. The difference is Uncle Sam's gift to you!

El Toros have the mild, satisfying, expensive flavor that only tobacco island-grown in the tropical sunshine and under the ideal soil conditions of Porto Rico can have. They give you the luxury of long-filler . . . the fine flavor . . . the incomparable goodness of taste usually found only in cigars at double the price or more. They are 100% sanitary because 100% machine-made. So well made are they, that they bring you the lip-comfort of a 25¢ Havana. Smoke an imported El Toro for 5¢.

Defaulted by Old Rulers at Peiping.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, May 27.—Nelson T. Johnson, American minister to China, left today for Nanking, where he will ask the Chinese government to take steps to refund two defaulted American loans which were made by the defunct Peiping government about 10 years ago. The loans total about $12,-000,000. One of them, for $5,500,000, was made by the Continental and Commercial National Bank of Chicago.

These loans originally were defaulted at the time of the Washington arms conference, and no principal or interest has since been paid. Foreign Minister C. T. Wang has promised to give the matter his consideration, but the Chinese press claims certain elements of the Kuomintang object to a refund on the grounds that the old Peiping government used the money to prosecute the war against Canton.

Canton Sends Ultimatum.

The Cantonese leaders today decided to proceed with the formation of a "new national government of China," according to dispatches received here. These dispatches say the Cantonese leaders have also sent a 48 hour ultimatum to President Chiang Kai-shek. If the ultimatum is not fulfilled, it is reported that Canton will launch a war.

The Cantonese leaders, including Sun Fo, former minister of railways in the Nanking government and son of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, founder of the Chinese republic; Wang Ching-wei, left wing leader; Eugene Chen, retired minister of foreign affairs; Tang Shao-yi, retired government official; Gen. Chen Chi-tang, and others announced that Canton is the temporary capital of the new régime.

It is reported that while the various Cantonese factions have united on a common platform, yet the antagonism to Gen. Chiang Kai-shek is meeting with a strong under current of opposition.

Anti-Red Status Removed.

This is particularly due to the presence of Wang Ching-wei, and the radical Gen. Chang Fak-wei, both of whom are credited to have a close connection with the communists, and who have been charged with responsibility for the communist destruction and incendiarism which destroyed a large section of Canton in December, 1927.

The Canton arsenals are working double shift and the Canton leaders are placing orders for airplanes and munitions with European firms.

Nanking Raises Funds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEIPING, May 27.—The National government at Nanking is preparing to issue $80,000,000 in treasury bonds for urgent field expenses in connection with the Canton revolt, and also to raise another $80,000,000 on June 1 through a consolidated tax.

The Cantonese are establishing definite control. They have taken over the customs offices in Canton and Swatow and are levying emergency taxes in the southern provinces. Chinese residing abroad are remitting directly to Canton via the Hongkong banks.

Owing to the restrictions set up by the censor it is difficult to get any tangible news as to what is taking place, but it is learned that a front is being established along the southern frontiers of Hunan and Kiangsi provinces.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Plans

TWO POLICEMEN FIRED, TWO FINED BY MERIT BOARD

After deliberating last night on the evidence submitted at an all day session the new civil service commission ordered two policemen discharged from the force and fined two others. The trials were the first to be heard by the new merit group which is headed by Richard J. Collins.

Those discharged were Patrolmen Michael J. De Laurentis of the Des Plaines street station and Francis J. O'Neill of the Cragin district. The former was accused of attempting to "shake down" the proprietor of a beer flat, while O'Neill was charged with taking $10 from a youth after threatening to place false charges of rape against him.

Sergt. Albert A. Otto, acting lieutenant at the Chicago avenue station, was fined thirty days' pay on charges of having solicited sixteen contributions for a radio for the police station. Patrolman Martin J. Connors of the West North avenue station was fined forty-two days' pay after evidence had been submitted that he dropped his revolver while entering a soft drink parlor at 1656 North Troy street. The weapon was discharged, the bullet striking the proprietor.

FAIL TO DECIDE ON PROGRAM FOR BUILDING BOOM

A conference between labor leaders and officials of the Building Construction Employers' association, held yesterday in an attempt to formulate a program to stimulate building in Chicago, adjourned without any decision being reached. A temporary reduction in wages was suggested by the employers.

Patrick Sullivan, president of the Building Trades' council, at the end of the meeting asserted that there would be no wage cuts.

E. M. Craig, executive secretary of the employers' association, refused to make a statement. "We did not ask for an expression today," he said. "We think we have a proposition that will aid every one and we want them to think it over. There will be another meeting in a couple of weeks."

FREE EDITOR FOR SELLING PAPER POLICE FORBADE

Minneapolis, Minn., May 27.—[Special.]—Arthur Kasherman, publisher of the Public Press, a paper devoted to an "expose of vice conditions" in Minneapolis, was freed of a charge of disorderly conduct today.

Two days before the May 11 primary election police seized approximately 30,000 copies of Kasherman's publication when it appeared on the street and forbade him to sell more.

Last Saturday night Kasherman and a newsboy appeared on a downtown street corner with 500 copies of the paper and attempted to sell them. Patrolman J. D. Dahl seized the papers and arrested Kasherman, and Inspector Fred Ohman placed the charge against Kasherman.

The charge was dismissed today on motion of the city attorney "for lack of evidence."

Kasherman announced that he would immediately attempt to sell his papers again. He has asked the District court for an injunction to prevent police from seizing his publication.

STEADY SELLING HAMMERS DOWN CHICAGO STOCKS

Support Holds Insull Shares About Steady.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Huddled in the sunless customers' rooms in the financial district yester traders gloomily watched the ticker tape spell out another chapter in its repetitious story of sinking prices.

On the Chicago exchange the steady hammering at stocks resulted in setbacks in a dozen or more shares, but many issues were accorded good support and held out against yielding only slightly to the pressure.

Having succeeded in the efforts in preventing Commonwealth Edison from breaking through, 230 sponsors of the issue followed up their previous day's support with more buying and the stock held its position. Twice during the session the issue got down to 230, but on each occasion support stopped further recession.

Recover from Lows.

In other sections of the list stocks receded moderately under the weight of selling, but no drastic declines resulted. Bendix held its ground apparently on the strength of its first quarter earnings statement, which made a better showing than was generally expected. Other motor accessory shares, however, shared the general weakness and closed the day with moderate net losses.

The light offerings which appeared in United States Gypsum were sufficient to break that stock down a point to a new low price for the year. In several other issues new low quotations were marked up, but the final prices in main represented slight improvement over the day's worst prices.

Vote Regular Dividend.

On an odd lot transaction Loudon Packing was quoted at 35¼, which was little changed from its previous price. The directors of the company meeting yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents on the common. The annual report of the company, which will be issued within the next few months, is expected to show a substantial increase in earnings for the fiscal year ended April 30 over the preceding year.

The Studebaker Mall Order company reports a net loss for its fiscal year ended March 31 of $258,004 after all charges. This compares with net profit of $287,767, or $1.43 a share on the A stock in the previous year.

SIGNS POINT TO END OF SLUMP, STEVENS HOLDS

Views on Position of Steel Mixed.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Efficiency and economy in distributing commodities form the next great step in the economic progress of the United States. They are the supplement to mass production, which has been developed in the last few years. This view of the future was presented by Eugene M. Stevens, chairman of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank, before the Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday.

EUGENE M. STEVENS.

At the same time Mr. Stevens expressed the belief that the country is about at the bottom of depression, with signs now pointing to a beginning of recovery.

"The efficiency of production developed during the last fifteen years, stimulated by the emergency demands of the war and accomplished by the great advances in science and the splendid intelligence of business leaders, had reached a very high level," Mr. Stevens said. "When the demand for this excess production inevitably began to decrease, extraordinary measures were resorted to in order to force sales beyond a real demand for the goods.

High Distribution Costs.

"Extravagant costs of distribution resulted and still obtain. One of the major problems of business, even when and as a measure of prosperity returns, is the elimination of waste in distribution and merchandising and the obtaining of an efficiency in distribution approximating the efficiency which production has already developed.

"The business index shows that excepting for seasonal effects there has not been much change in the last four months. This leads us to the hope that the drastic declines have been checked and we are now dragging on the bottom and the next change may be for the better.

"I venture to assert that the day will come, and is not far distant, when we will look back on the present inertia in the use of money and credit with much the same wondering criticism we now apply to the hysteria of its misuse a few years ago. With many commodities selling under the cost of production, with securities of some of the best and strongest of our great corporations selling at half their depreciated book value, it is again an amazing psychological condition that finds us at the same time with our coffers full of idle money and unused credit."

STEEL VIEWS MIXED

Contrary views are expressed by the leading trade reviews relative to the extent of the decline in steel production this week. The Iron Age maintains that output for the country at large has dipped from 45 to 44 per cent, whereas Steel says operations fell 3 per cent to 41 per cent of capacity.

"Neither the tempo of buying nor the trend of prices and production," according to Iron Age, "has been noticeably affected by the frank airing of views at the recent meeting of the American Iron and Steel institute. Demand remains sluggish and in the aggregate continues to taper; prices in scattered instances have given further ground, but in the main are unresponsive, owing to the dearth of new business; output is still slowly declining.

"Aggregate current specifications of such products as sheets, strips, cold-finished bars and wire products are hardly sufficient to justify more than a two day a week operation. Releases in other products offer no promise of early improvement."

Steel Still Slipping.

"Steel making operations have settled 3 points to 41 per cent this week," Steel declares, "the lowest rate since the second week in January. The reduction in the last two weeks has been 6 points, the most rapid decline since operation began to slide off the spring peak in March.

"Building requirements have continued substantial, considering the general state of steel demand; automotive needs have been well sustained, and there has been little change in pipe and railroad buying; hence the responsibility for the more precipitate movement evidently is chargeable to the general manufacturing trade."

Parmelee Head Defends Chicago Taxicab Fares

BY SCRUTATOR.

Mr. Miller is qualified to speak for the taxicab industry, for his company controls Yellow Taxi corporation of New York and Yellow Cab company of Pittsburgh, and holds a substantial interest in Chicago Yellow Cab company, Inc.

Granting that fares in New York are lower than in Chicago, Mr. Miller states that no New York operating company has ever been financially successful and that a recently appointed commission in New York is now trying to bring order out of taxicab chaos in that city and limit the number of cabs permitted to operate on the streets.

Seen Public Utility.

He takes the position that a taxicab company should be regarded as a public utility. He emphasizes the responsibility of the operator to the public and points out that in order to assume such responsibility the owner must be strong enough financially to meet claims for damages like any other public utility as well as provide a high standard of service. In this respect, he says, Chicago leads other cities.

In Chicago taxicabs charge 25 cents for the first quarter mile and ten cents for each additional half mile, which is 20 cents per mile after the first flag drop. Pittsburgh has the same rate.

In New York the rate is 15 cents for the first quarter mile and five cents for each additional quarter mile. Boston and Philadelphia companies charge 20 cents for the first third mile and ten cents for each additional third mile. In San Francisco and Los Angeles the rate is 15 cents for the first quarter mile and ten cents for each additional third mile.

Cites Waiting Time.

It will be seen from these figures that short runs in Chicago and Pittsburgh are more costly than in the other five cities, and that longer runs are cheaper than in the other cities, except New York.

According to Mr. Miller the average trip in Chicago is 2¾ miles. The fare for that distance is 65 cents in Chicago and Pittsburgh, 55 cents in New York, and 75 cents in Los Angeles and San Francisco. Boston and Philadelphia meters mark off third miles instead of quarters. In those cities the fare for 2 1-3 miles is 80 cents.

If you try these figures on your taximeter, however, there is another factor that you must allow for. When your cab comes to a full stop in traffic the meter ceases to measure mileage and meshes with a clock.

The charge for waiting time in Chicago is ten cents for three minutes. In New York it is five cents for two minutes.

Mr. Miller explains the low fares charged in Washington, Columbus, and Cleveland by saying that in those cities operations are kept going at the expense of the drivers under the present economic stress.

"A driver," he says, "is compelled to pay the owning company a fixed charge per day regardless of whether the net return to him is sufficient to make him a living."

Operation Costs.

He further contends that costs of operation in Chicago are higher than in New York because of a more comprehensive telephone service required here and because population in Chicago is distributed over a larger area, thereby reducing live mileage of cabs. The cost per call of handling telephone orders in Chicago, Mr. Miller says, is about seven cents. He adds that in New York it is almost impossible to telephone for a cab.

"Would not a reduction in the present rate of fare in Chicago be advantageous to the cab companies as well as to the riding public by creating an increase in the volume of business?"

"No company in any city that has operated at lower rates than those charged now by our company has ever been financially successful," he replied.

PRICES OF BONDS DROP SHARPLY; RAILS SUFFER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 27.—The listed bond market was sharply lower today. Railroad and industrial bonds were subjected to insistent selling pressure, which accounted for the drop in the averages on forty domestic bonds to a new low for the year. Public utility issues resisted the decline generally, but this group was by no means immune from declines. Second grade bonds in all groups suffered far more than the better grade issues.

It would require a long list to chronicle all of the domestic issues which touched new lows for 1931 yesterday, and this list would include several prime issues which have lined strong boxes for years.

Argentine government bonds proved to be one of the weakest spots, not only in the foreign group, but in the entire bond market. These issues broke 2 to 12¼ points, with all of the issues active yesterday touching the lowest levels at which they have ever sold.

LIFE INSURANCE SALES ARE FAIRLY WELL SUSTAINED

ELECTRICAL ORDER FOR $16,000,000 IS PLACED BY PENNSY

Philadelphia, Pa., May 27.—(AP)—The Pennsylvania railroad announced today it has placed orders for approximately $16,000,000 with the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company and the General Electric company for electric apparatus to be installed in 150 passenger and freight locomotives which are to be built.

The locomotives are to be used when electrification of the railroad's lines between New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington is completed.

Extension of its container car service providing faster movement of merchandise freight to all important points on the Pennsylvania railroad was announced by M. W. Clement, vice president in charge of operation, as a development of the immediate future. Orders for more than $1,500,000 worth of additional merchandise containers will be placed at once as part of the program for expansion of this service.

NEW PRESIDENT FOR BOULEVARD BRIDGE BANK

J. De Forest Richards, senior vice president of the Boulevard Bridge bank, has been named president of the institution to succeed Lawrence H. Whiting who is retiring to devote all of his time to the Indiana Limestone company of which he is chairman of the board of the bank. John F. Hagey remains as chairman of the board of the bank.

J. DE FOREST RICHARDS.

It is understood that Mr. Whiting has disposed of his bank holdings to a group headed by William Wrigley Jr. who is also a director of the bank.

Mr. Richards came to Chicago in 1925 from Omaha where he had been a vice president of the Omaha National bank. He is credited with playing an important part in building up the Boulevard bank's resources which now amount to $14,000,000.

Speakers Attack Tariff at Foreign Trade Council

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 27.—Tariff barriers must come down if the world is to emerge from the present industrial depression, prominent industrial leaders declared today at the opening of the three day convention of the National Foreign Trade council at the Hotel Commodore.

As a step in the direction of international recovery a demand was made that the United States lead the way at a special session of congress to effect a 25 per cent horizontal tariff cut on all ad valorem rates and a 50 per cent reduction on all specific rates of duty.

It was charged that United States had been guilty of initiating "the greatest world-wide tariff war in history." While the tariff might be considered a political or local issue, it was asserted that it had become a very important international economic issue.

Favors Sweeping Cuts.

The demand for an extra session of congress was made by Peter Fletcher, president of the National Council of American Importers and Traders, who said the special session should not overhaul the tariff schedule by schedule, but should make the sweeping 25 per cent and 50 per cent cuts.

Although he did not mention the word tariff, Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co., in his brief welcoming speech, injected a word of caution in calling upon business leaders to discourage attempts to erect "artificial barriers against foreign trade." He pointed out that "if we want our foreign trade to prosper we have to make it easy for people to trade with us. We cannot expect to do all the selling and have the other fellow do all the buying. I again urge you to discourage every attempt to build up these false barriers.

"We all know," Mr. Lamont went on to say, "that the depression that we are passing through has been severe and has been long continued and yet it would appear that there is a new set of philosophers. Some of our fellow citizens who think that our difficulties are so great that we are never going to get through them. You recall that two or three years ago we had a school of philosophy that declared that the prosperity in this world of ours would never cease for even an instant.

"Now there seems to be another school that has gone just as far the other way in pessimism, just as those men went too far in the way of optimism. Yet I hardly have to recall to you that there is no justification for any such feeling, for the establishment of any such philosophy, to the effect that our problems are insoluble. Do not let us for a moment get in mind the idea that our problems today are unprecedented or that they are insoluble. We know perfectly well that the way back is an arduous one; we will have to have a long trek perhaps to complete prosperity again."

Farrell's Viewpoint.

James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation, who reviewed the world trade outlook, expressed the opinion that America would lead the world back to industrial recovery, but did not agree with the other speakers on the effect of tariffs, though, like Mr. Lamont, he felt that the road back to prosperity might be long. But he thought America's vast resources, her efficiency and economic strength, left no doubt as to the outcome.

Price cutting, unfair competition, "profitless merchandising," were deplored by Mr. Farrell, who pointed out that the economic situation required an advance in commodity prices and anything that tended to postpone such improvement should be discountenanced.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE SEAT SOLD; $210,000

New York, May 27.—(AP)—Dull trading and declining security prices were reflected in a drop in the price of New York Stock Exchange seats today.

A transfer was arranged at $210,000, a reduction of $20,000 from the preceding transaction. This compares with a 1931 peak price of $322,000, reached with the upturn in stock prices in February. Last December, however, a seat sold as low as $186,000.

Hear North Western Ry. Makes Salary Reduction

It was reported yesterday that the Chicago and North Western railroad, because of constantly dwindling revenues, has been forced to consider wage reductions. Effective June 1, it is said, clerks earning over $200 a month will receive a 10 per cent cut.

Price of Export Copper at Lowest Point in 35 Years

New York, May 27.—(AP)—A reduction of a quarter of a cent a pound today brought the price of export copper to 9.025 cents a pound, c. i. f. European base ports, and the lowest level in more than 35 years.

The cut brought the foreign price to a parity with the domestic level of 8¾ cents a pound, the price at which custom smelters have been offering the metal for several days. Foreign sales were stimulated by the reduction and the amount of metal sold during the day came to 9,500,000 pounds.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 27.—The share market cracked up again today. With a headwind of unfavorable news against it, the whole list buckled in the late dealings and when the noise and shouting died away values were found to have been damaged anywhere from $2 to $5 a share. New lows for periods dating back as much as ten years were recorded in all departments.

United States Steel was forced down to 90½, the lowest price it has sold since 1923. American Can was beaten down to a new bottom of 93¼, and such barometer standbys as General Motors, Consolidated Gas, Johns-Manville, Eastman Kodak, and Standard Oil of New Jersey were forced from 1 to 2 points below their last night's closing levels on concentrated selling attacks.

Evidently much of the selling was by way of liquidation from strongbox holdings. Certainly there were no signs that the stock exchange's questionnaire—aimed primarily at professional bear operations—was causing any great anxiety in the ranks of those having commitments to get rid of as had been hoped. So far as the returns disclosed, it had lost any force as a deterrent it might have had in any direction.

Little Bullish News.

There was little in the news to help those bullishly inclined. The character of remarks at the national foreign trade council convention was hardly conducive to enthusiasm on the buying side and the report on the weekly car loadings, taken on a seasonal basis, was distinctly disappointing. Another drop of a point in the rate operations in the steel trade was reported by Iron Age in its review of the week and the utilities had to contend with figures showing a rather sharp curtailment in the output of electric energy.

Rail shares had a burden of their own in the form of the refusal of the

GRAIN MARKETS JOIN SHARES IN SELLING LOWER

Bullish News Fails to Aid Price Situation.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain traders seem to have little confidence in the maintenance of even minor advances, and the action of yesterday's market was the reverse of that of Tuesday, highest prices being made at the opening and the lowest shortly before the close, with general local and commission house selling the greater part of the day. The drastic decline in security prices in New York more than offset everything of a bullish nature, rains in the Dakotas, Minnesota, and Montana adding to the bearishness.

Dry weather reports continue to come from the Canadian northwest and the comments on the situation prevailing in the dry areas of the three provinces are steadily becoming worse, but there was a noticeable lack of support at times on the way down, with buying against bids a factor in checking the decline in wheat.

Government agencies were sellers of both old and new style May wheat, permitting shorts to cover without affecting the market to any extent and the finish was unchanged to ¾c lower, with old May, 42⅝c, and new style, 43c. Deferred futures were 1@1¼c lower, with July, 50¼c; September, 55½c to 55⅝c, and December, 61⅞c to 62c.

Wheat Lacks Support.

Drought has been eliminated as a market factor in wheat for some time to come in the Dakotas, with over 7 inches reported at Watertown, S. D., and over 4 inches at Milbank, and numerous points in the latter state had ½ inch or more as did North Dakota. Further precipitation was forecasted, with generally fair expected in North Dakota on Thursday, while in Alberta and Saskatchewan the outlook was for fair and warm.

Lack of aggressive speculative buying has been an outstanding feature in wheat market for a long time, and while the government weekly weather crop report showed deterioration in the outlook for the Pacific coast crop, and also some loss in the more eastern sections due to dry weather, the trade paid little attention to the prospects that a shading in estimates would be necessary ultimately.

Winnipeg Wheat Declines.

Winnipeg wheat led the decline, despite the dry weather reports in the west, and closed 1¾c lower, with the July finishing at 59¾c or the same as Chicago. Liverpool was up ¼@⅝d for the day, with July, 63¾d. Export demand for North American wheat was slow and no sales of consequence reported. Speculative offers of No. 1 hard winter at the gulf for last half July loading were on the basis of 2c over Chicago September. Harvesting has started in southern Texas and the use of combines is expected to start the latter part of the week.

Weakness in the stock market and in wheat was largely responsible for a lower level of corn prices, but the market showed considerable resistance to pressure and closed ⅝@⅞c lower, with May, 55⅛@55¼c; July, 55⅝c to 55½c; September, 52⅝c, and December, 46⅞c to 47c.

There was considerable selling of September corn at times by locals and by houses with St. Louis connections, with some spreading between the July and the September. A local house had orders to buy corn and sell rye, closing a spread which is estimated to have shown a net profit of around 4c per bu.

LARD LOWEST SINCE 1908

With hogs the lowest since 1912 and weakness in stocks and grains, there was liquidation and hedging in lard yesterday, with buying rather indifferent and a close at net losses of 12½@15c. Liverpool lard was unchanged to 3d lower. Hogs were off 10@15c, although receipts were smaller than a week and a year ago. Cash trade was slow and export clearances were large, 1,656,835 lbs. Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 4,000; hogs, 21,000; sheep, 12,000.

Cattle and hog markets entered new low price channels yesterday. Most classes are selling at pre-war levels. The general average for hogs sank to $5.90, which is only 10c above the lowest average since 1908, the low spot that year being around $4.25.

Prevailing hog quotations are $1.50 @2.00 lower than they were about 50 years ago. The average price for the entire year of 1882 was $7.65. The average for the year of 1896 at $3.40 is the lowest yearly average on record. Many droves of hogs that year were put up below the $3.00 line.

Records back to 1911 were dug up before a lower level for cattle could be found. The extreme top yesterday dropped to $7.75, the lowest since the summer of 1911, when top went down to $6.40, which was the lowest spot for cattle since the early part of 1908 when $6.00 was the low top. Cattle were also selling higher 50 years ago. The top back in 1881 was $8.00 and in 1882 cattle sold up to $9.30. The years of 1883 and 1884 also had cattle above $8.00.

All interests bought hogs more freely after a 25b lower price basis had been established yesterday. Light weights showed most of the loss, while medium and heavy butchers lost 10@25c during the day. The extreme top declined 25c at $6.40, while the general average came down 20c at $5.90. Prices are 65@80c lower than a week ago and $1.00 under two weeks ago.

In the last 11 weeks prices have declined $1.90@2.10 and are $4.00@4.25 lower than at this time in 1930. Hog receipts are running largest in several weeks, but the three day total at the eleven markets this week shows a decrease of 18 per cent, compared with the corresponding periods in 1930 and 1929. The total shows a gain of 20 per cent compared with the first three days of last week.

Hog Futures Dull.

Trading in hog futures remained at a standstill again yesterday with bids and offers far apart. June light were offered at $6.75 and bid $6.25. Light weights for next September were offered as low as $7.65. Mediums for September carried bids of $7.00, but the lowest offer was $7.70. Heavy grades for September finished with bids at $7.00 and offers at $7.65.

The cattle market dragged along slowly at the new low price levels and some steers had to go over practically without bids again. The advance estimate of only 4,000 for today had little effect because of the glutted condition of the dressed beef markets lately. Prime 1,364 lb steers topped the list at $7.75, against $9.00 for similar quality a week ago and $14.00 a year ago. Three weeks ago top steers sold at $9.75. Butcher stock shared in the decline, most sales of cows and heifers showing $1.00 or more loss for the week. Calves were steady yesterday. Stockers and feeders were neglected and turned weak to lower.

Lambs Stronger.

Sheep receipts were short again yesterday, the total at seven markets at 47,000 being smallest for Wednesday since April 8, resulting in a steady to stronger market, with some sales of strong weight matured stock showing slight gains.

Prime shorn lambs went to city butchers at $8.70, most of these kinds selling at $8.50 and below, while top native springers reached $10.25. California spring lambs were sorted at $10.00, the culls going at $7.50. Aged sheep and yearlings were unchanged.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 4,000 cattle, 21,000 hogs and 12,000 sheep, against 6,754 cattle, 20,136 hogs and 14,470 sheep, the previous Thursday and 5,567 cattle, 22,980 hogs and 8,883 sheep a year ago.

RISK FIRM MAKES ANOTHER LOAN ON CHICAGO REALTY

Dissatisfied with Deal, Return Properties.

County records yesterday disclosed a second large loan to be made recently on Chicago district real estate by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. The latest real estate loan was one of $100,000 for fifteen years and four months at 5½ per cent covering the business property at the northwest corner of 22d street and 48th avenue, Cicero.

Owners of the property are Nick Gianacokas and Peter Tampoonas, who conveyed a trust deed to the Chicago Trust company. The building site is 123x63¾ feet and the structure on it is two stories. The loan was made through the Chicago Trust company. On Tuesday the insurance company made a $550,000 loan on a large south side apartment building.

Trade Back Property.

A deed was filed for record yesterday transferring the property at the southwest corner of Division and Wells streets from Lois E. De Matteis to Alexander W. Hannah, real estate operator. It was disclosed that some years ago Mr. Hannah traded this parcel with George Prassas for suburban property. It now appears that neither was satisfied with the trade, with the result that they are conveying back the properties involved. The Wells street property, 100x125 feet, is improved with a building erected shortly after the fire of 1871. Campbell, Clithero & Fischer represented Mr. Hannah as attorneys.

The residence at the southwest corner of Foster and Melvina avenues, 378x139, has been sold by George Vicini and Harry Vredeveld to Martin Mulson for an undisclosed consideration.

Postal Lease Terms.

Terms of the lease entered into by the post office department with Harry F. Lyons for a branch postal station in the Lyons building at 7625 North Paulina street, filed for record yesterday, disclose that the government is paying $22,200 for the ten year term. The premises have been occupied by the post office department since last fall and the lease is dated Jan. 2, 1931.

Fischman & Sons, operators of a chain of food marts on the north side, bought twenty-five feet of vacant adjoining on the south the Devon-Western Food mart at 6224 North Western avenue, for a reported $25,000. It will be used as an open air addition to the present market and later will be improved with a permanent annex. Jess S. Raban and Samuel Koenigsberg were attorneys.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, May 27.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil closed steady today, 15 points higher to 5 lower, on a turnover of 5,850 bris, all in the July and September positions. Refiners bought most of the July and trade apparently came into September. The steadiness in view of the general weakness of outside markets and the favorable cotton weather was looked upon as a correction of the technical position. Crude oil was nominal. Closing prices: Spot, 6.60c; July, 6.62c; September, 6.65c; December, 6.30c; January, 6.25c. Prime summer yellow contracts were neglected with closing prices as follows: Spot, 6.40c; July, 6.50c; September, 6.45c; December and January, 6.25c.
